CARDINAL MERCIER BRINGS BELGIUM'S THANKS TO AMERICA

Welcomed in the Name of the Government, the Church, and the People.

LOVE HIS ONLY MISSION

Comes to Reveal the Grateful Heart of His Nation to Those Who Saved It.

ARCHBISHOP HAYES HIS HOST

Will See Today's Parade, Then Depart for Baltimore to Visit Cardinal Gibbons.

Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, who stood between the people of his country and the German invaders, arrived in New York yesterday evening at 6 o'clock on the United States Naval transport Northern Pacific. He received an enthusiastic welcome from the crowd of soldiers, sailors, and civilians who were waiting at Pier 5, Hoboken, to greet him. It was his first visit to America, of which he had heard and read so much, and the warmth of his welcome visibly affected the Cardinal as he stood under the bridge of the transport looking down upon the pier.

The Collector of the Port, Byran R. Newton, boarded the Northern Pacific when she stopped for a few minutes at Quarantine, and welcomed His Eminence on behalf of the State Department, and stood beside him as the transport steamed rapidly up the harbor and pointed out the Statue of Liberty and other objects of interest. When he saw the Woolworth building, Cardinal Mercier exclaimed in astonishment: "What a beautiful church!" On being told that it was an office building, he said that in Europe the tall buildings were usually cathedrals or churches.

The committee of prominent Catholics, headed by Archbishop Hayes, and the Baltimore committee representing Cardinal Gibbons, which was headed by Mayor W. F. Broening and Father Stickney, were on board the Police Boat Patrol with Mayor Hylan. After meeting the Northern Pacific at Quarantine and permitting the committees to salute the Cardinal as he stood on the deck of the transport the Patrol steamed to Hoboken just astern and reached the pier at the same time.

After the Northern Pacific had been made fast the Cardinal received the members of the committees on the upper deck as they were presented to him by Archbishop Hayes. George J. Gillespie, the lawyer, headed the lay members of the committee, which included Henry Clews, William D. Guthrie, Bird S. Coler, Thomas S. Rush, Corporation Counsel W. P. Burr, Victor F. Dowling, John McCormack, Maurice J. Connelly, Borough President of Queens; Chief Magistrate William McAdoo, and many others. With the Archbishop were Monsignori Lavelle, Dunn, Flood, Mooney and Stillman.

Cardinal Mercier is a white haired man, six feet two inches tall, with a benevolent countenance and a soft, musical voice. The deep lines in his face show the strain he has labored under during the years of war, but he is still active, considering his 68 years.

Hears His National Anthem.

After obliging the photographers and moving picture men the Cardinal traversed the gangway to the pier which was decorated with American and Belgian flags, while the army band played the Belgian national anthem. The military men, including Major Gen. Shanks, stood at attention and the civilians doffed their hats. As the Patrol carried him from the pier, going to the foot of Fiftieth Street, the crowd gave the Cardinal three cheers which were joined in by the crew of the Northern Pacific, who were mustered on the deck aft.

Cardinal Mercier did not appear to understand why so much should be made over his arrival in America and remarked the fact to Archbishop Hayes, who was standing near, with Mayor Hylan.

"Oh, Cardinal," the Archbishop replied, "this is all quite natural as you will find out during your visit. All America loves Cardinal Mercier and the people intend that you shall know it."

When the Patrol reached the pier at Fiftieth Street there were automobiles waiting to convey the party to Archbishop Hayes's residence.

The first two days of the voyage from Brest were rough and every passenger on the Northern Pacific was seasick, including the Cardinal, but after that the weather calmed and was fine until Sandy Hook was reached at 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

On Saturday evening the Cardinal addressed the soldiers on board the transport, telling them how much the people of Belgium esteemed their heroic conduct in crossing the ocean and fighting for freedom.

When the Cardinal was asked at the Archbishop's house what he wanted to see most in America he pondered for a moment, smiled, and replied: "The people and your statues and works of art, but most of all your people. I want to know them all. I had met so many Americans abroad that I became interested in America before I ever thought that I should be able to visit this great Republic which has done so much for the whole world."

"Did you come here on a special mission for the Belgian Government?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "I come as a Belgian in the name of the whole of the

Polk Blocks French Plan of Menacing Note to Berlin

Copyright, 1919, by Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Frank Polk has spiked Premier Clemenceau's attempt to force a clash with Germany by insisting that the Berlin Government immediately change the article in the German Constitution which provides for Austrian representation in the German Parliament.

Premier Clemenceau presented at the meeting of the Council of Five a note which Marshal Foch had indorsed, stating laconically that Germany's reply was unsatisfactory, and that at the expiration of fifteen days, if the German Constitution was still unchanged, allied troops would begin marching further into Germany, occupying Frankfort, Essen, and other towns.

Mr. Polk refused to agree to this note, owing to the hostile terms in which it was couched, and demanded that the Council permit him to draw up a milder note to Germany.

GOVERNOR PUTS UP FARE ROW TO NIXON

NIXON ASSAILS MAYOR

Accuses Him of Obstructing Action and Challenges Him to Test Case in Court.

Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon and Governor Smith conferred yesterday, and afterward the Governor announced that the solution of the traction problem was up to the commission and the city officials, and that he could not be expected to take up the question in detail at the present time. The Governor, who spent more than an hour in the office of Commissioner Nixon, said that the entire time had been devoted to a discussion of the various phases of the transportation question, but he declined to reveal the details of the conference.

Friends of Commissioner Nixon said that Governor Smith had approved the stand taken by his appointee and had no intention of interfering in the dispute now going on between Mayor Hylan and Mr. Nixon. They believed that the Governor had visited Commissioner Nixon to get first hand from him the latest developments in the situation and not for the purpose of suggesting a change of policy.

Commissioner Nixon, in replying to a letter sent to him by Mayor Hylan in which the latter asked several questions in connection with fare increase applications, accused the Mayor of obtaining a writ of prohibition without waiting for an answer. The Mayor said that he desired answers to the questions so that he could decide whether to instruct the Corporation Counsel to institute injunction proceedings.

Nixon Attacks Mayor.

Commissioner Nixon's letter to the Mayor in part says:

"Without awaiting an answer, you have secured a temporary stay even of my duty to ascertain facts by a hearing. As usual, my purpose in sending the application to you appears to have been misunderstood. This company is in financial straits—that is evidenced by the fact that it is in the hands of a receiver. It made an application to me, which I transmitted to you, with the hope that you would suggest a solution.

"It was my intention to hold a hearing for the purpose of ascertaining the facts, and the Corporation Counsel's office had been notified to that effect. When the facts were ascertained you and the Board of Estimate, if the facts warranted it, could have granted the Receiver such relief as he is entitled to receive. In case you did not act it might have been incumbent upon me to do so. I am interested in compelling service, if it may be done, to the end that the public may not be inconvenienced.

Mayor's Questions Answered.

The questions you propound are as follows:

(1) Is it your intention to entertain the application of this company for an increase of fare and consequent modification of its contract with the city?

It was my intention to hear the company's application and to investigate its financial condition.

(2.) If, after the public hearings referred to in your letter, you conclude that the financial condition of the company needs an increase of fare, is it your intention to order and authorize such increase, notwithstanding its contract with the city for a five-cent rate?

I did not know what the public hearings would disclose. Consequently I had not formulated any judgment and will be unable to do so until all the facts are before me. It was my intention to ascertain facts and endeavor to have relief extended through the city if possible.

(3) Do you claim the legal right to modify and change existing city franchise contracts with the railroads by increasing the rate of fare provided for in such contracts without the consent of the city authorities?

The expression "existing city franchise contracts with the railroads," is exceedingly vague. Exactly what the writer means I do not appreciate. So-called "city franchises" were granted prior to the year of 1874, when the State Constitution was amended, and since that time the Quimby case apparently makes a distinction between the two classes of franchises. I claim the legal right to exercise all the powers conferred upon me by the Public Service Commissions law as

WILSON DEMANDS TREATY TO HASTEN LIVING COST CUT

Declares in Minnesota Speeches That Peace Basis Is Needed to Adjust Labor Relations.

FEARS WORLD OUTBREAKS

Says Peoples Threaten to Destroy Governments—Predicts Rebuke for Treaty Foes.

SEES AMERICA AS MEDIATOR

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 9.—President Wilson, speaking in the auditorium here tonight, declared that adjustment of the cost of living and of the relations of capital and labor awaited the restoration of a status of general peace through the ratification of the pending treaty. He had emphasized the same point in an address to the Minnesota Legislature in the morning.

In a speech at the Minneapolis Armory in the afternoon the President said that the peoples of the world had made up their minds to destroy their Governments unless these Governments prevented the horrors of future world wars, and predicted that a great war was bound to come if there was no concerted movement to preserve peace.

"We are the predestined mediators of mankind," Mr. Wilson said in his night speech. The American people, derived from all the nations of the world, he declared, were the only ones whom the world would trust in the leadership of stabilizing peace.

Especially was Europe looking to this country, the President held, to take the lead in a new alignment of the relations of capital and labor and in the rehabilitation of commerce, for which America alone had the capital.

Big Crowd Shouts Assent.

Mr. Wilson was welcomed to Minnesota by Governor Burnquist and Mayors Hodgson of St. Paul and Myers of Minneapolis. Great crowds greeted him with enthusiasm everywhere he went. Nearly 15,000 persons were in the St. Paul Auditorium, where Mayor Hodgson, a Republican, introduced him as "a great spiritual leader of American Democracy," and said that his power was in the "hearts of the people."

At the conclusion of the President's Auditorium address Mayor Hodgson called upon the crowd for a vote. He asked the people if they were for the ratification of the League with or without reservations. Those for the treaty without reservations were asked to vote "Aye." And the "Ayes" came back in a great chorus. Those opposed say "No!" shouted the Mayor. There were only a few voices raised in dissent.

The remarks concerning capital and labor which President Wilson made to the joint session of the Legislature stirred his audience to applause, and it was evident that there was recognized here the feeling of unrest which he mentioned. The discussion of this subject transcended in importance the references which he made to the other features of the high-living cost situation.

The President emphasized that in his mind the labor situation was the key to the living-cost problem, and that there could be no satisfactory settlement until it had been adjusted. The greatest importance attached to his remarks, however, was in the intimation, which some saw, that he was in sympathy with the demand of labor that it receive a more direct share in the business of employers.

Wants New Labor Relation.

This question is to be under discussion at the meeting of employers and employes which the President has called for Oct. 6 at Washington, and it is understood at that time he will make recommendations as to the general line which he believes the conference should follow.

He said today that he had no definite program which he would recommend, but that he would ask that a new relationship be created and that he felt that the business men who knew and who would be present at the October conference should be able to supply the basis of a working problem. The labor situation is occupying the thoughts of not a few of the prosperous employers in this section of the country, and some of them are not unwilling to follow the Wilson leadership in bringing about an adjustment in the event that Mr. Wilson does not demand changes which go beyond their reach.

The reception given to Mr. Wilson by the Legislature was cordial and sympathetic. The Legislature had just adopted the woman suffrage amendment and the President opened his address by congratulating the members on that step.

The makeup of the Legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. There are twenty-six members of the Nonpartisan League in the Senate and several in the House, but they are not very antagonistic to the ideas of Mr. Wilson. The Democrats in the Legislature, who are few, support Mr. Wilson's attitude toward the treaty and the Republican members are sympathetic toward the general plan of the League of Nations.

One thing stood out predominantly in connection with the President's visit to St. Paul and Minneapolis. The people are with him so far as the need for the quick ratification of the treaty is

Pershing to Continue Title and Duties in Washington

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—General Pershing is to retain the title and duties of Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces, for the time being, it was announced officially today. "Headquarters" will be established here in the old Land Office Building, famous as the centre of the draft machinery during the war. All the records of the overseas forces will be concentrated here, and General Pershing, with a small staff of officers who were associated with him in France, will be ready to answer any call of Congress for information.

It had been expected that General Pershing would take a long vacation before again assuming military duty, but the new arrangement, according to War Department officials, has been made at his own suggestion.

SPENCER SWINGS TO LODGE'S SIDE

Says He Would Vote to Reject Treaty Rather Than Accept It Unchanged.

COMMITTEE REPORTS TODAY

With Majority Recommendations by Lodge and Dissenting Report by Hitchcock.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The ranks of the Senate opponents of the Versailles Treaty who advocate drastic reservations were reinforced today by Senator Spencer, Republican, of Missouri, one of the so-called "mild reservationists" who, in a spirited speech, declared that rather than accept the treaty without change, as urged by President Wilson, he would vote to reject it.

The treaty will be reported to the Senate from the Foreign Relations Committee tomorrow, with a majority report on the amendments and reservations written by Senator Lodge, and a dissenting report to be submitted by Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democratic member of the committee.

After the treaty is reported Senator Harding, Republican, of Ohio, a member of the committee, will make a speech urging ratification with the changes recommended by the committee. His speech will embrace a reply to President Wilson's criticism of the Senate opponents of the treaty.

Soon after Mr. Spencer had delivered his speech, which came as a surprise to his confrères among the "mild reservationists," a group of the latter conferred in the office of Senator Kellogg. In an interchange of opinion it developed that the "mild reservationists" were gradually swinging around to the attitude of the "conservative" element, led by Senator Lodge.

On only one reservation, it developed, was there any outstanding difference. This touched upon Article X., relating to the guarantee of territorial integrity of nations in the League. The "mild reservationists" found themselves in accord with the majority of the Foreign Relations Committee on all the others.

Later Senator Kellogg conferred with Senator Lodge, and after their talk the latter stated that the situation was "growing better every day."

Effect of the President's Attacks.

The rapid shift in the attitude of the "mild reservationists" within the last few days was attributed by one of the Republican leaders to the nature of the attacks made upon the opponents of the treaty by the President. Senators who have hesitated about following the proponents of drastic reservations to the full extent of their program, this Senator said, resented the characterization of the treaty critics as "contemptible quitters," and as those who ought to be "gibbeted."

The President's utterances on his trip, this Senator said, had had the effect of more closely uniting the forces of opposition instead of scattering them. On the only point now separating the "mild reservationists" from the others, this Senator went on to say, there undoubtedly would be a compromise that would bring every one of the forty-nine Republican Senators to the support of the entire four reservations advocated by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Leaders of the opposition to the League were encouraged today over the prospect of another recruit from the Democratic ranks in Senator Pomerene of Ohio, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee. In an interview Mr. Pomerene said that he would vote for reservations rather than see the treaty defeated.

"While I favor having the treaty ratified without change, I would accept reservations if I thought that their defeat would mean the rejection of the treaty," Mr. Pomerene said.

He intimated that he had not yet made up his mind to vote for reservations. He said he would decide what to do after the fight on the treaty had got under way.

In announcing his advocacy of strong reservations to the League of Nations covenant, Senator Spencer challenged President Wilson's assertion that the issue now before the Senate was the adoption of the treaty precisely as written or its rejection.

Treaty "A One-Man Document."

"I am frank to say, for myself, that if I were forced to make a choice between the two alternatives proposed by the President, I would vote against the treaty as it stands now," said Mr. Spencer. "The real issue before the American people is whether they prefer to take the treaty precisely as it is written or to have such reservations ingrafted as will absolutely safeguard our American rights—constitutional, domestic, and traditional—and fully protect

ARMY OF CHILDREN CHEER PERSHING AT CEREMONY IN PARK

WILL LEAD PARADE TODAY

MORE THAN 25,000 IN LINE

Men Will Wear French Helmets and Carry Full Equipment of Active Service.

Pershing's Program Today.

10 A. M.—Leads parade of his picked regiment and 1st Division down Fifth Avenue from 110th Street to Washington Square.

8 P. M.—Guest of City at dinner at Waldorf. Addresses by Secretary of War Baker, Mayor Hylan and himself.

General John J. Pershing's second day in New York was crowded with efforts by grown-ups and little ones, representatives of organized bodies, and plain private citizens, to show him the whole town stands back of the city's official hospitality. A mounting desire to see the Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces brought cheering crowds in his wake wherever he went; a manifest wish to make him feel at home brought him a variety of attentions, and offers of many more which his time made it impossible for him to accept.

Thousands of telegrams have reached his headquarters begging him to attend every sort of function imaginable, and to visit so many cities that he well might make a triumphal tour of all the States if he desired.

The General's experiences from the time the Leviathan neared the harbor on Monday had prepared him for the tone and volume of the greetings extended to him yesterday, but that he was growingly pleased at the spontaneous cordiality expressed on every hand he made plain, not only in his manner but in the few speeches he made during the day. These, like those of Monday, were short, but they never failed to win the applause of those who heard them.

The chief event of the day was a reception given to him on the Sheep Meadow in Central Park, at which 50,000 flag-waving little ones, who almost blotted out the green with their red, white and blue, raised treble cheers as Pershing called them "the future defenders of our country."

Puts in a Busy Day.

Among the General's other activities were a visit to a riding academy, where two officers of the 1st Division presented to him a horse which he will ride today in the parade down Fifth Avenue from 110th Street to Washington Square; a call on Mrs. Francis E. Warren, mother of his late wife; a reception by his brother Elks at the home of New York Lodge No. 1, and a visit to "Lightnin'" at the Gaiety Theatre, where the audience gave him the sort of rousing reception which has characterized his every appearance.

Today will be the most exacting arranged during his stay. He will lead the parade of the 1st Division and his own picked regiment, which escorted him in London and Paris, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasting probably five or six hours. He is to appear at an open-air concert by the New York Symphony in Central Park at 7 o'clock in the evening, and an hour later he is due at the Waldorf, where the city will entertain him at dinner.

Tomorrow evening he will go to Madison Square Garden to meet veterans of the war at a reunion arranged by the American Legion, and Friday morning, according to present plans, he will leave for Washington.

Though General Pershing went to Central Park specifically to receive the tribute of 50,000 children, recruited largely from public and parochial schools near the park, their elders refused to leave to them alone this splendid opportunity of seeing the man who led America's two millions in France to victory. Instead, they began crowding into the park in thousands long before he was expected.

As a result, the environs of the meadow were jammed with men and women, and despite the ropes, which had been stretched about the clear space, reserves from many stations, who reinforced the park police, were kept busy preventing them from spilling over into the meadow.

Park A-flutter With Flags.

The children began assembling long before the hour set for the ceremony. Most of them trooped in by twos and threes. Every child carried a small American flag, and many schools brought their larger school flags, so that soon the whole place was a-flutter with the colors.

The little ones looked happy and eager,

BOSTON POLICE FORCE OUT ON STRIKE; MOBS SMASH WINDOWS AND LOOT STORES; STEEL WORKERS CONFER ON STRIKE PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—When the conference of Presidents of International Unions of the Steel Industry ended here late this afternoon, the twenty-one men who attended walked out of the American Federation of Labor headquarters with grave faces. They would say nothing to indicate whether or not a general strike would be called. But it was understood that the steel men had agreed to send President Wilson a telegram asking him again if there appeared a likelihood of a meeting between the workers and Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation. The time limit for the reply would be forty-eight hours, it was said, and if the reply were negative a general strike call would be sent out immediately by a special committee of five. The strike call would take seven days to issue, it was said.

The union Presidents were bitter over the firing on strikers in Hammond, Ind., and the impression was gained that one reason they wished to find out about the possible conference was that they feared the workers would "get out of hand." There seems no doubt that the affair in Hammond had a decided effect upon the meeting today.

Another meeting will be held tomorrow, and more developments may ensue. John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who presided today, will be in charge again tomorrow. Samuel Gompers is in Dorchester, Mass., where his father, Saul Gompers, died last night. Frank Morrison, Secretary of the federation, was present at the steel conference in the forenoon, but left the city tonight for Buffalo. Including Andrew Furuseth of the Seamen's Union, representatives of the following unions were in attendance today:

Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders of America, United Brick and Clay Workers, Bricklayers, Plasterers, and Masons' International Union; Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, Coopers' International Union, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Foundry Employes, Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers; Machinists, Metal Polishers, Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers; United Mine Workers, Molders' Union, Pattern Makers' League, Plumbers and Steamfitters, Quarry Workers, Railway Carmen of America, Seamen's Union of America, Sheet Metal Workers, Stationary Firemen, Steam and Operating Engineers, Steam Shovel and Dredgemen, and Switchmen's Union.

3 STRIKERS KILLED BY POLICE SHOTS

LED BY AN EX-SOLDIER

Foreign-Born Mob Tried to Prevent Workers from Returning to Jobs at Hammond, Ind.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Three men were killed and more than a score injured, two probably fatally, in a clash today between foreign-born employes of the Standard Steel Car Company at Hammond, Ind., who are on strike, and police guarding some two hundred American workers, who, tiring of the strike, had voluntarily returned to work. The casualties were all inflicted by the police.

Tonight the roof of the Lindore Hotel in Hammond has been turned into an observation tower and a sniper's post. Many policemen and Deputy Sheriffs are there, and members of the Vigilance Committee appointed by the Mayor. They have rifles and automatic pistols, plenty of ammunition, and field glasses.

They are there to see that the foreign born employes of the Standard Steel Car Company create no such trouble tomorrow when American employes go to work as occurred today.

The Americans, 200 in number were marching down Highland Street today on their way to work. The strikers, about 800, walked six abreast toward them. Between the two groups were the police and the guards, heavily armed, in command of Captain Ben Strong and Captain F. D. Rinbach.

The foreigners, mostly Poles, were led by Thomas Skuba, who was a lieutenant in the American army. He wore his uniform and carried an American flag.

"You men will have to get out of the way," said Captain Strong, "and let these others"—pointing to the Americans coming along three blocks in the rear—"go through here."

The police say the leaders of the small army facing them were defiant; that bricks were thrown and shots fired at them; that a policeman, Fred Hestermann, suffered a dislocated shoulder, and that the strikers tried to wrest the weapons from the guards. The strikers asserted they had begun to comply with the order, that Skuba had mounted a little knoll in the sandy lot and was waving the flag when the police fired.

At any rate, the fifty policemen and guards fired with automatic pistols, shotguns, and rifles. The strikers fled, leaving many on the ground, some of them writhing, others lying still and white.

The police pursued and took some prisoners, including the man with the American flag, and the Americans passed along to work, unmolested. All the casualties, save one, were borne by the strikers.

The dead are:

Skis, Stanley, married, five children.

Dudek, Lawrence, former soldier, who served a year in France; survived by widow and two children.

Rosko, George, leaves a widow and children in Russia.

The two not expected to live are: Steve Krawcyk, shot in the chest, and Steven Evans, shot in the back.

Telegrams were sent by the strikers to Senators New and Watson, to Governor Goodrich, and to Congressmen, demanding a Congressional inquiry.

FIREMEN ADD $200 TO WAGE DEMAND

POLICE FIRM ON STAND

Patrolmen Here Report Public in Sympathy with Request for Higher Pay.

Policemen and firemen of the city held meetings yesterday, and at both the question of increased pay was further discussed. While the policemen stood pat on their request for an advance to $2,000 a year, the firemen unanimously voted to increase their application from $1,800 to $2,000, and Fire Commissioner Thomas F. Drennan was so notified.

Just as the meeting of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, called in Maennerchor Hall, 203 East Fifty-sixth Street, was started, Patrolman Joseph P. Moran, President of the organization and presiding as Chairman, was ordered to report "forthwith" at the office of Chief Inspector John Daly.

Upon his arrival at Police Headquarters Moran went into conference with the Chief Inspector. At the end of the session neither would discuss what had been the subject of the conference, but it was reported that the pay question had been reviewed, as well as the unionization of the police. It was also stated that the police heads favored granting an increase to the men and that $1,800 was the figure upon which the agitation might be ended.

The police meeting was the regular monthly meeting, but had special significance yesterday since the main business scheduled for the meeting was to hear reports from delegates appointed some time ago to canvass sentiment on the question of more pay. About three hundred policemen were present when Moran opened the meeting.

Report Sympathy for Police.

Reports also were submitted from patrolmen who had been instructed to get in touch with taxpayers on their beats in order to learn their feelings with regard to an increase of $350 yearly. Letters were read from taxpayers sympathizing with the policemen and declaring that the men were deserving of the rise.

Just before the meeting adjourned a report was received that the Uniformed Firemen's Association, Local No. 94, of the International Fire Fighters, an organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, was meeting in the Pulitzer Building. A committee of the policemen was appointed to meet a delegation of the firemen in the offices of Joseph O'Reilly at 5 Beekman Street, to formulate joint plans.

Fireman Albert Guinness of Hook and Ladder Company No. 24, in West Thirty-third Street, presided at the Pulitzer Building meeting. There were about 1,000 firemen present. A resolution raising the firemen's request from $1,800 to $2,000 maximum was introduced by Fireman William H. Taubert of Hook and Ladder Company No. 5, in Charles Street, and it was seconded by Fireman William Collins of Hook and Ladder Company No. 49, in Highbridge, the Bronx.

When Guinness polled sentiment on the resolution he failed to find a man to vote against it. Copies of the resolution were ordered forwarded to Commissioner Drennan and to Fire Chief Kenlon.

So far as could be ascertained, the firemen, as well as the police, appeared

GANGS OF BOYS LOOT SHOPS

Hoodlums Break Windows and Ring In Many False Fire Alarms.

PATROLMEN USE REVOLVERS

Disperse Mobs in Roxbury, South Boston, West End, and Other Sections of the City.

VOLUNTEERS ARE SWORN IN

Authorities and Business Houses Take Emergency Precautions to Protect Life and Property.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Boston policemen to the number of 1,500 went out on strike tonight at the 5:45 roll call, taking the drastic action long threatened, to win recognition for their newly organized union. The strike was precipitated by the suspension of 19 patrolmen found guilty by Commissioner Curtis of violating the department order against unionizing.

Free from the restraining of the law, hundreds of young gangsters and hoodlooms in a few districts proceeded at once to break windows, loot stores and cause disorder. But throughout the greater part of the city the usual peace and quiet prevailed.

On Broadway, South Boston, early in the evening a crowd of lusty lunged youngsters broke through a store window, that of the Mohican Market, grabbed up a quantity of eggs and proceeded to throw the eggs in all directions. Other gangs of boys broke a few store windows. In front of one establishment the proprietor held off the boys with a large stone.

The arrival of Superintendent of Police Crowley with a squad of sergeants and patrolmen brought an end to the disturbances in this section.

In Roxbury corner gangs held forth for hours. They did no serious damage, but store windows were broken and a few articles stolen. Up to late tonight young boys roamed at will through the streets.

On Humboldt Avenue, Roxbury, Thomas Ennis, 31, a car conductor, was shot in the leg, when a youngster armed with a 22-calibre revolver is alleged to have fired at a car "just for fun."

In the downtown section of the city just before midnight a roaming gang of boys ran amuck for a time. They started in the Casino Theatre, on Hanover Street, where they succeeded in stopping the show. Ejected, they smashed plate glass windows of a shoe store next to the theatre, stole a few pairs of shoes, entered and wrecked a cigar store at the corner of Friend and Washington Streets, then moved on to Dock Square, where they were dispersed with revolvers by employes of Arthur Dorr, provision dealer.

In the North End one or two small stores were entered and wrecked by boys.

About midnight patrolmen drew revolvers in the West End, where a howling mob marched through Court and Howard Streets and Bowdoin Square. The determined attitude of the officers had its effect and the crowd dispersed later after store windows were smashed. The police later drew their guns and forced another mob to break up, after they had fired several shots.

Along Washington Street the police, after much difficulty, broke up temporarily a large crowd, which had broken many store windows before they were charged by the patrolmen.

The Provost Guard was rushed to the city from the navy yard just at midnight in order to help quell disturbances.

Mobs Jeer All Policemen.

BOSTON, Sept. 9, (Associated Press.)—Mob violence, which chiefly took the form of window smashing, was in evidence in scattered sections of this city within a few hours after the union members of the police force went out on strike tonight. The worst disturbance was in the South Boston district.

A few windows were broken in the Dudley Street police station, in the Roxbury district, and in stores in the west and south ends, and in the retail district near Scollay Square.

Policemen, apparently without distinction as to whether they were union members, were jeered and followed by crowds, largely made up of boys, when they left their stations. Near one of the Roxbury stations boys pelted patrolmen with mud. Men in one of these crowds, which was following two police sergeants became threatening in their attitude, but when the sergeants drew their revolvers the crowd moved away. It was estimated that about 85 per cent. of the policemen joined in the strike. The streets were guarded tonight by sergeants and higher officers of the department assisted by State police and Metropolitan Park police.

The volunteer police force which has been recruited in the last few days will go on duty tomorrow morning. A few of their number able to operate automobiles were held at police stations tonight for use in case of emergency calls.

No move had been made tonight toward calling out members of the State Guard for police duty. The secretaries of both Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters intimated that no such action was likely for the present. In the West Roxbury district about 200 citizens held a meeting to discuss neighborhood protection and formed a volunteer police force of their own. Thirty men, mostly former service men, joined this force and their services were accepted at the district Police Station.

At Station 2, in the centre of the city, a broad-shouldered man more than six feet tall walked in and offered his services to the police department. He informed them that he was the owner of a cattle ranch in Oklahoma and was staying at a hotel here. A local business man went to the same station and offered the department the use of five automobiles and promised that he would give his own services tomorrow.

Three boys broke into a clothing store in the west end. They were trapped by a burglar alarm, and one of them was captured.

In the Roxbury district some one placed an obstruction in a street railway switch. As a result a car was derailed and traffic was tied up for some time, but no one was hurt.

The striking patrolmen held a meeting tonight at the headquarters of the Carmen's Union. It was said that they were discussing the method of conducting the strike, but nothing was made public as to the proceedings.

Police Commissioner Curtis, whose order suspending nineteen members of the force for joining the union, precipitated the strike, had no statement to make tonight.

No action toward starting any sympathetic strikes had been taken tonight. A number of labor unions, however, had previously voted to adopt this course, if considered necessary, in support of the police.

Police Fire in the Air.

More window smashing was done about midnight, and considerable property was stolen from small stores. On Court Street a crowd which had gathered after a false alarm of fire broke in the show windows of several small establishments and helped themselves to articles on display. An army truck with police inspectors and Metropolitan Park patrolmen was rushed to the scene and succeeded in scattering the crowd after firing a few shots in the air.

About a dozen windows were smashed on Washington Street, in the heart of the business district, and on Avery Street, near Washington, several more were broken. In all these cases goods were stolen. The hoodlums appeared to be especially partial to shoes and clothing which were on display.

Several business men who had been informed of the situation came into the city late tonight and took personal charge of arrangements to guard their stores. Many of the stores were lighted up throughout and goods were removed from the show windows.

It is estimated that thousands of dollars' worth of goods have been stolen. A number of stores broken into carried window displays of expensive articles.

After the close of the policemen's union meeting tonight John F. McInnes, President of the Union, said that a group of twenty pickets for each police station had been appointed to do duty in groups of five and to be relieved every four hours. He said that more than 1,400 men were on strike.

Mayor Peters issued the following proclamation tonight:

"In the present situation I call upon the citizens to do their part to assist the authorities in maintaining order. The security of the city depends upon the good intentions of its people, and I am confident that the law-abiding, orderly citizens of Boston will insist that order is maintained and will support the constituted authorities."

Supt. Crowley said late tonight:

"If any one had told me that anything like this could happen in Boston I would not have believed him. I certainly sympathize with the business men."

The union members of the force went on strike in fulfillment of their threat to walk out if Police Commissioner Curtis disciplined any of their number for joining the union. They reported at the evening roll call, turned in their equipment, and proceeded to Fay Hall, in the South End, for a meeting.

Fay Hall is the headquarters of the Boston Carmen's Union, and the policemen's union has met there since its formation a few weeks ago. It was understood that the strikers were to receive full instructions from their leaders tonight as to how they should conduct themselves.

Several hours before the strike went into effect it was known to the authorities that it could not be averted. Preparations were hastily completed for carrying out emergency measures for the protection of life and property. Superintendent of Police Crowley said that more than 500 men had been recruited for a volunteer police force.

Instructing Volunteers.

The volunteers, the Superintendent said, had been sworn in as special officers, and when called for duty would be equipped with badges and revolvers, and those on night service would be given clubs. For several days former Superintendent Pierce, assisted by Police Captains has been instructing the volunteers in police duties.

All the able-bodied men among the 200 retired patrolmen were available for service. Governor Coolidge instructed 100 Metropolitan Park policemen to report for duty in the city, and State police officers were detailed to keep a sharp watch for criminals who might attempt to take advantage of the situation to enter the city.

Banks and large business houses have organized guards from among their employes, many of whom are returned service men. These guards have been made special policemen and armed. Federal authorities have taken precautions for the guarding of all Government property.

There are 1,544 patrolmen, including special officers, in the Police Department. The announcement of the union strike vote showed that 1,136 men had participated in the balloting, and union leaders claim a still larger membership. The ninety-six Captains, Inspectors, Lieutenants, and Sergeants are not affected by the strike.

President Lowell of Harvard University when notified that the strike was impending, issued an appeal to all students "to prepare themselves for such service as the Governor may call upon them to render." An emergency committee, headed by Dean Greenough, was organized late today and began the enrolling of volunteers.

Although the university has not opened for its regular work, several hundred students are attending Summer school sessions. In addition a large squad of athletes is in Cambridge participating in football practice.

The immediate cause of the strike is the refusal of Commissioner Curtis to sanction the Policemen's Union because of its affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. Before its formation he had issued an order that hte patrolmen should not become affiliated with any outside organization. Charges of having violated this order were brought against nineteen officers and members of the union.

Voted 1,134 to 2 for Strike.

The Commissioner announced yesterday that these men had been found guilty and would be suspended until such time as he should impose sentence upon them. The union voted last night 1,134 to 2 to call the strike tonight.

Under the law the State Guard may be called out to protect the city either by the Governor or the Mayor. The Governor may do so as Commander in Chief of the State forces, the Mayor by issuing precepts to the Commanders of such State troops as are located within the city limits. It was said, authoritatively, that the Mayor undoubtedly would issue such precepts, and that the Governor might call upon State Guard organizations in adjoining cities to report for duty in Boston.

For two weeks it had been known that members of the underworld were slipping into the city in anticipation of a policeman's strike and inspectors of the department were specially detailed to prepare to cope with this menace. Jewelry stores last night withdrew the usual window displays and safes in many cases were empty, with the doors open, the funds having been deposited with banks for safekeeping.

The presence in the city of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, because of the death last night of his father, Saul Gompers, was learned of by union leaders who said that he probably would be called upon for advice and assistance.

Governor Coolidge announced his refusal today to accede to the demand of the State Branch, American Federation of Labor, for the removal of Commissioner Curtis. "I know of no reason for the removal of the Commissioner," he said, "and if he were removed, of course I would have no authority to reinstate the men."

COAL MINERS WANT WAGE RATE REVISED

LEADER ASSAILS RADICALS

Nationalization of the Mines, It Was Declared, Will Not Be Considered at Present.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 9.—Demand for wage increases and shorter hours, strong insistence that these claims which had been deferred during the war could no longer be delayed, but must be forced through to a successful issue, dominated the deliberations of the opening session of the convention of the United Mine Workers of America here today. Over 2,000 delegates, constituting the largest miners' convention in the history of the organization, applauded sentence by sentence the declarations of Acting President John L. Lewis that with the war practically over the miners could no longer be bound by wage agreements concluded for the period of hostilities, but must press demands which would have been pressed to a decision long since had it not been for reluctance to embarrass the Government during the war.

His declaration that no interference could be tolerated from any agency seeking to prevent the accomplishment of the miners' program was received with the same enthusiasm as was his expression of fullest confidence that the miners' efforts would be successful, even in the face of strong opposition and anticipated public criticism from various quarters.

Second only to wage demands in evoking applause were references to the high cost of living, a burst of general handclapping greeting the first use of this phase in the President's report. Hearty enthusiasm too was evoked by uncompromising denunciations by various speakers of the principal of compulsory arbitration as embodied in the Cummings bill, which Mr. Lewis characterized as an attempt to reintroduce conditions of economic slavery which labor interests could never permit.

The question of the nationalization of coal mines, on the other hand, was evidently a question of less burning interest. It was declared the present Congress would be unable to give serious consideration to this doctrine in the presence of more urgent problems.

Denounces Red Movements.

No dissent was heard when President Lewis denounced the I. W. W., the "One Big Union" and similar movements as based upon "fantastical ideas of misguided enthusiasts and mercenary enemies of the trade union movement," and "day dreams of visionaries." If sympathizers with these movements were present they remained silent.

The whole day was devoted to the opening addresses of welcome, some preliminaries of organization, and to the reports of President Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer William Green. The convention continues tomorrow and succeeding days, the delegates having adopted a six-hour working day which it is anticipated will bring the deliberations to an end in about a fortnight. Important issues will be reached comparatively late in the convention, the report of the Committee on Resolutions having been placed seventh upon the order of business, while the all-important report of the Scale Committee, which will formulate the amount of the wage increases to be demanded, is next to the last event upon the scheduled program.

The convention was called to order by H. W. Raisse on behalf of the Cleveland Federation of Labor, and short speeches of welcome were delivered by Mayor Harry L. Davis of Cleveland, John M. Owens, Secretary of the Cleveland Federation of Labor, and Thomas J. Donnelly of Toledo, representing the Ohio Federation. Of greater significance on the opening program, however, in view of the desire to secure the support of organized labor everywhere for the Plumb Plan for the nationalization of the railways, was the presence upon it of Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; Timothy J. Shea, acting President of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and W. G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who at a late hour had been added to those to extend a welcome to the convention.

President Shea of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, as expected, brought in the question of the nationalization of railroads, evoking rounds af applause, showing that delegates of the convention were thoroughly in accord with his demand for united labor support to force through the Plumb plan for nationalization. He declared that in some form or other the Plumb plan was ultimately bound to be accepted. He denied charges that railway employes had received disproportionately high wage increases to the disadvantage of other classes of labor, and criticised President Wilson's demand for postponement of wage increases to await the issue of attempts to reduce the high cost of living, suggesting as the better alternative immediate increases subject to later modification in case of decided reduction in prices of the necessities of life.

The miners also broke into hearty cheers at Mr. Shea's denunciation of the proposal in Congress to introduce compulsory arbitration for railwaymen.

Wants Labor to Enter Politics.

President Stone of the engineers' brotherhood suggested joint political action as the best means for labor to enforce its demands and secure improved conditions of labor. Strikes, he said, were all very well in their way, but the best place to strike was at the ballot box. Time had come to vote for the man rather than for the party and to turn down the legislator who failed to meet expectations. All labor, he declared, was vitally interested in the deliberations of the convention because a coal strike, if it came, would mean the suspension of all forms of employment as soon as stocks of fuel were exhausted.

President Lee of the trainmen's brotherhood outlined as the aim of the railroad brotherhoods conditions under which labor could earn enough in eight hours twenty-six days in the month to permit it to live in comfort twenty-four hours a day during the entire month.

Secretary-Treasurer William Green reported that the average membership of the United Mine Workers of America in 1919 constituted the high-water record in the history of the organization, an average of 434,967 names having been carried on the rolls during the first nine months of 1919. The financial condition of the organization, too, was stronger than ever before, the international union being entirely out of debt and carrying in its treasury over $1,728,000. Such a strong treasury, said Mr. Green, was bound to have a favorable moral effect during the wage scale negotiations such as were now impending. Resolutions on this subject, submitted by the local unions, showed that the men were filled with a grim determination to secure shorter hours of labor, increases in wages, and improved conditions of employment.

The United Miners, he declared, had during the war not only arisen to the occasion in furnishing troops, reports from three-fourths of the local unions in the United States showing enlistments of 53,812 members, of whom 3,333 laid down their lives, but had met their financial obligations loyally, the international and local unions having collectively purchased more than $9,800,000 in Liberty bonds and War Savings Stamps. Similar patriotic effort was shown in the production of coal, which steadily increased from 590,000,000 tons in 1916 to 651,000,000 in 1917 and 684,000,000 in 1918.

Among the resolutions which will cause most discussion are several calling for immediate ratification of the treaty of peace, together with one opposing participation in the League of Nations. Other resolutions submitted for consideration furnish abundant material for discussion of practically all pending political questions connected with the war and readjustment to peace conditions.

CARDINAL MERCIER ARRIVES IN NEW YORK

people, both Catholic and Protestant, to convey to the people of America their gratitude and my admiration and love because of what you have done for us all. I feel that my arrival here is one of the greatest events of my life, and I only wish that I could, at least in part, express the gratitude of Belgium to America and her people.

"I want to say, however," the Cardinal continued, speaking earnestly, "that my people want to begin to work for themselves again. They want to take up their industrial life as soon as possible. Many of them are idle against their will because the factories in Belgium were scientifically destroyed by the Germans—one of their worst crimes against humanity and one that the people of Belgium will never forget. We want machinery and we want raw materials, and we know that America will help us to help ourselves; to get back to our industry again. I hope that our two nations, one so weak and the other so strong, will walk together hand in hand, the weak supported by the friendship of your wonderful Republic. It is a remarkable ending of a delightful voyage in the company of your noble soldiers returning from a task well done. I could not even imagine the magnificent reception that has been tendered to me tonight. I have wanted to come here for a long time—I have yearned to tell you people of my love and esteem. I should like to go everywhere in America from the Atlantic to the Pacific to express my thoughts to the people, but I cannot go everywhere, and the newspapers must convey my message for me.

"I have followed the magnificent record of your armies. Then there is the great work of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, who prevented the Germans from taking all the food away from the people. They took a great deal as it was, but the commission prevented thousands of Belgians from dying of starvation. It was a magnificent service and one we Belgians shall never forget."

"What do you think about the chances of another war in Europe?" he was asked.

"If an attack is made upon France it will be also upon Belgium because we are in the way. You can be sure there will be another war. Germany is already preparing for a war of revenge. She is defeated and talks of peace but the spirit of the country is just the same. Again I can only say to you to tell the American people that I thank them all for what they have done from the bottom of my heart."

The Cardinal dined informally at the Archbishop's residence and will leave at 12:20 o'clock today for Baltimore over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He said he had met Cardinal Gibbons once before in Europe when the American went to attend the elevation of the present Pope in Rome.

He added, with a twinkle in his brown eyes, an incident of the occasion when Cardinal Gibbons visited him in his palace at Malines, half way between Brussels and Antwerp. "The Cardinal is much shorter and older than I am," he said, "but as we walked the station platform together waiting for the train his steps were twice as lively as mine and I had quite a task to keep up with him."

Cardinal Mercier will see a part of the parade today from the front of the Cathedral in Fifth Avenue before he leaves for Baltimore. After dinner last night he went over the Cathedral with Archbishop Hayes and admired the building.

The Cardinal was accompanied on the Northern Pacific by the Belgian Ambassador, Baron Emile de Cartier de Marcienne, who was Minister at Washington until he went home five months ago.

To Arrange Royal Visit.

The Ambassador said that he had come over to arrange for the reception of the King and Queen of the Belgians, who will sail on Sept. 22. "The King and Queen will be accompanied," he continued, "by their eldest son, the Duc de Brabant, who is an officer in the army and is 18 years old. The second son, the Count de Flandres, is 14 years old, and will remain at home. The King is looking forward with great interest to his trip to America to make known his gratitude to the President and to the whole American people for what they have done for him and for his country in the time of need.

"He knows the United States, as he spent six months here twenty years ago and went all over the country, which he will not have the time to do now. His eyes will be open to see everything of interest in connection with the reconstruction work to be done in Belgium. He realizes that America is first and foremost in industry, and that is why he looks for aid and counsel on his visit here. I think that their Majesties will remain about one month. The Queen has never been to America before."

The Ambassador said that food conditions were better now in Belgium and that the reconstruction work was progressing steadily and the men were returning to work as fast as the factories could be put into order.

Among the personal suite with the Cardinal were the Bishop de Wachter, Chief Chaplain of the army, and Professor M. de Wulff, who succeeded the Primate in the Chair of History and Philosophy in the University of Louvain.

to have no intention of resorting to strike methods to obtain their demands, the men appearing confident that the Board of Estimate would act favorably upon their applications.

Before the resolution was adopted, speeches were made dealing with the high cost of living, cost of uniforms, matrons' fees and other expenses which the uniformed men are required to shoulder. The wording of the resolution was exactly the same as the one put before the Board of Estimate in June last, when the firemen applied for a maximum wage of $1,800 yearly.

Another resolution that went through the meeting without a vote of nay was an unqualified and complete indorsement of the firemen's leaders. The document pledged to the leaders financial and moral support in the event that their activities in "honorable and justified agitation in behalf of their comrades" brought down upon them official disapproval.

One of the speakers at the meeting, which was a closed one, was Thomas G. Spellacy, President of the International Fire Fighters. It was said that Spellacy touched upon the excessive cost of necessaries and alluded to the thousands of dollars disbursed by the city authorities in parade decorations, while the firemen and policemen continued underpaid. He was also credited with a few remarks on the exchanging of official compliments, "but that doesn't buy butter at 74 cents a pound."

"The firemen will be given a full opportunity at the right time in the very near future to present their case to the Board of Estimate," said Commissioner Drennan, when he was told of the action of the uniformed men. He declined to discuss the matter further than that. He said, however, that Mayor Hylan would be glad to hear the firemen, providing they remained "firemen," and that he would deal with them on the same status. The Commissioner said he thought the men were taking a wrong course in inducing citizens to write letters to the City Hall in behalf of their pay application.

"Mayor Hylan," he added, "is fully cognizant of their condition, and it is up to the firemen to present their case and talk across the table to the Board of Estimate, backed up with facts and figures in support of their arguments for an increase in salary."

OPPOSES LOCAL PRESSMEN.

Printing Company Says It Will Only Take Back International Members.

The Publishers' Printing Company, 207 West Twenty-fifth Street, where about 100 pressmen and feeders of Franklin Union, No. 23, and Printing Pressmen's Union, No. 51, went on strike Monday, decided late yesterday afternoon, according to a statement of Aaron Gantz, the Treasurer, not to take back any of the strikers as members of these locals, but only as members of the International Pressmen's Union. He said that the work on the Literary Digest and other publications printed by the company was up to the schedule maintained before the strike, and he thought there would be no delay of any of the publicatiins.

that statute has been construed by the Court of Appeals.

"Furthermore, you seek to create the impression that I am delaying or attempting to delay the action of the courts in passing upon the question of this commission's powers. You have had ample opportunity in the past, if your advisers reached the conclusion that I am exceeding my powers, to question the legality of my actions. I have already decided the application of the New York & North Shore Traction Company.

"If you seriously question my power or my duty to act in that particular instance, you have a concrete case, in which all the facts are presented, in which you may apply to the court and obtain a legal adjudication of this commission's powers. And the commission will not only welcome such a controversy, but it will also gladly co-operate with you in securing a speedy determination. Thus far you have done nothing. To repeat, I am ready and willing to expedite the determination of these questions, and will exert all my power to do so.

"You have by court order secured the temporary suspension of a definite duty of this commission. This is done either to avoid my acting as a result of such hearing, after a refusal to act on your part, or because you wish to avoid the responsibility of taking action yourself."

Mayor to Citizens Union.

Mayor Hylan issued the following statement yesterday in answer to a question as to what he thought about the threat of the Citizens Union to have him removed from office because he opposed fare increases:

> The Citizens Union is composed really of only three men, William J. Schieffelin, their counsel, Wallstein, who was formerly Commissioner of Accounts, and the Secretary, Mr. Arndt, their mouthpiece, who threatens to have public officials removed from office if they do not favor an increased fare for the traction companies.
> The Citizens Union, run by these three men, is evidently in sympathy with the traction interests. If a member of the Board of Aldermen or a member of the Assembly or Senate does not vote as the Citizens Union thinks he should vote, then they abuse him in the public press. If the Mayor of the city does not favor an increased fare, they likewise abuse him and threaten to have him removed from office. Such methods to force public officials to do their bidding through fear of removal from public office are reprehensible.

Walter Arndt, Secretary of the Citizens Union, replied to Mayor Hylan last night in a statement in which he accused the Mayor of asking himself the question of removal. Mr. Arndt declared that the Citizens Union had made no such threat nor suggested any ground for the removal of the Mayor. The Union did say, according to the Secretary, that if the Mayor persisted in his refusal to co-operate with Commissioner Nixon in solving the traction problem, the Governor might have to consider whether by reason of that and evidences of unfitness for office the Mayor should not be removed.

Peter J. Brady, Secretary of the Mayor's Non-Partisan Vigilance Committee, yesterday reiterated his charge that there was speculation in Wall Street in traction securities prior to the statement of Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer on Sunday last setting forth the financial situation of the city's traction companies and the necessity for higher fares.

our independence of action as a nation in the future. It is not unfair to state in the light of known facts that the treaty of peace which we are now considering is peculiarly, and it seems to me unfortunately, so far as the United States is concerned, a one-man document.

"It does not necessarily follow that because a treaty has been the result of the judgment and will of a single man that it ought to be rejected, but it certainly is true that there can be no just complaint if such a one-man treaty is subjected to the most careful examination and consideration, and particularly when, as in the present instance, it is a treaty that concerns the interests of this country and the welfare of the world more greatly than any document ever before penned by the hand of man."

Going into the treaty provision by which the former German rights in the Shantung Peninsula were awarded to Japan, Senator Spencer declared that it was inconceivable that the President, "after announcing his lofty ideas of the great principles that should control the Peace Conference," had failed to demand the elimination of that provision from the treaty. This, he said, the President should have done after he discovered the existence of the secret treaties respecting Shantung between Great Britain, France and Japan.

"In view of the commanding importance of the United States at the Peace Conference," Senator Spencer said, "such a demand by the President would have been complied with, and we would have been saved the humiliating disgrace of having our representatives voluntarily enter into an arrangement which they themselves were unable to defend, and which the nation looks upon with shame.

"I say with all the conviction in my power that the treaty of peace as it is now written will never be ratified by the Senate of the United States, and that before it ever receives the sanction of the representatives of the people, here assembled, reservations similar in effect to those which the Committee on Foreign Relations has already reported must be inseparably interwoven with the ratification itself.

"Concerning the inherent merit of the reservations themselves there can be no difference of opinion. Every one of them announces an American doctrine which is essential to the preservation of the Republic. The principles they enunciate are principles about which, as Americans, we are all agreed. The only answer that has been made or that can be made to them is either that they are unnecessary, because the rights which they seek to protect are already safeguarded in the treaty itself, or because to engraft them in the ratification would create complications with other nations more disastrous than the advantage of the reservations could possibly be.

"The answer to the first proposition is simple and complete. If there is no objection to the inherent merit of the principles announced by the reservations, then, at the most, they can be nothing more than mere surplusage, amplifying or elucidating that which is already provided in the treaty itself. The principles safeguarded by these reservations are not protected in the treaty as it is now written.

"The essential rights of our country are in real, not imagined, jeopardy by the existing provisions of the League of Nations. Not alone because of that candor and fairness which is due to other nations, but in order to insure confidence and understanding at home, it is essential that our established rights be indicated in language that cannot be misunderstood.

"The answer to the second defense is precisely the same. I believe and assert that reservations concerning our right of withdrawal, the safeguarding of the Monroe Doctrine and the protection of our domestic and internal affairs and our position before the world, and that no other nation or combination of nations can ever be allowed to dictate when or where an American soldier or sailor shall be sent are necessary. These principles are jeopardized by the treaty as it is now written; and, whatever may be the complications that may result from insisting upon such vital rights, such complications fade into insignificance in comparison with our essential duty to safeguard our own country.

"I cannot see any delay or complication that ought to follow from American safeguarding reservations. If, as the President declares, the principles of these reservations are already written into the treaty as it now stands and are accepted by every other nation, certainly there can be neither delay nor complications in any consent, either by express approval or by acquiescence to reservations which express in clearer terms that to which the nations have already consented.

"Those who agree to the provisions of the League of Nations which bind us to preserve the territorial integrity of every other signatory nation doubtless had in view solely the danger which would result from any armed attempt to encroach upon the territory of other and probably weaker nations; but they failed entirely to recognize that territorial possession may be acquired by purchase or agreement, and that such territorial acquisition may jeopardize the very existence of our Government."

Senator Spencer went on to say that Japan has long been anxious to buy Lower California and declared:

"If such a purchase either has been completed or is accomplished in the future, it inevitably follows that Lower California has become, or will become, a part of the territorial integrity of Japan.

"The moment the United States finds out in the future that Japan has acquired possession or is beginning to send troops or vessels to Lower California, that moment an American army would be started on its way to drive out the Japanese. Under Article X., when Japan saw the advancing American soldiers and the smoke of the oncoming American fleet she would at once cry out to England, France, and Belgium to come to her assistance as against the United States. If England, France, and Belgium were true to their pledged word in this League they would be bound to grant to Japan that co-operation which she demanded. We would be recreant to the established policy of our country if we allowed any such provision to remain in any covenant of the League of Nations to which our signatures were attached."

DENIES GERMAN INTRIGUES.

Chinese Peace Delegates Say Peking Has Not Been Approached.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Upon receipt of detailed official information this afternoon from Peking, the Chinese delegation in Paris denies the Reuter dispatch from Tokio published by the European and British press a week ago to the effect that German agents in China are urging the Chinese Government to resist all overtures from Japan for negotiations regarding a Shantung settlement.

According to the Tokio dispatch, Germany is promising large rewards to China if the United States Senate reverses the Versailles Treaty provision regarding Shantung, naming China instead of Japan as beneficiary and if China restores Kiao-Chau and the other Shantung concessions to Germany. This is denied absolutely by the Chinese delegation and is denounced as a falsehood manufactured in Tokio for the purpose of creating anti-Chinese sentiment in America.

"There are no German agents in Peking," a member of the delegation assured me today. "After China's declaration of war the Chinese Government at once took steps for the deportation of all enemy aliens from Chinese territory, which continued even after the signing of the armistice in November. Every possible source of German propaganda in China has thus been eliminated. If there are German agents who desire to urge China about the Shantung question they have not yet reached Peking, but are evidently sojourning in Tokio at present.

"The purpose inspiring the circulation of the Tokio statement would be plain if we should recall that when Viscount Ishii asked America to recognize Japan's special interests in China he also argued that such recognition by America would carry a long way in defeating German machinations. In reality, however, as the former Russian Minister in Peking, Krupensky, reported to his Government at the time, Japan was less interested in German machinations than in the establishment and consolidation of her power over China."

STRIKE STOPS WEDDINGS.

Burials, Too, Impossible in Sixty-eight Parisian Suburbs.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The municipal employes and workmen in sixty-eight of the Paris suburbs went on strike this morning for improved conditions.

This will suspend the marriage and burial services in the case of people living in the suburbs. Probably the water supply will be cut off, as the employes of the water company are reported to have decided to strike simultaneously with the municipal employes.

STRIKERS RUSH FACTORY.

Sheriffs with Rifles Awe Men at Michelin Tire Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 9.—Sheriff Charles Anderson of Middlesex County was again summoned to Milltown today as a result of rioting by strikers at the Michelin Tire Company plant.

Following an announcement by the company that work would be resumed tomorrow, strikers tried to rush the factory. They were driven off by 100 deputy sheriffs armed with rifles, but no shots were fired. Five strikers, arrested yesterday for rioting, were sentenced today to serve from two to six months in jail.

LABOR MEN HEAR DE VALERA

Massachusetts A. F. of L. Asks Recognition of Irish Republic.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Sept. 9.—The State branch of the American Federation of Labor in annual session here gave Eamonn De Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," an enthusiastic welcome today. He was escorted from the station to the hall, where he was cheered wildly.

Addressing the delegates, he urged recognition of the "republic" by the United States and asserted that present international law was "a rule of robbers among themselves."

The convention adopted a resolution requesting Congress to recognize the Irish Republic and appointed a committee to urge Senators and Congressmen to vote for recognition.

POSTAL EMPLOYES PRESENT WAGE PLEA

Clerks, Carriers, and Postmasters of Two States Meet with Congressional Commission.

SAY EXPENSES EXCEED PAY

Clerks Recommend Minimum Salary of $1,500—Ask Salary for Substitutes.

Postal employes from this State and New Jersey appeared before the Congressional Joint Commission on Postal Salaries at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday to urge an increase in their pay.

Mail carriers, clerks, and Postmasters told the committee that the present salaries did not pay living expenses, and that postal employes had to go in debt in order to live.

The committee, of which Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama is Chairman, began yesterday a series of hearings on postal salaries which will be held all over the country. The other members are Representative John A. Moon of Tennessee, Vice Chairman; Senators Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, Edward J. Gay of Louisiana, Thomas Sterling of South Dakota, George H. Moses of New Hampshire, and Representatives Thomas N. Bell of Georgia, A. B. Rouge of Kentucky, Helvar Steenerson of Minnesota, and Martin B. Madden of Illinois.

Peter J. Vandernott, President of the Letter Carriers' Association of this city, asserted that although the average pay of postal employes was but $1,045, the average expenses totaled $1,647. He submitted the following estimate of living expenses:

Food, at home	$843 a year
Food, at work	35 a year
Clothing	165 a year
Winter uniform	35 a year
Summer uniform	27 a year
Lodge dues	8 a year
Light and fuel	52 a year
Doctor's services	47 a year
Carfares	15 a year
Household repairs	31 a year
Incidentals	25 a year
Rent	284 a year

Mr. Vandernoot declared that at present there were but twenty-eight applications in this city to go into the service, as compared with 2,000 a year ago.

Abolition of the system of employing substitutes as Post Office clerks was urged by C. P. Francis, speaking for the New York Post Office Clerks' Association. He said that there are about 1,800 such substitutes in New York who receive no regular salaries but were on call at any hour of the day or night. He asked a minimum wage for substitutes.

Mr. Francis recommended a minimum salary of $1,500 for postal clerks, with a maximum of $2,300. Promotion from $1,500 salaries should be made in yearly increases of $200, in his opinion. He said that in addition to their eight hours of actual employment as clerks the men were obliged to study two hours a day to become familiar with railroad and steamship connections and other matters connected with their duties.

"Many employes are obliged to get outside employment in order to get the necessities of life for their families," Mr. Francis asserted.

Frank T. Bent, speaking for the clerks of Buffalo, said that the cost of living there had increased 84 per cent. in the last four years, while his salary had increased only 10 per cent. Mr. Bent said that he had to work spare hours delivering special delivery mail to make enough to live on.

"I receive about $4 a day," said John Z. Adams of Brooklyn. "I am a special clerk with twenty-four years' experience behind me. I could go out as a window cleaner and get $6 a day, or I could get $50 a week as a milk wagon driver."

Half of the pay of rural carriers was expended in the upkeep of equipment, William J. Fairbairn, President of the New York Federation of Rural Carriers, said. In his own case, he said, he made $2.30 a day, after deducting expenses. He urged that the length of rural routes be limited to twenty-four miles.

Several second and third-class Postmasters told the committee that their present salaries did not pay them for the work they did. A. B. Dewey, Postmaster at Tully, N. Y., said he got $1,500 a year and had an allowance of $480 for clerk hire. Actually, he said, he paid $720 for clerk hire. Moreover, he asserted, he had to give all his time to the work. N. E. Henry of Farmersville said that fourth class Postmasters in this State had actually conducted business at a loss, which they had to make up.

Stephen Baldwin of the Tompkins Square Post Office, this city, which handles $5,000,000 a year, said he got only $2,000, although he had been in the service forty-two years. He said he had not an advance since 1898. He urged higher pay for his clerks.

The railway postal clerks' case was presented by J. F. Bennett and Charles W. Lahr. Mr. Lahr said that the poor pay is resulting in deterioration of the service. Other spokesmen appeared for the laborers, the mechanics, the chauffeurs, the printers, and the supervisory employes.

The commission was in session all day, after which it adjourned to meet at Boston tomorrow.

MEXICANS IN REVOLT ASK FOR A HEARING

SUGGEST A CONFERENCE

Carranza's Misrule, They Say, Has Brought Present Crisis, While They Want Friendly Co-operation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The chieftains of various factions now opposing the Carranza Government of Mexico have addressed an appeal to President Wilson and the people of the United States, in which they ask a hearing for their cause and the friendly co-operation of the United States for the settlement of the Mexican troubles. The appeal suggests that a conference of all organized factions in Mexico be called by President Wilson.

"To the President and the People of the United States of America, Our Neighboring Republic:

"In this hour of crisis, when it is held in the balance of the fates whether our country shall live as an independent sovereign nation, we make you this Appeal:

"For over six years our country has been torn by civil strife, for five of those six years a large part of its territory has been the prey of the most cruel and brutal tyranny our country has had to endure in all the past century of its efforts toward freedom.

"In 1914, after the overthrow of Huerta, Venustiano Carranza, as First Chief of the Army named 'Constitutionalist' because the object whereby it sought the co-operation of the whole country was the restoration of the constitutional order broken by usurpation, with the return to a lawful régime under that Constitution which cost so many lives and so many years of struggle before it came into being as the Palladium of our Liberties—Venustiano Carranza, we say, was then offered the support of the country, tendering him the Provisional Presidency and calling upon him for the immediate convocation of national elections, and the submission to the coming Congress and the several States, in due and constitutional form, of whatever legislative reforms the condition of the country demanded.

"Refusing everything but the Provisional Presidency, which he promptly expanded by his own sole autocratic decree into omnipotent powers, legislative and judicial, as well as executive, Venustiano Carranza made himself the actual irresponsible dictator of Mexico to a degree that is paralleled by no previous instance in our entire history.

"Annulling by the stroke of his pen that Constitution he had sworn to defend and restore, he proclaimed a 'new thing' in the affairs of States, a 'pre-constitutional period,' wherein by the power of the sword and bullet alone, in a country of peaceful citizens deprived by his decree of even the smallest weapon of self-defense against that 'banditry' he claimed to be resisting, he and his adherents set out to fasten laws and regulations violative of every sort of justice and right, for the sole profit and enrichment of his civil and military supporters. With the most unbelievable shamelessness, in a so-called democracy, a so-called Government for the benefit and protection of the 'oppressed,' decrees were issued depriving all save his own supporters of even the semblance of the right of suffrage. Elections through his whole period, in those few cases where they have been ostentatiously held, have been the veriest farces.

"At the end of 1914 and the beginning of 1915, while still holding only a part of the national territory, and himself remaining in Vera Cruz, he and his adherents consummated an offensive and defensive alliance, by formal signed conventions, with that organization of international opposition to democratic and free institutions known by the support of the majority, known now in various countries as Bolshevists, Syndicalists, Spartacides, I. W. W., and, among us, the Casa del Obrero Mundial.

Carranza and Germany.

"At the same period, Carranza, guided by his personal feelings against the allied nations, entered into relations with Germany; at the same time, with the German Minister there came German emissaries preaching then, four years ago, all the radical anti-social doctrines of the extreme Left today, just as two years later similar German emissaries carried the same doctrines of anti-democracy and destruction to Russia.

"Throughout the entire period of the great war Venustiano Carranza, with his circle of adherents, Salvador Alvarado, Pablo Gonzalez, Alvaro Obregon, Luis Cabrera, Candido Aguilar, and many others, made a mockery of Mexico's pretended neutrality, gave all possible aid and comfort to the German side, and promised full future alliance, military and commercial; thus compromising the honor and safety of the country and the peace of the Western world in his insane and despotic plans.

"During these six years our country has been reduced to the lowest abyss of misery. Nowhere in territory which can be reached by the armed bands of Carrancistas, masquerading as 'bandits' or as 'constitutionalists' in turn, is life or honor or property safe. Production and all the course of business are almost at a standstill; our railroads do not run, save on a few lines, where all the remaining equipment is concentrated. With a budget nearly twice that of the nation ten years ago, two-thirds of the revenues go into the maintenance of this army of depredation, the great part of the whole passing by padded payrolls into the pockets of the higher officers; while throughout the whole country, wherever the control of Carrancismo reaches, to live by license has become the normal mode. We are facing years or decades to re-establish and make sane the general order, and bring about again the habits of peace and order in life.

"Our school teachers are reduced to actual starvation, being kept for months without even the pittance assigned them for their part in the social work, the hope of the future state, while for every one in the protected circle of military and civil authorities there is the most complete immunity for any possible form of crime against person or property. The mere catalogue of the unpunished crimes openly committed by these high and low officials and officers, from burglary, highway robbery, murder and attacks upon women, to 'banditry' and the mose shameless graft and looting of the public treasury, would fill a volume. The resources of the country are stripped bare.

"At this time also, following a long period of illegal and despotic confiscations of foreign-owned properties, formerly in production, to the enrichment of our country, the violation of treaty guaranteed rights of those who had been invited by the credit and faith of the nation to cast their lot among us for residence or business, and the murder of many hundreds of foreign citizens, we are oppressed by an accentuation of all these conditions that threaten the very life of the nation, destroyed by its self-constituted masters.

"The so-called Government of Carranza does not control more than a fraction of the territory of the country. With control of the main ports and the railway lines and equipment, and thus controlling the wires and the mails, it is able to make a show of administration through the republic. Along these lines and in the towns and cities held in this way, the rule is that of armed soldiery in an unarmed and defenseless populace—the rule of terror.

"Away from these railroad lines and where the Carranza soldiers cannot pass save in major force, Mexicans of every rank have united for their own protection and that of their homes and laws, under different leaders. Such organized protecting and defensive bodies of citizen soldiery have maintained themselves intact through these years of trial; and though with scanty resources, with no help or support from abroad, or any ability owing to international neutrality laws to bring in any form of supplies, for which indeed they have lacked and do still lack the resources for payment, these bodies do now control and protect the greater part of the national territory.

"In the latter months of 1914, when Venustiano Carranza refused the proffered support of the entire nation for a restoration at once of the constitutional order, and, finding himself outnumbered in the convention of his own calling, retired to Vera Cruz to proclaim himself sole dictator and legislator for the Mexican people, with his syndicalist and German allies, he was disavowed by Emiliano Zapata and Francisco Villa, with their supporters in the South and in the North. Although Carranza was enabled some months later to take the capital, and then, supported by the main arteries of import and the resources of the country, was able to extend his régime of destruction, military oppression, and robbery throughout the republic, these two forces have maintained themselves unconquered through the ensuing five years to the present.

State of Oaxaca Revolts.

"In July, 1915, aroused to her own self-defense against these attacks upon law and life and by the usurpation effected in the proclamation of 'the Pre-Constitutional Period,' the free and sovereign State of Oaxaca reassumed her sovereignty under the constitution until order and the constitutional régime could be again established in the nation. From that time to the present this State has continued in the lawful and constitutional administration of the greatest part of her territory under the lawful State authorities duly and constitutionally elected in December, 1914, and by the aid and services, and the lives of her sons, has defended herself and them.

"In 1914, for the purpose of ending this era of usurpation and of fulfilling the obligation resting on all Mexicans to sustain and restore the Constitution which by its specific terms proclaims that it shall not lose validity by reason of any rebellion or usurpation, there was organized the 'National Reorganizing Army,' under Felix Diaz, as the effective outcome of protests voiced by him since 1914; and in the last three and a half years this force has extended its effective protection through different States of the republic.

"Some time before the rural population of the northeastern parts of the republic, attacked by the Carranzista despoilers in their most essential rights, took arms to defend them and to restore law and order, placing Manuel Pelaez as Commander in Chief of the National Guards; upon the attempt of the illegal Queretaro Assembly to impose a new Constitution on the country, these guards were reorganized as the 'Revolutionary Army,' to support and reinstate the national Constitution of 1857; at the same period, in the trying times of the great war, when the fates there hung in the balance, and the weights in that balance were the supplies of oil without which the allied navies would have been powerless and when for a time there was but a few weeks' supply of this fuel on hand, the Carranza soldiers, aided by German-paid agitators, were seeking to capture and destroy the wells on which that supply depended, these forces, under Manuel Pelaez, firm in the defense of the rights made sacred by the Constitution of 1857 and faithful to the cause of democracy and freedom in the world, protected, and still do protect, life and property in the Tampico and adjoining regions.

"Today the truth is coming to light and today Venustiano Carranza, your enemy, as he and his circle of officials are ours, is threatening to draw upon us the natural result of his and their crimes. We are about to be made to suffer for the crimes of those who have murdered our fellows. We—all Mexicans—are being cried against for the deeds of our oppressors; Mexico is about to be called and treated as the enemy of your great democracy on account of the deeds we have now for five years resisted with our blood, committed by those few evil men who, by their entrenched position, have been enabled to do all these things. Carranza and the entire circle of his supporters, without one single exception, have betrayed you and your placed trust and hopes as he betrayed us and the support given him at that time.

"Who are fighting for our liberties and our homes; the war in Mexico will never cease until that fight is gained; it cannot cease. And confident in the truth which is now in its full time coming to the light, we appeal to you, the President of the United States, and to you the people of those United States, to give us that measure of belief and recognition to which we are entitled.

Appeal for a Hearing.

"You, Mr. President, we ask to grant us that recognition which is the bounden right of all who fight for their homes, their liberties, and their laws. We ask that we may be heard, that we may have a standing from which to speak and plead the cause of oppressed Mexico and our children.

"In order to establish this right, and in order that there shall not come that invasion of Mexico which we know is as far from your desires as it would be destructive of all our hopes and aspirations as free men, we will participate in a conference of all the leading organized elements now dividing the control of the territory of the Mexican Republic; that at this conference shall be considered the reconstruction and restoration to national health of the country that is ours and for which we and our fathers have fought. We ask that in this way the great principles for which the peoples of the western hemisphere have declared themselves, the principles of democracy, self-government, the right of every individual to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, shall be once more established, and that your country and ours may go on as sister republics, different in inheritance and blood, yet united by bonds of friendship and co-operation and with those common objects brought to birth for France in 1789, for you in 1776, and for us in 1810 and 1857.

"For this great work of reconstruction of our distracted and desolated country, now in a like condition, with so many other countries in the world, help in resources and co-operation must be had. International problems must be met and solved; rights must be adjusted and protected; the work of rehabilitation itself must be protected, especially in its earlier stages. To this end we frankly ask your aid, without humility or the derogation of self-respect; for we have suffered at the hands of oppressors, and we are economically destitute; we have no resources left, save our love for our country, and our self-respect as men and Mexicans. But our country is rich in herself, and by her work, once started on the road, can rebuild all. You, the American nation, almost alone now among the peoples of the earth, are economically undestroyed after the efforts of the past years. We believe that a way can be found whereby you will gladly give, and we can honorably enter into, co-operation to that end, to your great advantage as to that of our county, and yet neither violative of Mexico's independent political self-determination, nor submitting her to a conscienceless or usurious financial control.

"This we believe of you, Mr. President, and we also believe it of the heart of the American people.

"To you, therefore, we address this appeal, in this critical hour of our country, and in the affairs of the world.

INMAN QUESTIONED ON MEXICO CHARGES

Senate Witness Refuses to Go Into Them on the Ground That He Is Threatened.

TELLS MORE OF CONDITIONS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The Mexican investigation of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations was continued today with Dr. Samuel Guy Inman, Executive Secretary of the Committee on Co-operation for Latin-America, representing thirty Protestant foreign mission boards in this country and Canada, in the witness chair.

Dr. Inman, who is a supporter of Carranza, testified under cross-examination that the League of Free Nations, of which he is a member, was now actively engaged in carrying on propaganda in favor of the present recognized Mexican Government. The league, he said, in answer to a question, had taken up the work of the Anti-Intervention Committee that was organized at the time of Pershing's punitive expedition into Mexico, and was continuing the anti-intervention activities of that committee.

When the committee met this morning Dr. Inman read a statement, in the course of which he said that since he wrote the letter which was the subject of yesterday's cross-examination, and in which he called upon his friends and associates to work against intervention, he had become more convinced than ever of "the unfair attitude of the oil interests and of the Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico." He said he had been denounced as a Carranza propagandist, and that he had been threatened with a suit for libel in the American courts.

"Who threatened you? Give us the name of the person or persons," Senator Brandegee said.

"I have asked that the statement I have made be my final statement."

"Do you decline to tell who these parties are that threaten you?"

"Yes."

"Is it your purpose to create the impression that this committee will not protect you in your rights?"

"I certainly do not."

"Who is putting up the money to finance the anti-intervention propaganda with which you are connected?" asked Senator Fall.

"As far as I know a fund of $400 was left over from that of the old committee which was organized just before Pershing went into Mexico in 1916. That fund was turned over to the League of Free Nations Association to take up the work."

"Does this comprise all the funds raised for this propaganda work?"

"Yes, all that I know of."

Dr. Inman was asked about a statement that was published to the effect that his letter against intervention was given to the newspapers by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

"I did not say that," he replied.

"Do you know Dr. Halsey?"

"Yes, he is the Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. I do not care to go any further into this matter. I think it has been gone into far enough."

"In view of the fact that Dr. Halsey repudiated the authority for that article and you have taken no action to correct it, in your own opinion do you think your course has been fair?" was another question.

"Dr. Halsey has not said, so far as I know, that the letter was not sent out from his office. I do not know that Dr. Halsey has given out any statement on the matter."

Senator Fall called attention to the fact that the letter was written on the official stationery of the Committee on Co-operation for Latin America of the Churches of Canada and the United States. Dr. Robert D. Speer is Chairman of that committee and among the members are Dr. John R. Mott, Bishop Luther B. Wilson, and a score or more of some of the most prominent clergymen of the Protestant churches in the United States and Canada.

"You say that was a private letter, now do you mean to say that the fact it was written on the official paper of the committee would have no significance or weight?"

"No, Sir; no more than my name."

"Did you correct the statement printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES that the letter had been put out by the Presbyterian Board?"

"No, I supposed the board put it out."

The testimony turned to conditions in Mexico. An article published a few days ago stating that Carranza dared not go outside Mexico City was produced.

"I do not agree with that article. Carranza leaves Mexico City very often," said Dr. Inman. "He has recently made an extensive trip during which he visited Jalisco. Before that he went to Morelos."

"Did he go under guard?"

"I suppose that a military train went ahead of him. Military trains precede all passenger trains."

"You know that he never goes anywhere without troops?"

"I suppose so."

"When were you last in Mexico?"

"In March of this year."

"Was your train guarded?"

"Yes; there was a military train ahead of us."

"In your reference to conditions in Mexico in your book do you point out that military trains are operated ahead of all passenger trains?"

"No."

"While in Mexico, the last time, did you get out into the country away from railroads?"

"We went out from San Luis Potosi something like twenty miles. We had no troops with us and saw no bandits. I should say that I did not go myself. I stayed behind investigating in San Luis Potosi. While there we heard of a raid on Catorce, some sixty miles away."

"In your references yesterday to the journeys of missionaries from all parts of Mexico to Mexico City you said they traveled without 'untoward events?'"

"Yes."

"You did not point out that they were guarded and were under military protection?"

"No; I did not say anything about that."

"Has the League of Free Nations any committee to pass on De Bekker's articles or other propaganda articles?"

"Not that I know of except those in the office. So far as I know there is no check-up."

"Who pays De Bekker?"

"I understand that he is employed by the League of Free Nations."

"Do you think the American press is being influenced as to its articles?"

"I think so."

"Who owns the telegraph lines in Mexico?"

"The Government of Mexico."

"Has Carranza a censorship service?"

"I think so."

"Where does the news generally come from?"

"Some from the border, some from New York, and some from Mexico."

"Have you ever made any systematic effort to check up these news reports?"

"No, I have not."

"What press dispatches have you seen that you know to be untrue?"

"I have none in my mind at present."

"Well, we are going to trace this thing down and find out if any newspapers are fabricating news as you say. Do you accuse the Associated Press?"

"I do not accuse the Associated Press. I read the newspapers and I can see them. They are simply there."

Officials of the League of Free Nations Association will be called by the committee when the hearings are resumed at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

News Print Investigators Named.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Chairman La Follette of the Senate Manufactures Committee today named Senators McNary, Oregon; Gronna, North Dakota, Republicans, and Reed, Missouri, and Walsh, Massachusetts, Democrats, as members of a subcommittee to investigate the news print paper industry. Plans for conducting the investiagtion soon will be made.

DEMANDS TREATY TO CUT LIVING COST

concerned, and they want the peace of the world settled; but they are satisfied to follow the leadership of Senators Knute Nelson and Frank B. Kellogg so far as the necessity for reservations is involved.

Minnesota was a Republican State in the last election, and returned a small plurality for Charles Evans Hughes, but it is not Republican in this fight to the extent that it is willing to permit politics to enter the question of the League of Nations, or to follow any leadership which would advise a course that would destroy the peace treaty. The people do not dislike the President and they do not distrust him. They believe in him to the extent that they feel he is fighting for great ideals, but they think also that the President will accept reasonable reservations, and they are ready to trust their representatives in Congress to take a position which will represent their views of justice.

So far as the stand for quick ratification of the treaty is concerned, President Wilson has won his fight here just as he has won it in the other States of the Middle West through which he has passed. The people want to welcome and cheer and support him as a war President who won glory for the United States, but they would rather take the stand of the so-called "mild reservationists" than go the "whole hog or none."

One of the outstanding features of the situation in Minnesota is the deep respect in which the people of the State hold Senator Nelson. They talk of him as a man who can safely be trusted to guard the interests of his constituents. They think he won an unenviable reputation as a member of the committee which investigated German propaganda and as a man who was not afraid during that inquiry to demand that any witness be called upon to tell all he knew. They resent the attack which was made upon him by Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, and, by the way, that attack has only served to increase the popularity of Mr. Nelson here.

Don't Want Treaty Sent Back.

If he fails them in doing what they belive to be right, Senator Nelson will deal the people of the State of Minnesota a heavy blow. The people do not pretend to know all the details of the treaty of peace or the League of Nations, although they have certain ideas about them. They think that Nelson and Kellogg are about right, at least that is their present interpretation of the situation. Here is the situation in a nutshell and no speeches by the President can make much difference:

The people of Minnesota are back of the President. They want to see him get the treaty of peace through. They frankly believe that satisfactory reservations can be adopted without forcing the treaty back to the Peace Conference, and they want their Senators, if they believe such reservations are necessary, to see that such a course is followed. But they are not, and this should be emphasized, intending to destroy the treaty so far as American participation is concerned.

As a President who led in winning a great world war, and the people of the Twin Cities believe that their sons had a big part in winning the war under the direction of Wilson, he has the patriotic support of this district. It is difficult to find a person who will make an attack upon him so far as the great principles for which he stands are concerned. But there are not lacking Republicans in the State who believe that Mr. Wilson has not conducted the war and the peace negotiations in a manner which met all of their beliefs as to how things should have been done.

Republicans as well as Democrats are prepared to cheer whatever utterances he makes concerning the bravery of the American troops in France and the spirit of freeing the world from bondage which actuated them. They are willing to applaud anything good that is said about their beloved boys who offered up their lives. They are ready to support a cause which will make it unnecessary for the soldiers to return to Europe, yet the "but" that President Wilson said characterized the demand of the reservationists is still found to exist here.

The sentiment favorable to the President is found in the attitude of the people that they are not willing to go to the extent advocated by Senators Lodge, Knox, Borah and others, and demand that actual textual changes in the treaty shall be made which would result inevitably in its reconsideration by all of the nations involved. The people in this section do not think that the demand for textual changes will be successful, but they do think that the Senate and the President will adopt the intermediate course, in which the President would give ground to the extent that certain reservations might be accepted. They are not satisfied, even after listening to the addresses of the President, that this is not the case.

There were ample evidences today that the President had not lost the confidence of the people to the extent which some of his Republican opponents in the United States Senate may have believed to be the case. The crowds which greeted him were large and the meetings which he faced were big and enthusiastic.

That almost all of the political factions in this section are behind the President in desiring the ratification of the treaty was shown by the complexion of the meetings which he addressed; first at the State House in St. Paul and later in the St. Paul and Minneapolis auditoriums. They were composed of Democrats, members of the Farmers' Non-Partisan League and Republicans, with the last named in the majority. They cheered the President's statements concerning the great world ideals which he urged, and expressed a desire that he should win his fight. But the President's political opponents, at least, did not surrender the viewpoint as to mild reservations.

As for the President, he did not enter upon a direct attack here upon the attitude taken by Senators Kellogg and Nelson. In referring to this situation he said:

"One of the difficulties being encountered about the treaty and the League of Nations, if I may be permitted to say so, and perhaps I can say so more freely here because I do not think this difficulty exists in the mind of either Senator from this State, the difficulty is, not prejudice so much, but the thing which is so common and so inconvenient—just downright ignorance."

The President leaves for Bismarck, N. D., tonight, well pleased with the result of his tour up to this point.

DECLARES TREATY WAIT CAUSES WORLD UNREST

Wilson Tells Minnesota Legislature That America Is Looked to for Leadership.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 9.—President Wilson, in his speech to the Legislature here today, said:

I esteem it an unusual privilege to stand in this place today and address the members of this great body because the environment which I have left at Washington is too intimate a matter of the life of our own nation as well as the life of the world, and yet I am conscious, standing in this presence, that perhaps the most appropriate thing I could allude to is caused by the fact that I know that you have been called together in special session for special purposes, and one of those purposes you have already achieved and I rejoice with you (applause) in the adoption of the suffrage amendment.

Until the industrial world is put on its feet you can not finally handle the question of the cost of living, because the cost of living in the last analysis depends upon the thing we are always talking about, but do not know how to manage, the law of supply and demand.

We have got to see that our own production and our own methods of finance and our own commerce are quickened in every way possible, and then we, sitting in legislatures like this and in the Congress of the United States, have to see to it, if you will permit a vulgar expression, that no one monkeys with the machinery.

I understand that one of the excellent suggestions that was mentioned by your Governor is that you look into the cold storage. There are other kinds of storage besides cold storage. There are other ways of covering the reserve stock of goods. You can manage by a contract that isn't put on paper to see that the goods are doled out so as to not bring the highest prices.

The cost of living, the President said, was largely due to a "world situation" growing out of the sacrifices and waste of the war. Back of that, he added, lay the fact that the world had not yet learned what the peace status would be.

The world was not going to settle down, he said, until it learned what part the United States was to play in the peace. This was the only nation which would have enough free capital in the near future to rehabilitate the world economically.

First of all, Mr. Wilson added, it was the nation's duty to set the commerce of the world going by the establishment of peace. After that, he continued, there were domestic adjustments that must be made, mentioning, among other things, that railway facilities in this country were not equal to the demand.

We might as well sit up straight and look facts in the face, gentlemen. The laboring men of the world are not satisfied with their relations with their employers. Of course, I do not mean to say that dissatisfaction is universal dissatisfaction, because there are situations in many instances of satisfaction, but I am now speaking of the general relations between capital and labor. Everywhere there is dissatisfaction, much more on the other side of the water than on this side.

Referring to the treaty provision for an international labor organization, Mr. Wilson said that here was a way to bring a definite solution of the problem. He went on:

One point I wish to make is that the world is looking to America to set the standards with regard to the conditions of labor or the relations between capital and labor, and it is looking to us because we have been more progressive in those matters. We have got to have a constructive program with regard to labor, and a method by which we will relieve the strain of what you can call the cost of living.

I am not dogmatic about this matter. I can't presume that I know how it should be done. I know the principle upon which it should be done. The principle is that the interest of capital and the interest of labor are not different, but are the same.

You can't any longer regard labor as a commodity. You have got to regard it as a means of association and when that is done the production of the world is going to go forward by leaps and bounds.

Why is it that labor organizations seriously limit the amount of work they have in hand to do? It is because they are driving hard bargains. They don't feel that they are your partners at all. And so long as labor and capital are antagonistic, production is going to be at its minimum. Just so soon as they are sympathetic and co-operative, it is going to bound, and that will be one of the means of bringing down the cost of living.

America, though we do not like to admit it, has been very provincial in regard to the world's business. When we had to engage in banking transactions outside of the United States, we generally did it through English banks or more often through German bankers and here, all of a sudden, we are called upon to handle the bulk of international exchange. We have to learn it and we have to learn it fast.

We have got to have American instrumentalities in every part of the world. If you want to trade, you have to have somebody to trade with.

All the world problem and the great difficulty just now is getting our minds adjusted to the world. Some of the difficulties that are being encountered about the treaty and the League of Nations are not so much due to prejudice, but the thing which is so common and inconvenient, just downright ignorance—ignorance, I mean, of the state of the world, and America's relation to the state of the world.

There was applause when Mr. Wilson remarked that he did not think either of the Senators from Minnesota was afflicted with that state of mind. He proceeded:

We have got to play our part, and we have got to play it either as board of directors or as outside spectators. We can play it inside or on the curb, and you know how inconvenient it is to play it on the curb.

The facts are marching upon us, and God is marching with them. You cannot resist them, and you must either welcome them or else subsequently and regretfully surrender.

Everywhere I have been on this trip the majority of the committee that has received me has consisted of Republicans, and nothing has pleased me so much. If I were a scheming politician, and any one wished to present me with the peace of the world as a campaign issue, it would be very welcome. But everybody knows that we are all Americans. The Democrat and the Republican underneath are of the same stuff. Labels rub off with the slightest effort.

PREDICTS WIDE REVOLT IF STATESMEN FAIL

Wilson Says Peoples Will Destroy Governments Unless World Wars Are Prevented.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 9.—In his address at the Minneapolis Armory today President Wilson spoke as follows:

We must realize in this broad country of ours the fact that the world is in revolution. I do not mean in active revolution. I mean that it is in a state of mind that may bring about the dissolution of government if we do not bring about a world settlement.

The great peoples of the world have been asleep, but, God knows, the other nations have not been asleep. There was no place in the world where they dared to speak out, and now the catastrophe has come. Blood had been spilled in rivers and nations have been destroyed, and they made up their minds that rather than have this happen again, if the Governments cannot get together, they will destroy the Governments.

But in the meantime look at the things that are happening. There is not a day goes by that my heart is not heavy to think of the things the people in Russia are doing. They are without form, and without order, and the danger is to the world. We must absolutely look to it that in this country that form of government of a minority of men shall not be set up here and elsewhere. I would as leave serve one kind of autocracy as another.

In referring to the possibilities of revolution over the world, the President made it clear he did not advocate that method of attaining conditions. He said:

I am not speaking revolution. I believe that the most disastrous thing that can happen to the under man, to the man who is suffering, to the man who has not had his rights, is to destroy public order, for that makes it certain he never can get his rights.

I am far from intimating that, but I am intimating this: that the people of the world are tired of every other kind of experiment except the one we are going to try. I have called it an experiment; I frankly admit that it is, but it is a very promising experiment, because there is not a statesman in the world who does not know that his people demand it.

We have either got to be provincials or statesmen. We have either got to be ostriches or eagles. The ostrich is being overdone all around. I see gentlemen bury their heads in something and think that nobody sees that they have submerged their thinking apparatus. That is what I mean by being an ostrich.

Now, what I mean by being an eagle—I needn't describe it. I mean leaving the mists lying close to the ground, getting upon strong winds into those spaces where you can see all the affairs of mankind, all the affairs of America, seeing how the world appears.

This is an effective covenant. It is carried out by the attitude of the Irishman who went into one of those antique institutions, known as the saloon, and saw two men fighting in the corner. He went to the bartender and said, "Is this a private fight or can anybody get in?"

In the true Irish spirit we are abolishing private fighting and making a law of mankind that it is everybody's business and everybody can get in, and consequently there will be no attempts at private fighting.

The treaty provides that every secret treaty will be invalid. One of the difficulties in framing this treaty was the fact that after we got over there private secret treaties were springing up on all sides like a noxious growth. You had to guard your breathing apparatus against the miasma that arose from it.

But they were treaties and the war had been fought on the principle of the sacredness of treaties. We could not propose that solemn obligations, however unwisely undertaken, should be disregarded, but we could do the best that was possible in the presence of those understandings and then make no more secret understandings.

The representatives of every great nation in the world assented without demur, without the slightest difficulty. I do not think you realize what a change of mind has come over the world. As we used to say in the old days, some men that never got it before have got religion.

Declaring that the treaty would end the régime of the balance of power, President Wilson said that the new world order set up would be to the advantage of all nations rather than a few of the stronger. Under the old balance of power, he said, the people nowhere "dared speak out" against autocracy or against the burden of armament.

"The people of the world," said Mr. Wilson, "are tired of every other kind of experiment except the kind we're going to try. The world has turned a corner that it is not going to turn again."

When Mr. Wilson said that another great war would come if there were no concerted movement to preserve peace under American leadership, some one in the gallery shouted "Amen!"

The President said that the League of Nations provided for the destruction of autocratic power by admitting only self-governing nations to the League.

"Had you ever been told that before?" asked the President, and there was a chorus of "noes" and cheers.

For another thing, continued the President, the treaty substituted arbitration and discussion for force, and provided for an "absolute boycott" against covenant breakers. The peace of the world, he said, would thus be placed under constant international supervision.

"The peace of the world is everybody's business," said Mr. Wilson, "and this is the first international document that has recognized that fact."

That there should be disarmament, and that no nation ever should again attempt annexation were further points in the treaty, continued the President.

Finally, said Mr. Wilson, there was in the treaty, a great bill of rights for labor, establishing an international labor organization to keep up labor standards.

Of course, the President said, the United States was "at liberty" to stay out of the League, but he asked whether it would be better to "go in as trusted partners or stay out and act as suspected rivals."

DEMANDS PEACE BASIS TO CUT WORLD PRICES

Wilson Says That America Is Destined to Become the Mediator of Nations.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 9.—Readjustment of the cost of living, President Wilson declared in his speech at the Auditorium here tonight, must await the re-establishment of a complete peace basis which would put labor and capital on their feet.

When Mr. Wilson arrived at the Auditorium he was loudly cheered by nearly 15,000 persons, who arose and sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Opening his address, Mr. Wilson said that there were no political considerations in his speechmaking trip for the treaty. It was an American issue, and he had come out to the people rather to "hold counsel" than to make a fight against anybody.

The President dwelt at length on the mixed origin of the American people. He said:

It is based upon long experience that in every part of the world I can recognize an American the minute I see him. And yet that is not because we are all of one stock. We have more people of various origins of stock than any people in the world. We come from all the great Caucasian races. We are made up out of all the nations of people who have stood from time to time in the centre of civilization.

In this part of the country it is doubtful whether in some of our great cities 50 per cent. of the people come from parents born in America.

Distinctive Principles Here.

The memory of America does not go very far back as measured by the distances of history. A great many millions of our people carry in their hearts the traditions of other peoples, the traditions of races never bred in America, and yet we are all unmistakably and even in appearance American and nothing else. And there is only one possible explanation for that, my fellow-citizens, and that is that there is in the practice and in the tradition of this country a set of principles which, however imperfectly, get into the conscience of every man who lives in this country.

One of the chief elements that makes an American is that in almost every other country there is some class that dominates or some governmental authority that determines the course of policy, or some ancient system of land laws that limits the freedom of land tenure, or some ancient custom which puts a man into a particular groove in the land in which he lives, and there is none of that in America.

We do not have to square ourselves with standards that have been followed ever since our great grandfathers. We are very much more interested in becoming great grandfathers than in having had great grandfathers, because our view is to the future.

"Predestined Mediators of Mankind."

We are the predestined mediators of mankind. Really then when I hear gentlemen saying we must keep out of this thing and take care of ourselves I ask where did we come from? Is there nobody else in the world that we care for?

Is that what America is with her mixture of blood? Why, my fellow citizens, that is a fundamental misconception of what it is to be an American. These gentlemen are doing a harm which they do not realize.

I want to testify to you here tonight, my fellow countrymen, because I have the means of information, that, since it has seemed to be uncertain whether we are going to play this part of leadership in the world, the old intrigues have started up in the country again. That hyphen which looked to us like a snake, the hyphen between German and American, has reared its head again.

You hear the hiss of its purpose, and what is that purpose? It is to keep America out of the concert of nations in order that America and Germany, being out of that concert, may some time in their mistaken dream, unite to dominate the world, or at any rate the one to assist the other in holding the nations of the world off while its ambitions are realized.

There is no conjecture about this, my fellow-citizens. We know the former purposes of German intrigue in this country, and they are being revived. Why? We haven't reduced very materially the number of the German people. Germany remains the great power of Central Europe. She has more than 60,000,000 people now. She had nearly 70,000,000 before Poland and other provinces were taken away.

Sees German Spirit Unchanged.

You cannot change the temper and expectations of a people by a five years' war, particularly by five years of war in which they are not yet conscious of the wrong they did or the wrong way in which they did it; and they are expecting the time of the revival of their power, and along with the revival of their power goes their extraordinary capacity, their unparalleled education, their great capacity in commerce, finance and manufacture.

The German bankers, and the German merchants, and the German manufacturers did not want this war. They were making conquest of the world without it. They knew that it would spoil their plans, not advance them.

There can be only one intelligible reason for America's staying out of this, and that is, that she does not want peace, that she wants war some time, and the advantage which war will bring to her. I want to say now and here that the men who think that by that thought they are interpreting America are making the sort of mistake upon which it will be useful for them to reflect in obscurity for the rest of their lives.

It isn't our intellectual capacity, my fellow citizens, that has given us our place in the world, though I rate that as high as the intellectual capacity of any other people that ever lived, but it is the heart that lies back of the mind that makes America. [Applause.]

I have no doubt this room is full of mothers and fathers and wives and sweethearts who sent their loved young men to France. What did you send them there for? What made you proud that they were going? What made you willing that they should go? Did you think they were seeking to aggrandize America in some way? Did you think they were going to take something for America that had belonged to somebody else? Did you think that they were going into a quarrel which they had provoked and must maintain?

Tells of Army's Mission.

The question answers itself. You were proud that they should go because they were going on an errand of self-sacrifice in the interests of mankind. Ah, when these youngsters grow old who have come back from the fields of France, what a halo there will be around their brows! They saved the world.

They are of the same stuff as those old veterans of the civil war. Now, mind you, I was born and bred in the South, but I can pay that tribute with all my heart to the men who saved the Union. It ought to have been saved. It was the greatest thing that men had conceived up to that time.

I saw many fine sights in Paris, many gallant sights, many sights that quickened the pulse, but my pulse never beat so fast as when I saw groups of our boys swinging along the street. They looked as if they owned something, and they did. They owned the finest thing in the world; the thing that we are going to bring to the others. They owned the ideals and conceptions that will govern the world.

I hear opponents of the League of Nations say that this does not guarantee peace. No, nothing guarantees us against human passion and error. But I like to put this business proposition to you—if it increases the probability of peace by, let us say, 10 per cent., don't you think it is worth while? ("Yes," from the audience, and cheers.) And in my judgment it increases it about 99 per cent.

I suppose there is intellectual excitement in debate, but I do not experience any when great issues like this are pending, and I would be very sad indeed, if I did not have an absolutely unclouded confidence in the result.

The President said it was a duty of the United States to lead the way in "peaceful production" and that could be done best under the labor section of the treaty. Under that section a great international labor conference would be held in Washington in October, whether the treaty had been ratified or not.

"I know what you want," he said. "Say it and get it. Tell me you don't want to do what I'm urging, and I'll go home."

There were cries of "No," and "Go to it," and the crowd rose and cheered.

Shortly before the President concluded, he was interrupted for a moment while a large bouquet of flowers for Mrs. Wilson, who sat near him, was carried to her.

POPULARITY OF EGGS

The CHILDS restaurants use 24,000,000 eggs a year—

The reason is obvious—only good, fresh eggs are used, and they are cooked to perfection.

Boiled, fried, poached or scrambled, made into an omelet or served with ham or bacon.

PERSHING TO LEAD HEROES IN PARADE

EQUIPPED AS FOR BATTLE

Police Prepare for Record Crowd All Along the Line of March.

New York will witness today what may prove to be the greatest military spectacle of its history. Never before has there been a procession such as that which will pass down Fifth Avenue from 110th Street to Washington Square.

Major Gen. John J. Pershing, Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, will ride at its head from start to finish, so that millions of New Yorkers and thousands of out-of-town visitors who have crowded the hotels that they may share in the nation's welcome to the commander will have an opportunity to see him just as he appeared in France.

War Department orders have forbidden the wearing of Sam Browne belts in this country since the start of the war, but an exception has been made in favor of Pershing and his staff, so that even in this small detail of uniform he will be the same as when he headed the great parades of American troops in London and Paris.

If advance indications are to be accepted as criterion, New York will give him a welcome which will eclipse even those he and his troops received in foreign capitals. The demand for seats has surpassed any with which the Mayor's Committee has had to contend, and though up to the parade hour—10 o'clock this morning—a small army of carpenters will continue building grandstands, most of those who have sought seats for the spectacle will be disappointed.

The General will be escorted in the parade by his own picked regiment. This body of 3,600 men, who returned with their Commander in Chief on the Leviathan, represents the best the Regular Army could do in the way of recruiting, even in wartimes. Scarce a man in the command is under six feet tall. The regiment was formed by taking two companies from each of the seven regular divisions which served in France. The companies, in turn, were made up of a squad from each company in each regiment.

Accompanying Pershing will be not only men who served with distinction in important positions on his staff, but other General officers who returned on the Leviathan, so that in the matter of Generals alone the parade will be unique.

As They Appeared in France.

Pershing and "Pershing's own" would make a real parade by themselves, but numerically they form only a small part of the column that will march down Fifth Avenue, past the official reviewing stand in front of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The whole 1st Division, 22,000 strong, led by Major Gen. Edward F. McGlachlin, Jr., will follow the Commander in Chief and his escort. And, for full measure, the division will parade in full combat equipment, so that New York will get a view of a whole army unit as it appeared wending it way along the roads of France.

Not only will the men wear their trench helmets and their packs, belts, and bayonets, as well as carrying their rifles, but all the divisional artillery and cavalry will be in line, all the ammunition trains and other rolling stock that go to make up a full unit.

It is to be a completely military parade. The only non-soldiers in line will be uniformed welfare workers, men and women of the K. of C., the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., and other welfare units which served with the division in France.

The casualties of the 1st Division far exceeded its total personnel, and there are many wounded of the command still in hospitals in and around New York. A large number of these will see the parade from park benches placed along the Fifth Avenue curb. Others will sit in windows offered by patriotic citizens at the request of the War Camp Community Service. Still others will be in the parade in automobiles.

The weather forecast is for possibly cloudy, but cool weather. With this in prospect, and guided by the inordinate demand for seats and the eager interest displayed by the city in General Pershing, the police, last night, had worked out plans to handle what they believed might be the largest crowd ever gathered along the line of march of a parade.

Chief Inspector John Daly and his aids will have 7,000 policemen under them, and both mounted and motor cycle men will be distributed along the route to aid those afoot.

To Stop Vehicular Traffic.

Vehicular traffic will be diverted from Fifth Avenue, north of Fifty-ninth Street, at 9 o'clock, one hour before the parade, and south of Fifty-ninth Street at 10 o'clock. Certain streets have been designated for crosstown vehicular and pedestrian traffic, and the parade throughfare will be crossed at these points only during the ten minute periods in each hour that the marchers will rest. The crossings for eastbound traffic will be at Sixteenth, Twenty-second, Twenty-sixth, Thirty-second, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-eighth, Forty-fourth, Fifty-second and Sixty-fifth Streets, and for westbound traffic at Fifteenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-seventh, Thirty-first, Thirty-fifth, Thirty-ninth, Forty-fifth, Forty-ninth and Fifty-seventh Streets.

All persons having cards or badges issued by the Mayor's Committee will be permitted to pass through the police lines, as well as the holders of regular police cards. Inspectors of the Police Department have been instructed to confer with officials of banking houses in their respective districts that arrangements may be made to pass their employes through the lines.

As a safeguard against heat prostrations or accident, ambulances with doctors and nurses will be stationed along the avenue at Fourteenth, Twenty-third, Thirty-fourth, Forty-second, Fifty-first, Sixtieth, Seventy-second, Ninety-sixth, and 109th Streets.

Inspector John O'Brien, in charge of the Traffic Squad, will have headquarters in a telephone booth at the northwest corner of Eighty-second Street and the avenue. The police along the line will serve under the direct supervision of seventeen police inspectors. There will be an inspector for each ten blocks. Every police detective in the city has been ordered to report early for duty. They will mingle with the crowds and protect them against pickpockets.

Major W. W. Smith, who is attached to the Army General Staff, said last night that a report had been published that the police would not permit women to sell the "victory programs." He said this was untrue and that more than 3,000 women from various welfare associations, wearing brassards on their arms with the inscription "Official Victory Program," would be permitted to sell the souvenirs within and behind the police lines until the parade reaches the point where they are.

One thousand motor vehicles will be furnished by the Motor Transport Corps for the parade. Lieut. Col. H. J. Lawes, motor transport officer of New York and vicinity, is assisting Colonel G. A. Purrington of the First Division in assembling and handling all motor equipment, which includes ambulances, rolling kitchens, class B trucks, tank trucks, reconnaissance cars, staff observation cars, touring cars, machine shop trucks, trailers, and various other motor vehicles that make up the full equipment of the division as carried during the war.

To furnish the division with the full motor equipment which it had overseas, the staff of the motor transport officer of New York had to convoy part of the equipment from Camp Holabird at Baltimore, the largest army automobile centre in the United States, and from the engineer supply base in Schenectady.

Soldiers March from Camp Mills.

The military authorities have made complete arrangements, in the hope that the parade which is to be led by their highest military officer may take place without the slightest hitch. Elaborate orders governing every question of transport, supply and other matters have been issued, and by midnight there remained little to do but actually fall into line, take the assigned positions in the column—and march.

Thousands of persons welcomed the 5th, 6th, and 7th Artillery regiments, which entered the city last night over the Queensboro Bridge from Camp Mills, on their way to West 110th Street. Cheers were given for the hero horses which had drawn the regiments' artillery upon the battlefield as they drew guns and wagons up the Long Island incline of the bridge. The crowd became so large and the enthusiasm so great that the reserves of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station had to be called out.

All horses, including the cavalry mounts, those which draw the guns and caissons, and those which pull the combat wagons, ammunition wagons, rolling kitchens, and other equipment, were brought to the city late yesterday. The men with them bivouacked in the Harlem Speedway and other open spaces. The doughboys will begin arriving early this morning on special trains, most of them from Camp Merritt.

The Stock Exchange and similar organizations in New York will be closed for the day because of the parade. The Merchants' Association members, and thousands of other mercantile houses will close their doors, and it looked last night as if business in the city would come to a standstill, that workers might turn out in force to welcome Pershing, his picked escort, and the fighting 1st, which participated in most of America's heavy fighting and which was the first to leave this country and the last to quit the Coblenz bridgehead to start for home.

Red Cross to Feed Marchers.

The Red Cross emergency canteen, in charge of John S. Ellsworth, has arranged to feed 13,000 men of the division after the parade. The remainder will be fed by the Red Cross at the railway terminals, where they will entrain for Washington.

Arrangements have been made, also, to feed approximately 2,000 wounded soldiers, who will be brought from nearby hospitals. Box luncheons have been prepared for the wounded, each box containing cold ham, potato salad, buns, pie, and cigarettes. Hot coffee and ice cream also will be served. The Red Cross is co-operating with the port kitchens and the railway officials.

At Washington Square the men will be fed in cafeteria fashion. Only ten minutes have been allowed for the feeding of each unit here. The Red Cross Motor Corps will be assisted in transporting the wounded by a detachment from the National League for Woman's Service.

The division, after the parade in Washington next Monday, will be sent to Camp Meade, at Admiral, Md. for distribution and shipment to demobilization centres for discharge. All men whose service is over will be discharged at Camp Meade for the States of Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Delaware and District of Columbia, and southern peninsula of Michigan. To facilitate those discharges the commanding General at Camp Sherman, Ohio, has been directed to transfer to Camp Meade by today the personnel necessary to establish a demobilization group capable of handling this number of men.

F. C. Badgley, President of the British War Veterans Association, with offices at 1,431 Broadway, requests all British, Canadian and Australian soldiers to assemble in uniform at the west door of the Metropolitan Building, 1 Madison Avenue, at 10 o'clock this morning, to view the parade. Mr. Badgley said the association will watch the procession from the Altar of Liberty at the invitation of the Mayor's Committee.

PERSHING TO MINGLE WITH WAR VETERANS

General to Attend American Legion Reception in Madison Square Garden.

The soldiers' welcome to their commander in France will take place tomorrow night, when General John J. Pershing will be the guest of the American Legion at a reception and mass meeting in his honor at Madison Square Garden. Plans for the meeting were completed last night, according to a statement given out at National Headquarters of the Legion, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, the requests for tickets from posts in New York State, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania were so great that the ex-service men and women are expected to fill the hall to its capacity.

General Pershing will attend the reception with his entire staff. He will be received on the platform by a guard of honor composed of men and women who served in the war. Invitations have been sent to Mayor Hylan and Governor Smith and their official families, and to Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th (New York National Guard) Division in France.

Veterans of the war are receiving tickets through the Chairmen of posts to which they belong. Barbara Frietchie Post, composed of former yeomanettes, will parade to the Garden in a body with a band. After members of the legion have found seats, other men in uniform will be allowed to enter the hall.

Cornelius W. Wickersham is Chairman of the Reception Committee which will escort General Pershing from his headquarters at the Waldorf to the Garden. Mr. Wickersham announced the following members of the committee: Major C. W. Whittlesey, C. J. Debevoise, Henry L. Stimson, George E. Roosevelt, Dr. Richard Derby, Grayson M. P. Murphy, James Perkins, Hamilton Fish, Delancey K. Jay, Wade H. Hayes, Robert H. Fiedler, Edgar W. Freeman, Harrison Deyo, L. G. Day, General O'Ryan, Bishop Charles H. Brent, David M. Goodrich, Leslie J. Kinkaid, William J. Donovan, and Kai Schwensen.

The program for the meeting so far completed will include an address by ex-United States Senator Luke Lee of Tennessee, songs by Miss Elsie Janis, and a message from General Pershing to American veterans of the war. Enrico Caruso has been invited to sing. Henry D. Lindsley, Chairman of the Joint National Executive Committee of the American Legion, will preside. The ushers will be members of Boyce's Tiger Post of the Legion.

The Legion's invitation to General Pershing, which was wirelessed to him on his way home on the Leviathan, follows:

"The American Legion extends to you, on your triumphal return, the greetings of American veterans of the war, and earnestly requests an opportunity to show their pride in our achievements at a monster mass meeting of ex-service men at Madison Square Garden, Thursday evening, Sept. 11, that you may address, through the Legion, the 4,800,000 veterans who either served under you or stood ready to join your command."

HARVEY SENT TO TOMBS.

Publicity Agent Held for Violating Terms of His Probation.

David M. Harvey, publicity agent of the George Washington Memorial Association, which was to have held a victory celebration last night at Carnegie Hall, to be attended by General Pershing, Mayor Hylan, and other officials, was committed to the Tombs yesterday by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky in Part I of General Sessions until Friday, when he will be brought up for re-sentence. The reception was cancelled Monday night.

Harvey was technically charged with violating the terms of his probation. On July 31, 1909, he received a suspended sentence following a plea of guilty to larceny. After an alleged violation of his parole a bench warrant was issued for him, but he was not arrested until Monday.

A. N. Sager, counsel for Harvey, sought to have his client freed on bail, but Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith prevented. Sager declared there had been no mishandling of the funds of the George Washington Memorial Association, and said the arrest was "spite work." According to Mr. Smith, Sager said $85,000 had been taken in for the Carnegie Hall meeting, and a souvenir program had been printed which was expected to sell at $600 a copy. Chief Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley announced last night that he had begun an investigation of the association funds and already had questioned Miss Ethel Silverman, Harvey's private secretary.

"I have been trying to get in touch with Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, President of the association," he continued, "who, I am informed, gave Harvey $34,000 with which to work for the fund. I understand Mrs. Dimock started the fund several years ago, and that it was she to whom all checks were made payable. Harvey was engaged by the fund last March. Miss Silverman said she was supposed to receive a salary of $75 a week, but that she had not been paid for fourteen weeks."

FRANKLIN SIMON & CO
PRESENTS THE OUTDOOR AUTUMN AND WINTER SUIT FOR MISSES

In A New Homespun Weave

FIFTY-FIVE DOLLARS

NOWADAYS, when the months of country life and town life overlap—and many people remain in the country almost up to Christmas—a suit is needed, too, that overlaps the activities of both town and country. And here is one for any outdoor occasion, from sports in the country to shopping in town. Even patient Penelope who, according to legendary Greece, for three years unraveled by night what she wove by day, would be puzzled to undo the weave of this new fabric. There is an unexpected cross thread which makes it non-stretchable, and yet retains its non-crushable knitted quality. Add then the smart colorings of the English mixtures and the stedfast mannish tailoring and voila—a composite picture of this new suit. Of homespun mixtures in Lovett—the English green—, also in Oxblood. Sizes 14 to 20 years.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

One of the best things for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than some expensive soaps or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

ARMY OF CHILDREN CHEER PERSHING

and it did not detract from their keenness to see the General that they took a cheerful view of having the second day of the school year interrupted by his return, with the promise of a full holiday for the parade today. Also—and this is not for the eye of mothers—it might have been suspected from the demeanor of a few that neither their teachers nor their parents knew exactly where they were at the moment.

After the children, who were designated to come from schools within walking distance had arrived, there appeared more than 22,000 boys and girls from the high schools of the five boroughs, designated to attend by Superintendent of Schools William L. Ettinger. The high schools represented were: Manhattan, De Witt Clinton, High School of Commerce, Wadleigh, Washington Irving; the Bronx, Evander Childs and Morris; Brooklyn, Boys High and Girls High; Queens, Bryant, Flushing and Newtown; Richmond, Curtis.

Many of the high school students were in uniform.

Pershing, with members of his staff, Rodman Wanamaker, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Reception to Distinguished Guests, and John F. Sinnott, Secretary of the committee, left the Waldorf in army automobiles, headed by an escort of motorcycle policemen, and traveled rapidly to the park. Despite their hurried passage up the Avenue, crowds collected quickly along the sidewalks, and there were cheers for the General in every block.

The party alighted at the Seventy-sec-

The program was begun with a salute to the flag by the whole assemblage. At the same hour, other children in schools throughout the city, as an added tribute to the Commander in Chief, pledged their allegiance to the Stars and Stripes.

Then, accompanied by the band, the children sang "The Star Spangled Banner," while General Pershing and members of his staff stood at attention in their midst. The little ones sang with earnestness and fervor, the chorus swelling out sweetly above the notes of the band and the rumble of traffic over on the Avenue. The guest of honor and his escort seemed much affected, and the watching crowds stood bareheaded and silent.

There was so much cheering it was some moments before Superintendent Ettinger could introduce the General. At last, the children stood silent, while Pershing looked over the thousands of them spreading away at his feet, and smiled and smiled. Then he said:

"School children of the City of New York: It gives me extreme pleasure to be here this afternoon for a few moments, and to witness this beautiful ceremony. It is upon you that we must depend in the future to carry out the principles of our forefathers, and to defend our flag, which we all love so well.

"I feel sure you understand the principle for which the war has been fought and join with me in congratulating America on its successful conclusion. I am sure that the patriotism of you school children was not only appreciated by the grown-ups in America, but also by the boys, who carried muskets in the front lines.

"I wish to thank you, and wish that every man who was in Europe could be here to see you."

The commander's only other formal appearance was at the reception in the club of New York Lodge, No. 1, B. P. O. E., in West Forty-third Street. Pershing is a member of the Lincoln (Neb.) lodge, and an honorary member of the organization in El Paso. Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert was Chairman of the committee which arranged the reception, other members of which were the Exalted Rulers of other lodges in Greater New York.

Grand Exalted Ruler Frank L. Rain of Fairbury, Neb., who came to welcome the General for the Elks of the whole country, accompanied by Joseph T. Fanning, Fred Harper, Bruce A. Campbell, Edward Righter, and James B. Nicholson, all members of the Elks War Relief Commission, went to the Waldorf and escorted Pershing to the clubhouse. With the General were Mr. Wanamaker and Mayor Hylan.

The lodgeroom of the club had been decorated elaborately with American flags and the Elks' colors—blue and white—and an hour before Pershing was due, the place was packed to its capacity. A big crowd was outside just to see the General enter, and a roar of cheers from the street told those inside when he arrived. He was greeted with standing cheers, and Mr. Hulbert, who presided, introduced Mr. Rain, who said:

"I came into this clubhouse with General Pershing. I stand here now with Brother Pershing," and, turning to the General, he continued:

"Brother Pershing—I greet you as a brother. It is a wonderful tribute to the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks to be honored by your presence on this occasion. We welcome you as the fifth General in the history of the United States, and the man of the hour. Every nation of the earth is indebted to you, but particularly the United States of America.

"I have watched your career as a soldier from the time that I drilled in the Pershing Rifles, in the University of Nebraska, where you were at one time commandant of cadets, through the Indian wars, the Philippine war, the Mexican insurrection, and the greatest conflict of arms in all history, and I rejoice with you that the forces of the United States, under your eminent command, brought to a speedy and victorious close the bloodiest struggle of all time.

"We as a fraternal order take great pride in the fact that 70,000 of our members served under you, that 13,000 of that number were commissioned officers, and that you, the Commander in Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, were a member of El Paso, Texas, Lodge No. 187.

"For two years prior to the signing of the armistice, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks gave unsparingly of its funds and of its members, and more than 400 of its homes and clubs were turned over to the Red Cross and other organizations for war work.

"We built and equipped two base hospitals in France. We built and gave the Government a reconstruction hospital at Boston. We built a community house at Camp Sherman, and gave it to the Government. And when the war was over, we appropriated a large sum of money for use by the Government in vocational training of disabled soldiers, sailors and marines, and we are now in full partnership with the Government in that work.

"The lodges and members of our order subscribed liberally for bonds and gave the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and other organizations doing war work, millions of dollars. Thus did those of us who were not able to serve with you over there contribute to the winning of the war.

"While we are filled with pride over the work that we as an organization did in the winning of the war, yet we bow our heads in reverence and respect to the 1,037 members of the order, brave boys, who made the supreme sacrifice, and who tonight are sleeping their last sleep among the poppies and forget-me-nots of Flanders.

Every one of you won the war,
  You and you and you,
Each one knowing what it was for,
  And what was his job to do.

Every one of you won the war,
  You and you and you,
You who come with an unscathed head,
You who halt with a broken tread,
But oh, most of all, you dead, you dead.

"General Pershing, the nation welcomes you as no other man was ever welcomed. I greet you as the foremost man in the world. 'Well done, good and faithful servant.' May the rest of your honored life be spent in peace and happiness."

General Praises Elks' Loyalty.

In reply, Pershing said:

"Brother Elks: No one knows better than an Elk what the order stands for. Realizing as I do just what the vows of an Elk require him to do, prescribing in many ways the conduct of his life, I can readily appreciate, and do appreciate, the great work accomplished by this order.

"We who were fortunate enough to be sent to battlefields of Europe to represent our people felt that we had a united nation behind us. I know of no other order or body of men whose patriotism, loyalty, and benevolence have contributed in a greater degree toward making that a possibility. We have not only felt the spirit of your patriotism, but we have felt the material benefit of your effort to carry forward the principles of America's participation in the war.

"I am proud to be able to say this to you so soon after my return, and I wish to thank you, and through you the Elks of the nation. For the splendid reception you have given me I thank you again. I accept it, but I accept it only in the name of those 2,000,000 men who accompanied me abroad, and who made possible this victory which we have brought back to you."

John McCormack sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," and then, with Mayor Hylan, grasped Pershing's hand in turn, or stood beside him, while a powerful electric light was played upon the scene, and the movie men cranked their machines.

When Pershing left the club house Forty-third Street was packed and the police had to force a way through for him to his car. He was driven west to Broadway on his way to the theatre. Times Square had caught news of his coming, and Broadway was jammed with theatregoers and others who paused long enough to cheer him as he passed.

Pershing arose after 9 o'clock and breakfasted in his suite. Long before he was up, knots of curious persons had congregated in the lobbies and in front of the hotel, staring at the four-starred General's flag flying above them.

Receives Horse from Veterans.

From the Waldorf the General went with his aide, Col. J. G. Queckemeyer, to Durland's Riding Academy, where officers of Jefferson Feigl Post of the American Legion presented to him a six-year-old thoroughbred, named "General Pershing." The horse was raised by John A. Kennedy on a stock farm near Staunton, Va., the birthplace of President Wilson, and is said to be one of the finest saddle horses that ever came from the Shenandoah Valley. Some of the Legion men were disappointed when the horse refused to go over a four-foot hurdle, but the General comforted them with the remark: "They all do that some time."

In accepting the gift, which he will ride in the parade in lieu of his own favorite, "Kidron," which is in quarantine at Newport News, the General said:

"I accept it with pleasure. It is a very valuable gift, and I shall keep it as a memory of the old First and of Jefferson Feigl Post."

Another gift made to the General was a bound copy of a Scofield Bible. The presentation was made in his suite at the hotel by Dr. George W. Carter, Secretary of the New York Bible Society. Dr. Carter said:

"In handing you this copy of the Bible, will you permit me to emphasize how deeply the Board of Managers of the New York Bible Society appreciates the message you gave through us to the American soldiers. No words could be stronger or finer than are contained in that message. They are an appeal to the heart and conscience.

"Hundreds of thousands of copies of this message have been given to the soldiers in Testaments. Fathers, mothers and wives from all over the land write us for the message, and express their gratitude for such inspiring words. We feel that the morals of the army and the moral life of the nation have been lifted into a higher plane by the ideals you have thus put before the men."

On behalf of the cartoonists of America, the first copy off the press of "The War in Cartoons," bearing the autographs of a large number of the most prominent cartoonists of the country, was presented to the General. The book, which is a history of the war in 100 cartoons, was compiled and edited by George J. Hecht, head of the Bureau of Cartoons of the Committee on Public Information.

Pershing was the guest of Hugo Riesenfeld at the Rialto Theatre in the afternoon, where he had an opportunity to review some of the incidents of his life on the screen. Among the scenes shown were his old home at Laclede, Mo.; the "old swimming hole" and the schoolhouse.

BROADWAY GREETS PERSHING.

Great Throngs in Street as He Emerges from Theatre.

General Pershing attended a performance of "Lightnin'" at the Gaiety Theatre last evening. The audience applauded him with handclapping and cheers between each act, but he acknowledged the applause only by rising and bowing from time to time.

Between the second and third acts Francis Bacon, who played the leading part of Lightnin', made a short speech, saying that the actors felt honored by the presence of the nation's hero. General Pershing enjoyed the play, clapping frequently and laughing with evident enjoyment at the humorous lines and situations. He and his party were there at the invitation of John L. Golden, producer of "Lightnin'" and executive officer of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome.

In the General's box were Mayor Hylan, who sat at the left of the guest of honor; Rodman Wanamaker, Major Gen. Hines, Grover Whalen, John F. Sinnott, Bernard Baruch, Senator Warren, Pershing's father-in-law, Admiral Glennon and his aid, Lieut. Commander Hasler; Inspector Dwyer and the Mayor's aid, Captain William D. Davis. General Pershing's sisters, Mrs. Butler and Miss Pershing, and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt were also present.

Broadway was packed with people by the end of the performance waiting for a sight of the General. The crowds filled the street for blocks, and tremendous cheers greeted his appearance. The throngs did not interefere with the passage of his car, which sped rapidly away in the direction of the Waldorf, the General waving his acknowledgment of the crowd's applause.

LITTLE BEAR'S GREETING.

A greeting from the Assinniboine Indians of Montana was brought to General Pershing by the Rev. Leonard D. Christler, an Episcopal missionary, who arrived in New York yesterday.

The letter, of which Dr. Christler has a translation, is signed by Chief Little Bear of Bear's Paw Mountains, Havre, Mont. It recounts an episode of Pershing's career when he was at Fort Assinniboine, shortly after the Spanish-American War, hails him as "good man" and "good fighting chief" and invites him to come to Montana, where the Indians will hold a "heap big pow-wow" in his honor.

Dr. Christler also brought a letter of greeting from the City of Havre, Mon., and a message written by himself as the citizens' representative, welcoming home the General, and inviting him to visit the city where he is warmly remembered.

HONOR FOR THE 28TH.

French War Cross Pinned to the Regimental Standard.

The colors of the 28th Infantry were decorated with the Croix de Guerre in ceremonies held in front of the Public Library yesterday afternoon. Major Gen. McGlachlin, commander of the First Division, after a few words commending the regiment for its war record, pinned the decoration to the regimental standard.

General McGlachlin then presented to the 26th and 28th Regiments stands of colors donated by Mrs. Elizabeth French of New Rochelle, who gave them as a tribute to her late husband, Lieut. Col. John W. French, who organized the two units in 1901. Mrs. French and members of her family were present at the ceremony, at the conclusion of which the division commander turned and shook hands with Mrs. French. The steps of the library were crowded with onlookers, who cheered at the conclusion of the ceremonies.

Why Teeth Discolor

Why do well-brushed teeth discolor and decay? Why does tartar form? Why, in later years, does pyorrhea start? Millions of people have asked this.

Any dentist will tell you that the reason lies in a film. In that slimy film which you feel with your tongue. It clings to the teeth, enters crevices and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it. The tooth brush leaves much of it intact.

Night and day, despite your brushing, it may do a ceaseless damage. And most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

Film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of many other troubles, local and internal.

Dental science, after years of searching, has found a way to end it. The way is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Able authorities have proved its efficiency by many clinical tests. And now we ask you to prove it.

Look in Ten Days

Look in ten days and let your own teeth show what Pepsodent can do.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. So this ideal film remover long seemed barred. But science has discovered a harmless activating method. So active pepsin can now be applied.

Millions of teeth are now being cleaned in this new way. You can see them everywhere—teeth that glisten. You can see that they are kept uniquely clean.

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Compare your teeth in ten days with your teeth as they look now. Then read the reason in the book we send. You who want more beautiful teeth and safer teeth will never go back to old methods.

Cut out the coupon NOW.

GENERAL PERSHING! BRITAIN SALUTES YOU!

TO that great soldier, General Pershing, who came among us as a stranger and departed from us as a friend, who conquered both the enemy and the hearts of his country's allies, who thrilled the world with the Lincoln-like simplicity of his address at the tomb of Lafayette, and revived the hopes of mankind at Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne, we offer this slight tribute of esteem from the British people, on the day of his triumphal entry into the great City of New York, and rejoice with America in the greatness of his talents, the magnitude of his achievements, and the soldierly simplicity of his heart.

A Word on Skirt Lengths

At this moment when there is confusion regarding skirt length in Dress, we respectfully urge every woman to study her specific requirements by reference to her personality and the principles of good taste. In that endeavor, the House of Collins offers its co-operation.

In order to formulate a standard of good taste for skirt length of Dress, we are sending our mannikins and model gowns in a Fashion Fete moving westward through the largest cities, featuring a length of seven and one-half to nine inches (from the floor), varying with the requirements of the individual figure.

LADIES' TAILORS OUT, DEMANDS REFUSED

Secretary of Union Declares 6,000 Quit, but Sees Early Settlement.

NONUNION MEN FILL PLACES

Brooklyn Gas Officials Say Only 700 Workers Are Out—City Clerks to Ask More Pay.

Six thousand ladies' tailors, employed in fashionable tailoring establishments and department stores, went on strike at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the employers refused to grant the demands of the tailors for a forty-four-hour week and increased pay, according to Abraham Baroff, Secretary of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Mr. Baroff said that he did not believe the strike would last long, as already a number of the employers have signified their willingness to sign the agreement.

The Strike Settlement Committee, Mr. Baroff said, would begin meetings within a few days for the purpose of effecting settlement with the employers. Besides the forty-four-hour week the strikers ask for a minimum wage of $50 a week to tailors, $40 to male helpers, $35 to female helpers, and $45 to alteration tailors.

Many of the establishments, it is said, will make an effort to carry on their business with non-union tailors. Soon after the strike many employers brought to their places in automobiles a number of men and women to take the places of the strikers. Pickets jeered, but no serious trouble was reported at any of the establishments.

While officials of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company asserted yesterday that all plants were running at full capacity and that not more than 700 men, only 200 of whom were gasmakers, had quit their jobs, union leaders claimed that the number of strikers had reached 1,800. Emphatic denial was made by an official of the gas company that there had been any lowering of the quality of gas or any reduction in the pressure. The statement was again made by the gas company official that only two plants had been affected at all by the gasmakers' strike. He said that about twenty-five construction men and about twenty-five warehousemen went on strike yesterday because they feared violence if they continued to work.

It was announced yesterday that about 150 civil service clerks employed in the city and county offices attended a meeting of the Bronx County Civil Service Employes' Association Monday night and decided to demand a minimum salary of $1,800 a year for all city clerical employes. The association also decided to apply for a charter from the American Federation of Labor.

Henry M. Schiffler, one of the speakers Monday night, urged that the clerks strike if necessary in order to win their demands. Robert Hamburg, a stenographer, said that the average salary of clerks was $24 a week, while street cleaners are demanding $36 a week.

The Bronx County Pharmaceutical Association has adopted a resolution recognizing the fact that the United Drug Clerks' Union is justified in demands for more pay and shorter hours. In making announcement of the action of the association, Mendal Zagat, the Secretary, said yesterday that if the demands are granted the public must be prepared for increased drug prices. The clerks have not yet officially presented their demands to the owners, but this is expected to be done shortly after the mass meeting of drug clerks to be held in Brooklyn tomorrow night.

Approve Wilson's Program.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—After a four days' conference here the American Federation of Railroad Workers, comprising 50,000 men not in the Brotherhoods and crafts, formally voted to accept President Wilson's proposition on wages as presented to the shopmen, and urging on Congress an employes' profit-sharing plan, urged all railway employes to elect representatives to speak for them in it.

JOHN MITCHELL DIES OF PNEUMONIA HERE

IS LAUDED BY GOVERNOR

Smith Declares State Has Lost a Great Citizen in the Labor Leader's Death.

John Mitchell, for ten years President of the United Mine Workers of America, and next to Samuel Gompers probably the best known labor leader in the United States, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Post Graduate Hospital of pneumonia. He was operated on nine days ago for gallstones and was rallying when pneumonia set in.

At his bedside when the end came were his wife Katherine, his three sons, James, Richard, and Robert, and his daughter, Margaret Katherine. He was unconscious several hours before the end.

Mr. Mitchell's physicians noted a change for the worse on Monday and after a hurried consultation decided that blood transfusion was necessary. When they learned that without transfusion their father could not live Mr. Mitchell's sons, all of whom served in the navy during the war, begged that their blood be taken. Robert, 22 years old, being the youngest, was chosen. It had been planned to perform a second transfusion but Mr. Mitchell's condition became worse and at noon yesterday all hope for his recovery was abandoned.

Tribute by Governor.

Having been under the impression that Mr. Mitchell was recovering, Governor Alfred E. Smith called at the hospital at ten minutes past five yesterday, and was shocked to learn of the labor leader's death.

"The State of New York has lost a great citizen in the death of John Mitchell," the Governor said. "He was a vigorous character, self educated, a man of wonderful natural ability. He went to work at the age of 10 and died at the age of 49. For 39 years he worked hard. His work of recent years undermined his constitution and he evidently could not stand the shock. I shall miss him and regret his death more than I can say."

Mr. Mitchell was best known for his direction of the great coal strikes in 1900 and 1902. On the latter occasion President Roosevelt, from a sickbed, invited him to the White House together with George F. ("Divine Right") Baer, one of the employers, who strongly opposed the demands of the miners. Negotiations started which ended in a settlement, and thereafter John Mitchell was in demand wherever conciliation and arbitration were possible in industrial disputes. He had the confidence of the leaders of industry and finance, and it is said that his great ability in organization attracted the attention of the elder Morgan. After the White House conference of 1902 Mr. Mitchell and President Roosevelt became close friends.

Studied Law at Night.

Mr. Mitchell was born in Braidwood, Will County, Ill., Feb. 4, 1870. His father was a farmer, miner and Union soldier. At the age of 10 he began work on a farm and then drifted into mining. He studied at night and became interested in law and economics. In 1891 he married Katherine O'Rourke of Spring Valley, Ill. He was interested for some years in the Knights of Labor and in 1895 became Secretary-Treasurer of the sub-district of the United Mine Workers. He became organizer in 1897 and Vice President in 1898.

From 1899 to 1908 he was President of the organization. For three years after his retirement from the Mine Workers he lectured on industrial and labor problems. At this time he was head of the Trade Agreement Department of the National Civic Federation. He was Fourth Vice President of the American Federation of Labor from 1900 to 1914 and Second Vice President from 1911 to 1913, and was a member of the State Workmen's Commission in 1914-1915, and Chairman of the Federal Food Board during the war.

Richard Pintsch, Inventor, Dead.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, via Copenhagen, Sept. 9.—Privy Councillor Richard Pintsch, inventor of the Pintsch light, died yesterday, aged 80.

HORACE TRAUBEL, AUTHOR.

News was received here yesterday of the death of Horace Traubel, 60 years old, author, editor, and poet, and biographer and literary executor of Walt Whitman, which occurred at Bon Echo, Ontario, a literary colony, situated in one of the wildest and most deserted parts of the province. Mr. Traubel, whose home was at Camden, N. J., spent the Spring and Summer in New York City with friends at 2 Beekman Place. Accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Anne Montgomerie Traubel, and Frank Bain of Havana, one of his oldest friends, he left here about Aug. 1 for Bon Echo. He had suffered from heart attacks for the last year.

Mr. Traubel was born in Camden, N. J., on Dec. 9 1858, the son of Maurice and Katherine Grunder Traubel. He was educated in the public schools of Camden. In 1891, he married Miss Anne Montgomerie of Philadelphia. He was associated with Walt Whitman in Camden. With Thomas B. Harned, he became Whitman's literary executor. Mr. Traubel published three volumes of personal reminiscences of Whitman, entitled "Walt Whitman in Camden—a Diary."

JOHN McKEOWN DEAD.

Brooklyn Democratic Leader Served 11 Consecutive Terms in Assembly.

John McKeown, a veteran Democratic leader of Brooklyn, died yesterday at his home, 366 Jay Street, Brooklyn. Mr. McKeown came to this country from Ireland when 18 years of age and engaged in the shoe business in Canal Street. He was elected to the Board of Supervisors of Kings County in 1890 and was re-elected in 1892. For eleven consecutive terms, beginning with 1894, he represented the Second Assembly District of Kings County in the New York State Assembly, being Democratic minority leader for years and for some time Chairman of the Cities Committee.

Ex-Chief Justice A. R. Burnam.

RICHMOND, Ky., Sept. 9.—Anthony R. Burnam, 73 years old, former Chief Justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, died at his home here today after a long illness. Justice Burnam was widely known as a Republican leader, and for nearly fifty years was recognized as one of the State's foremost lawyers. His father, Curtis Field Burnam, was a member of President Grant's Cabinet.

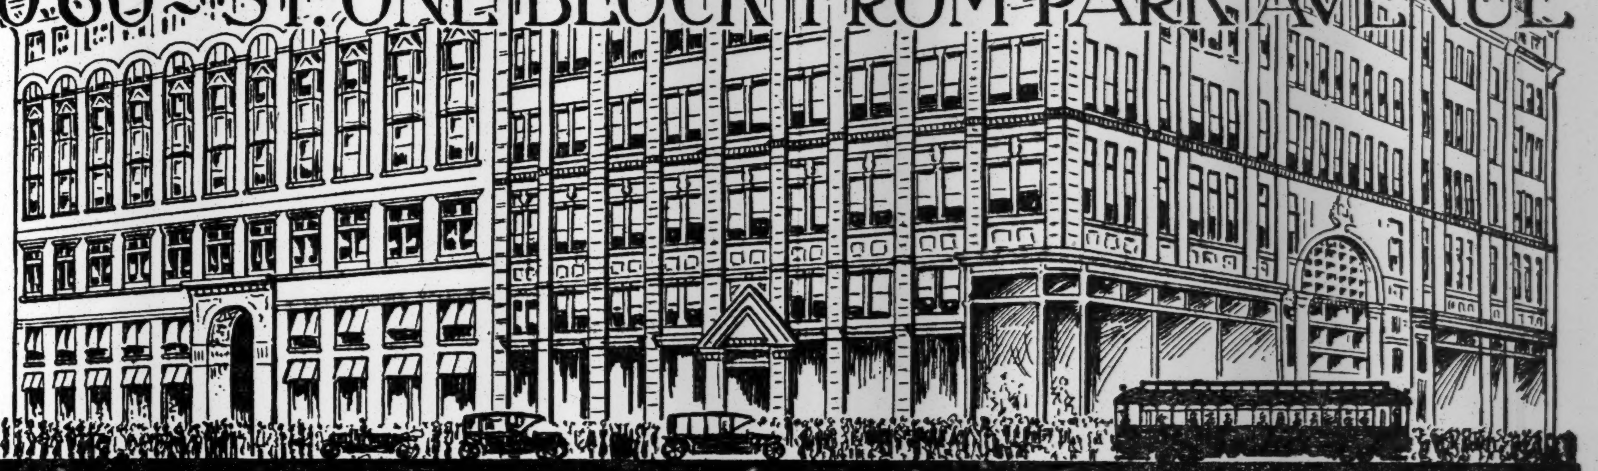
BLOOMINGDALES-ON-SUBWAYS

LEXINGTON AVENUE 59th TO 60th ST. ONE BLOCK FROM PARK AVENUE



Lyman G. Bloomingdale, founder of this business, at a banquet tendered by him to his executive staff in February, 1889, gave voice to these prophetic words:

> "Half a century from today Bloomingdales should be the greatest retail business in America. We occupy a strategic position. The transit of the future must center where we stand."

And it begins to look now as if Theodore Shonts and the B. R. T. management might beat him to it by about a decade.

ANOTHER SUBWAY WITH AN ENTRANCE RIGHT IN THE STORE

TIME was when this store was far off the beaten track. But that was long ago, when the principle of the cantilever had yet to be successfully applied to the spanning of a great river; and before Hotel Plaza on the one hand, and Bridge Plaza on the other, had served notice on a badly balanced city that its center of gravity had changed.

IN relation to the greatest urban transit system in the world, Bloomingdales has occupied a commanding position for many a day. And goodness knows it had no need of another subway to make it the store accessible.

YET that is just what has happened to us now for the new 60th Street extension of the Broadway (B. R. T.) Subway boasts of a spacious station at Lexington Avenue, the pretentious entrance to which is an integral part of our store building.

THIS new subway, originating in Brooklyn, comes under the East River to Canal Street, Manhattan, swings up under Broadway to 57th Street; across, diagonally, under 60th Street, to our store. And when completed—a matter of a few months at most—will continue its way under the East River again at 60th Street, to all subway points in Queensborough.

TRANSPORTATION has become a vital factor in the success of a retail store. And it seems fitting that we should call your attention, now, to the many and varied means by which, from all sections of Greater New York, you may now reach this establishment. And at the same time we may, with profit, consider just what sort of an institution Bloomingdales is.

NO other store is so typical of New York; no other store so typically New York. For New York is more than Fifth Avenue: New York is Third Avenue, Avenue A is as metropolitan as the Drive. The Bronx, no less than Broadway, plays its part in making New York a metropolis and Bloomingdales a metropolitan store.

FOR at the conflux of many roadways, all leading to greater Americanization, Bloomingdales stands, itself a melting pot of the nations. Here a little Chinese girl is fitted to a pair of Nature Shape shoes. There a Daughter of the American Revolution buys the prayer rug of a Bedouin. The wife of an East Side merchant comes here for her first chapeau, laying aside the precious shawl that is the head dress of her nation. The heiress of a western ranchman selects its lacy counterpart with which to drape her latest gown. For in its merchandise, no less than in its clientele, Bloomingdales is representative of all nations.

SO while New York has been busy building more and more convenient pathways to our door, we have been busy building a better and more convenient store for New York. Only recently the entire store has been rearranged—aisles widened and ways straightened—to make passage about the store as smooth and rapid as the routes that lead to it.

FOR while Bloomingdales stands firm in its chosen location,—stands firm, too, for the principles on which it was founded, and which, no less than its strategic location, are responsible for its present success,—Bloomingdales never stands still.

Nothing so aptly and powerfully suggests the strength and character of the Liberty National Bank as the emblem which it has chosen to symbolize its name to the business world.

PEACE OR WAR.

The alternative to peace is war. It is worth the while of any business man to labor with all his energy and all his influence for the speedy ratification of the Treaty. It is worth the while of any man or woman who loves peace and abhors war, of every American who would preserve and continue and strengthen the ties of friendship that now bind the people of the United States to the peoples of the chief civilized nations of the earth, it is worth the while of every voter who puts the obligation of justice and humanity above the interests of party to bring to bear upon the Senate whatever influence he may possess in favor of the ratification of the Treaty at once, without qualification or amendment. Give peace to the world first, afterward amend the Treaty if amendments are found to be necessary.

Peace can come only by the ratification of the Treaty. The obstructionists in the Senate would furiously resent the description of themselves as the party of war. We cannot for an instant believe that they consciously intend war, but they should remember that in law it is assumed that a man intends the necessary consequences of his own acts. They propose and intend the amendment of the Treaty. The necessary, the inevitable consequence of that will be the prolongation of the war indefinitely. We should be at war with Germany until we could prevail upon her to accept such a treaty as we should draw up; or until she could persuade us to accept her treaty. She protests against the severity of the Versailles Treaty. Should we be willing to sign a treaty less severe? That would be an unjust treaty, unjust to ourselves, to our associates in the war, to every nation that has been impoverished, and to every human being who bears a lifelong sorrow because of the crimes of Germany. The vast majority of the American people would protest against and denounce a treaty dictated by a spirit of tenderness toward the nation that has brought all this ruin upon the world. Yet Germany would consent to no other than a treaty of mildness and forgiveness, for our armies are disbanded, we are not and shall not be in a position to put upon her any constraint whatever. The Senate obstructionists, if they have their way, will force us into a situation where we must either give in to Germany, accept her terms, or else continue the state of war, it may be for years.

It is easy to understand the motives of the obstructionists, all the world knows what they are, but one is baffled in the attempt to read their minds, to get at the processes of their thinking. Here is Mr. LODGE, who says of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's "reservations" that the second of the reservations, relating to Article X. of the League Covenant, may be modified to meet the views of some Senators who think the wording too strong, who feel that "it appears "to reject the entire principle of par-"ticipation of the United States in "any war, no matter how it might "affect the United States itself," although this "is not the intent of the reservation." The Massachusetts Senator absolutely forces us to question either his intelligence or his morality. Any one can see that the second paragraph of the reservations absolutely rejects Article X. It declares that "the United States de-"clines to assume, under the pro-"vision of Article X., or any other "article, any obligation to preserve "the territorial integrity or political "independence of any other country "or to interfere in controversies be-"tween other nations members of the "League or not, or to employ the "military or naval forces of the "United States in such controversies, "or to adopt economic measures for "the protection of any other coun-"try"—in short, it specifically repudiates any agreement on the part of the United States to take part in the measures preventive of war contemplated by Article X. The words "except by action of the Congress of the United States," at the end of the paragraph, are—as we must believe—with malice, intent, and aforethought limited to the acceptance of mandate under Article XXII. This amendment of the Treaty, agreed to by the Foreign Relations Committee, would entail all the consequences we have indicated above. It would recommit the instrument to Versailles, where the other nations would inevitably reject the amendment, it would leave them to complete the Treaty without our participation, to set up the League of Nations without our membership, and we should stand alone in the world, a nation guilty of a monstrous act of perfidy and betrayal, not merely of the nations associated with us in making the Treaty, but of the cause of humanity, of right, of justice, of peace.

It is in the effort and with the hope of making the people of the country see and understand the consequences of rejecting the Treaty that Mr. WILSON is making his report to them upon the true meaning and purpose of the instrument signed at Versailles. It has been grossly misrepresented and misinterpreted, its plain meaning has been falsified, it has been tortured out of its natural purport by those who, in the fervor of their partisan zeal and in their rage against the President, have been almost beyond precedent reckless in seeking to amend out of the Treaty what it does not contain or to put into it guarantees which its language unmistakably gives. The obstructive Senators have apparently planned for a month or two of debate. Their partisan purpose is clearly disclosed by their agreement that the debate, contrary to all usage, shall be public. That means that they plan not only for delay, some of them hoping that delay will bring death to the Treaty, but that they have arranged for unlimited campaign oratory with a view to effect in next year's electoral contest. But for the fact which stares us in the face it would be inconceivable that men in responsible stations should make such a use of the great charter of human freedom, incomparably the most momentous compact ever submitted to any parliamentary body for consideration and acceptance.

PERSHING'S DIVISION.

The Victory Parade of the First Division with full equipment, led by General PERSHING, will be the climax of the processional shows celebrating the achievements of the American Army in France and the laying down of arms. All America would like to see the ranks go by under the Stars and Stripes and the regimental colors, with the famous soldier riding ahead, ideal leader of the heroic legion, and such as are privileged to be present on the historic occasion will be the envy of everybody else. To call the occasion historic is only to anticipate the judgment of those who come after us.

There will be other parades in which General PERSHING will take part, the idol of crowds who will regard him as the incarnation of that victory won by the American armies in France; but there will be no parade to match this one. General PERSHING comes here straight from the scene of his successes with laurels fresh upon him, and the division that he will lead is his favorite division, of whose record in the war he is exceedingly proud. It is to be one of the most memorable days in General PERSHING's life as well as in the lives of those who see him at the front of his beloved troops. He is home again among his own people, and for him there will be the satisfaction of showing his countrymen the division that peculiarly shared his glory in having been the first in France, landing in the month when General PERSHING himself arrived, and the division that covered itself with glory as a fighting organization on every field where it was ordered to advance. This is not an extravagance of speech, but the actual fact.

There is no need to use fine phrases in speaking of the deeds of the division whose men wear no insignia upon their shoulders. The figure 1 tells the story of their work in France. The Second Division alone can challenge the record, the Second which New York has seen on parade with its indomitable marines. If it is asked which was the best division in France, the answer is that there can be no choice between the First and the Second. They must be bracketed together as superlative. Better could not be found in the flower of the French Army or the British, judged by the ordeal of battle, the overwhelming of the enemy, the taking of guns, the capture of prisoners.

But this is the day of the First, PERSHING's Own. Whatever others think of it, he regards it as the best, in fact peerless. It was longer in the front line than any other division. It captured 164 German officers and 6,304 men. Its casualties were 4,411 killed and died of wounds and 17,201 wounded and gassed. Up to Nov. 11, 1918, the replacements were 30,206. When the armistice was signed General PERSHING singled out the First in General Orders, distinguishing it above all other divisions, and saying that "the Commander in Chief has "noted in this division a special "pride of service and a high state "of morale, never broken by hard-"ship or battle." General PERSHING expects the First to show New York today how his favorite regulars can march on parade, and the First knows that it must march better than any other division to vindicate the preference of the Commander in Chief in France.

THE BOSTON POLICE STRIKE.

There is only one side to the controversy between the patrolmen of Boston and its Police Commissioner, which resulted yesterday in a strike of the Policemen's Union. Inspired unconsciously by anti-social ideas, or acting by "suggestion" of their London and Liverpool brethren, in spite of the Commissioner's necessary order that members of the force should not belong to an outside organization, the patrolmen formed a union, chartered by the American Federation of Labor. The Commissioner brought charges against certain officers and members of the union. They were clearly guilty. He found them guilty and they were suspended until sentence.

A policeman has no more right to belong to a union than a soldier or a sailor. He must be ready to obey orders, the orders of his superiors, not those of any outside body. One of his duties is the maintenance of order in case of strike violence. In such a case, if he is faithful to his union, he may have to be unfaithful to the public, which pays him to protect it. The situation is false and impossible.

The disorderly and criminal element welcomes and takes advantage of police strikes, as was shown in Liverpool not long ago, to assault and burn and loot. It is the privilege of the Boston policemen to resign if they are not satisfied with the conditions of their employment. Those of them who leave their posts by agreement, so far as they can strip property and life of protection, commit a serious offense in the moral, if not in the legal, view. A volunteer police force in contemplation of the emergency has been forming in Boston for some days, but it is intolerable that a city should have to relapse to this rude and primitive system of defense, that it should be deserted by men who misunderstand their position and function as policemen, and who take their orders from outside. It is improbable that the police strike will be developed to dangerous proportions in an American city as it was in Liverpool, but it is an imported, revolutionary idea that may spread to various cities. There should be plain and stern law against it. It is practically an analogue of military desertion. Conceivably, it might bring upon a community a considerable disaster. This agreed and combined desertion is much more dangerous than individual desertion. While no such severe punishment as military desertion entails would be thought of in connection with wholesale police desertion, it ought to be punished suitably and repressed.

CARDINAL MERCIER.

Apart from and above every other figure of the war, that of Cardinal MERCIER stands august, not merely a symbol of the steady courage and long endurance of his Belgian people, but of faith in the triumph of good over evil. A man of the people, long dedicated to the study of theology and scholastic philosophy, he became an Archbishop and a Cardinal in whom revived not only the antique type of the pastor, counselor, and friend of his flock, but a great administrator and, in the agony of his country, the inflexible protector of civilization against barbarism. Studying him we begin to understand LEO the Great and GREGORY the Great; but the Lombards were lambs compared with the Germans, and GENSERIC and ATTILA milk-livered humanitarians in comparison with VON BISSING and the other German masters of Belgium.

The motto of his coat-in-arms is "Apostolos Jesu Christi," an Apostle of Jesus Christ. There is an apostolic energy, love of truth, large religious spirit, candor and courage in all those pastorals and addresses which have made his name famous around the world. The massacres of August and September, 1914, the destruction of immemorial monuments of art and religion and the humanities, the bombardment of "our dear City of Malines," its episcopal palace and metropolitan church, the first stations of Belgium's long Calvary, brought from him the immortal Christmas pastoral which told the Belgians that their duty was "patriotism and endurance." "I hold it as "part of my episcopal office to in-"struct you as to your duty in face "of the Power that has invaded our "soil and now occupies the greater "part of our country. The authority "of that Power is no lawful author-"ity. Therefore, in soul or con-"science, you owe it neither respect, "nor attachment, nor obedience." The Germans burned what copies of it they could lay their hands on. With more than savage insolence they tried to call him from the mass and force him into an apology. Then, and afterward, they could not bend his lofty resolution. He would not sell his own or his "country's honor." They itched to arrest him, but they did not dare. His appeal to the German, Bavarian, and Austro-Hungarian Bishops and Cardinals, his messages of consolation and strengthening to his people, his protests against their deportation and servitude—a long series of brave and dignified words and acts were to be his; and at length his unfaltering faith was to see the triumph of right and the salvation of his country.

In BRAND WHITLOCK's "Belgium" there is more than one vivid picture of this character of mingled austerity and charm, strong, gentle, inflexible, commanding, and salient, as if some great "athlete of the Church" had been reborn from mediaeval times:

> I told him that after the war he would have to make a voyage to America, where he was so much loved and admired, and when I related how Protestant clergymen and Jewish rabbis had united with the priests of his own faith to praise his courage and to extol his patriotism, he looked at me in the astonishment that was the product of his modesty. * * * I wish more than all that I might give some sense of the charm and puissance of his personality. The effect of his visit was most uplifting. He is one of those great beings that, in a world crowded with little men, lift themselves far above the mass and by the sheer force of moral grandeur radiate sweetness and light. In his presence all cares, all petty feelings, and all haunting fears fade away; one is before eternal verities, and we felt that night as though we had had a prophet in the house. Did not our hearts burn within us as he talked with us by the way?

From books and pictures, from statues and windows of cathedrals, saints and prophets look at us. It had been thought that they were unintelligible to these later times. A saint and prophet, the most admirable and the most exalted actor on the scene of nations for four years, has come to New York. He finds here a whole nation of friends.

THE MIND OF THE NATION.

Is Bolshevism permeating the national mind? As to the official mind—the mind that functions in the Halls of Congress, in the White House, Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and way stations—we may rest assured that it is not. But in the long run it is the unofficial mind that counts, and that is revealed only upon occasion, in glimpses.

At a moving picture house of late there was an uproar. A Russian film was on the reel, and when the Bolsheviki were shown in the act of breaking into the houses of the well-to-do and murdering the owners, one MANUEL LOPEZ applauded. The mind of the nation manifested itself in instant hisses. Presently the Reds on the screen declared that priests and clergy were mere tools of the bourgeoisie, that there must be an end of them, too. Again LOPEZ smote his hands together in loud approval. This time angry shouts rose on all sides. There was a general rush for the offender, in which several women joined. The mind of the nation registered itself in abrasions on the face of LOPEZ. Fortunately, Trooper ROBERTS of the State Constabulary was at hand, and he asserted the reign of law, but a number of the audience forsook the excitements of the screen to see the offender taken to the police station.

A lecture room of the Rand School, some months ago, was the scene of an even more significant occurrence. In response to a call for the formation of a soviet of soldiers, sailors, and workmen, a handful of boys in uniform appeared. They heard the appeal of the lecturer in silence, foregathered for a moment in the lobby, and then departed. During the following hour the lecture room was occupied by a committee on the housing problem—a very earnest, well-meaning committee. Their peaceful deliberations were interrupted by the return of the soldiers and sailors, now reinforced by double their original numbers. In spite of the protests and explanations of the housing committee, they were ejected into the street. Then chairs and lecturer's table were hurled after them. When the room was a complete wreck the newly formed soviet departed.

Disorder is, of course, disorder, and it is generally suppressed as such. But as evidence it sometimes has value. When JOWETT was master of Balliol he kept a keen eye upon undergraduate "ragging," but seldom allowed it to disturb his philosophic calm. During one rag in the quad his library windows were smashed in. "I see," he said in the morning, viewing the wreckage, "the mind of the col-"lege is still vigorous! It has been "asserting itself!"

AN AMERICAN LABOR LEADER.

Of JOHN MITCHELL, who died in this city yesterday, Chairman STRAUS of the Public Service Commission said on the occasion of a dinner given to Mr. MITCHELL on his forty-eighth birthday that he had made as large a contribution as any man of his day and generation to the mutual welfare of employers and wage earners. JOHN MITCHELL was one of the most remarkable Americans of our time, judged by his triumph over difficulties of birth and environment and the influence as a citizen which he exercised in the last half of a toilsome and active life. He was born in the pit's mouth, going to school from 4 to 10. At 12 he was working in a coal mine. At 25 he was an officer of the United Mine Workers of America, self-educated, an authority on economics, and something of a lawyer, all his learning acquired under the lamp after the day's labor.

JOHN MITCHELL was under 30 when he became President of the United Mine Workers of America, and for nine years he fought its battles without losing the respect of any man. His common sense, his fairness in controversy, his courage, and his public spirit made him a national figure. It was due largely to him that the anthracite strike of 1902 was arbitrated by a commission which President ROOSEVELT, always an admirer of JOHN MITCHELL, appointed. Mr. BRYAN thought so highly of him as to make overtures to the labor leader to become a candidate for Vice President on one of his tickets. In this State JOHN MITCHELL had been talked of for Governor. He wrote well and forcibly upon labor topics.

In the last years of his life he was in great demand for industrial commissions, and during the war he served at the head of the Food Administration of the State. JOHN MITCHELL, who had become one of the most useful of citizens from an obscure origin, was less than 50 when he died. There was no more stalwart champion of organized labor, but his voice was always raised for peaceful and honorable settlements of its disputes with capital. His was a militant but a sane and patriotic influence. He was an evolutional but not a revolutionary reformer of labor conditions. JOHN MITCHELL's death is a loss to the country at a time when labor has so few intelligent counselors.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Unfamiliar Praise of New York.

So wont are the inhabitants of this city to hearing from the rest of the country comments far from affectionate on their manners and morals that they must have read with a peculiar satisfaction in which there was an element of surprise one sentence in General PERSHING's reply to the Mayor's speech of welcome. After saying that New York City's part in the war had been a great one, both as regards men sent into the army and money contributed for their support in the field, the General added: "New York City's attitude has been accepted everywhere, at home and abroad, as that of the whole country."

If there has been that acceptance—and as to abroad, at least, the General speaks with authority—it is something entirely new. Innumerable times, by critics of all sorts, foreign and domestic, New York has been declared to be the least American of all our cities, and its departure from an assumed—and largely imaginary—type, while far from being the only or the least of the accusations against us, almost always has been the first to be made, and on it agreement has been unanimous.

Indeed, New Yorkers have heard the charge so often that they have come to believe it themselves, or at any rate to despair of disproving it. Yet it never had any basis in truth, and even the often-mentioned heterogeneity of our population gives us a much better right to call the city distinctively American than does the accident of having been originally settled by a single group of immigrants and of not having attracted, since, people of a different origin.

They Scorn, and Yet They Come.

That New York is an—even the—American city is to be seen, by those who will, in the fact that always and invariably it has done at least its part in all the activities of which Americans, as such, with most reason have been proud. The rôle its men and its money played in the great war is only the latest of innumerable demonstrations of New York's willingness and ability to advance American causes. Whether its "attitude" is now admitted or proclaimed to be that of the whole country, by the whole country—well, that we will wait to see, and with no very hopeful expectations.

It is an unquestionable fact that most inhabitants of the American hinterland profess, and a good many of them seem sincerely to feel, distrust and dislike of New York and of New Yorkers. It seems to be something more than the world-wide and immemorial animosity or unfriendliness between urban and rural people. It is acerbated by the general identification of New York with "Wall Street," and the consequent holding of New Yorkers responsible for losses incurred in rash speculations. The farmers, too, have had sad experiences with produce shipped to New York commission men, not all of whom, according to rumor, have been brilliant exemplars of honesty and good faith.

Yet in spite of New York's established unpopularity, its powers of attraction extend all over the country, and to it come every year an unending procession of young Americans in search of fortune and of old Americans who have already acquired one. And all of them except the failures stay here. Instead of going back home they join societies with the names of home States or cities, and at annual dinners they make eloquent but amusingly insincere assertions as to where true happiness and real virtue alone exist. They, and not the native born, are the typical New Yorkers, and if it be true that New York is un-American, it is their own fault, for they make it what it is.

His Service Is Not Forgotten.

General MARCH is deserving of commendation for having given public expression to the wish that men in the army, or recently discharged from it, be treated exactly like anybody else if they break the law. That is the attitude every military man should take, for to him the wearing or the having worn a uniform creates no claim for exemption from the legal penalties of misconduct. Indeed, both the soldier and the ex-soldier are under a special obligation to guard well their walk. Each represents his country in a different, if not a higher, way than does the civilian, and his responsibility to his country is explicit instead of being merely implicit, for he has taken an oath to protect and exalt its honor.

All that is true, and it is a fine theory. In practice, however, the principle should be shaded just a little, and, as a matter of fact, most Judges do so. The soldier who comes into court with a record of dangerous service well rendered, and perhaps wearing a decoration for gallantry, is not going to be treated with severity unless his offending has been persistent and heinous. Justice in his case will be mitigated by mercy and gratitude, and there will be consideration for the faults that are the obverse of his qualities. Fortunately, however, these drafts upon accorded credit are not frequent or large. The good soldier makes a good citizen. Else would the war have been worse than lost, for our good soldiers run well up into the millions.

Clearing the Sea of Mines.

A brief dispatch from London announced yesterday that the work of clearing the North Sea of mines was approaching completion, and that by another month the navigation of those much frequented waters would be safe again. This most desirable result is generously credited to the American mine sweepers, to which the difficult and dangerous work has been intrusted of late, and they are said to have performed it with a rapidity far exceeding expectations.

The news is good and the praise acceptable, but it can hardly be hoped that every one of the almost innumerable mines planted by both the Germans and their enemies will be found and exploded by the devoted seekers of them. Nothing like the same number were used on the coast of Asia during the Russian-Japanese war, and for several years afterward there were occasional wreckings of merchant ships due to collision with mines still afloat.

The two cases are different, however, as the search for these perilous obstructions now has been far more thorough than then, and made with far better facilities than then.

FRUITS OF THEIR VICTORY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial article entitled "Setting the Clock Back," you ask: "Is it not true that the thinking men who went to war from our country and from Britain and France did definitely believe and hope that they were warring to end war?" I am one who went, and I went with precisely that belief and hope.

I did not have to go. My wife and baby were dependent wholly upon my daily work for their existence. There were millions of unmarried and younger men answering the call. I had reached that point in a professional career where a modest measure of success seemed within my grasp. To relinquish it by going to war meant to abandon much of the benefit of a considerable period of hard work.

And yet my wife and I knew that I must heed the call. There was a job to do and we knew that we must help all we could. And that meant my going and her staying alone. And this inevitable course made us hate war more than we had ever hated anything.

When at last the call came clearly and surely to us, we put our affairs in order against the possibility of my not returning, and I volunteered for service in the army, while my wife began her long, anxious waiting. We did our utmost for sixteen months, she in America, I in France.

Now our experience was not different from that of many, many others. It is worth relating only because it may emphasize the importance we attached to our reason for "doing our bit." That reason was our belief and hope that we "were warring to end war." We did our utmost, recognizing fully the grave dangers, in order that our baby girl should not have to give her husband or her son in some future, more horrible and gigantic war. We did our utmost so that we, if we were fortunate, and, surely, our children down the ages, might live in a future United States of the earth, from which war had been banished.

Moreover, in this point of view we were in agreement with hundreds of men with whom I served in France. We could endure our lot over there and prosecute our task with confidence in the outcome because we felt and believed we were fighting the last great war, and we meant not to spare ourselves until this were an assured fact.

The covenant of the League of Nations is the fruit of our endeavor. Would the Senate rob us of it? Some of us died in this endeavor. Dares the Senate break faith with them?

The old order must not be re-established. The covenant of the League of Nations offers us a new order, such as we fought for. Is it possible that my country may take the lead in defeating the consummation of this new order? We may wish it were a better covenant, but can sensible people doubt that in the present state of affairs it is the best for which we can be sure of securing worldwide acceptance?

Let the League be established, and straightway. The covenant will be developed as our Constitution has been developed, with amendments and interpretations. But let us not decline this opportunity to assist in establishing peace, co-operation, and international righteousness upon the earth.

Keep faith with the men who fought and the men who died and the women who prayed and waited.

PERSHING RIDES.

Hero, advance! This is your day! The Avenue of your Allies
For you its meed of banners flies; now are you King of this highway.
Bronzed by the strife, and nobly cast and tested in its fiercest fire,
Designed our country to inspire, you in its heart of hearts stand fast,
To greet you sacred banners wave. (There follow you more sacred yet,
At sight of which the eyes are wet.) A nation's heart acclaims you brave:
Its chief in history's sternest war, fought by the strong, the weak to free,
Whose dearest sign of liberty is still the golden service-star.
For, lo, there ride, between the ranks of heroes, still more glorious dead,
And hearts in memory have said, "For these high souls we offer thanks!"
Though we their laurels do not see, their Life than this our life is more,
Their death is but an open door to higher ways of Liberty. . . .
The freedom of this Avenue is theirs to grant you on this hour,
The laurel wreath of memory's flower is the high crown they offer you. . . .
We know what sights your eyes have seen; we know your heart has wept and bled,
Your heart remembering our dead, whose memory is ever green. . . .
Hero, advance! O tested soul, yours is the leadership of men!
Your country welcomes you again, who, steadfast, won its noble goal!

CRITICISM OF THE CUMMINS RAILROAD BILL.

"Provisions Do Not Furnish a Clear or Definite or Workable Standard for Fixing Rates."

By VICTOR MORAWETZ.

New York, Sept. 8, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Railroad bill recently introduced in the United States Senate by Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, contains some excellent provisions; but a number of its provisions are unworkable and, taken as a whole, the bill fails to meet the essential requirements of the railway situation. Unless amended in important particulars, it would fail to solve the railway problem, and, in my opinion, would make conditions worse than ever before. In this letter I shall call attention to only one of the radical defects of the bill.

To provide adequate railway service in this rapidly growing country requires an expenditure of approximately a thousand million dollars per annum for improvements and additions, enlarging the capacity of the existing lines, and for the construction and equipment of branches and extensions into territory not adequately supplied with transportation facilities. For more than ten years there has been a gradual deterioration of railway credit, so that even before our entry into the war the railway companies were unable to raise the new capital which they urgently needed. The financing of new railway projects was practically killed.

This deterioration of railway credit with the consequent inability of the majority of the railway companies to raise necessary capital was not due to the insufficiency of the incomes of the companies, but it was due to the loss of confidence of investors in the stability of railway incomes. Prior to the war the incomes of most of the important companies would have been sufficient to sustain their credit if investors had felt confidence that these incomes would continue. Investors lost confidence in the stability of railway incomes and in the safety of railway stocks and bonds, (except bonds of a few of the strongest companies,) because no definite and practicable rule or standard for fixing railway rates was prescribed by law. Investors feared—I think rightly—that in the long run the Interstate Commerce Commission and the several State commissions would not allow the railway companies to charge the rates necessary to enable them to continue to pay the interest on their bonds and the usual dividends on their stocks.

Congress, and probably every State Legislature, had enacted that railway rates shall be "reasonable and just," and probably every Appellate Court in the land has held that, as a matter of law, the rates charged by the companies or imposed by the commissions must be reasonable. But no one ever devised any practicable method of determining the reasonableness or fairness or justice of a particular railway rate, or of a complete schedule of rates.

The Constitution in effect prohibits Congress and the State Legislatures and their commissions from fixing rates so low as to deprive the railway companies of a fair return on their property. But the Constitution furnishes no standard for determining what is a fair return on railway property and no definite and practicable standard was ever supplied by Congress or by the courts.

In view of the uncertainty as to the meaning and effect of the statutory provisions that railway rates shall be reasonable and just, and as to the meaning and effect of the constitutional provision for the protection of property rights as applied to railway property, they failed to give the necessary confidence to investors. The right to maintain a lawsuit against Government officials to restrain the enforcement of confiscatory rate regulations was not a sufficient assurance to attract capital.

A simple and obvious way of meeting the situation and of re-establishing railway credit would be to require the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix railway rates in each rate district in such manner as to yield some definitely fixed return on the existing railway properties in the rate district, together with the actual cost, payable in the form of interest and dividends, for capital hereafter obtained and expended under the direction of the Interstate Commerce Commission or the proposed Railway Transportation Board. However, the Cummins bill fails to prescribe this or any other practical standard for fixing rates or railway incomes.

The bill provides that, for the purpose of ascertaining the adequacy of rates to produce revenues as provided in the act, the commission shall divide the country into rate districts and the carriers into rate groups, "each group of carriers to comprise the railways in one of said rate districts." It should be observed here that the lines of many of the companies now extend into several rate districts and that it would be wholly impossible to subdivide the country for rate-making purposes in such manner as to make all the lines of each company coincide with some one rate district.

It is impossible to do justice to the provisions of the bill for the future regulation of rates except by quoting them in full. Section 6 provides as follows:

> In dividing the country into districts and the carriers into rate-making groups the commission shall have in view the similarity of transportation and traffic conditions therein. Rates of transportation shall at all times be just and reasonable. In changing or modifying them from time to time in the manner provided in the act to regulate commerce, as amended, and in viewing them from the standpoint of their effect in producing revenue in any rate-making group as a whole, the commission shall take into consideration the interest of the public, the shippers, the wages of labor, the cost of maintenance and operation, (including taxes,) a fair return upon the value of the property in the group and used for or held for the service of transportation, the requirements for additional capital in order to enable the carriers to adequately perform their duties to the public and the conditions under which the same can be secured; and for the purposes aforesaid the commission shall from time to time determine the value of the property in each district and so lower or advance the rates of transportation, as nearly as may be, to provide said fair return as herein provided.

It is further provided that "in applying the foregoing rule a comprehensive view of the rate-making group shall be taken and the level of rates, fares, and charges shall be determined with reasonable reference to average conditions therein."

Whatever may be said of these provisions, it is certain that they do not furnish a clear or definite or workable standard for fixing rates. The re-enactment of the time-honored but fruitless provision that "rates shall at all times be just and reasonable" certainly furnishes no standard. It is certain also that the future action of the commission in fixing rates is not made definite and certain by the provisions that in changing rates and "in viewing them from the standpoint of their effect in producing revenue in any rate-making group as a whole" the commission shall "take into consideration" the several matters enumerated and that "in applying the foregoing rule" a comprehensive view of the rate-making group shall be taken and that the level of rates "shall be determined with reasonable reference to average conditions therein."

Only one clause in the bill has even the semblance of furnishing a standard for fixing rates; but to give it that effect the other provisions above referred to must be treated as mere expressions of a pious purpose and of no legal effect. I refer to the clause that "the commission shall from time to time value the property in each district and so lower or advance the rates of transportation, as nearly as may be, to provide said fair return as herein provided."

This clause, however, fails to furnish any definite or practicable standard for the following reasons:

(1) Both the valuation of the railways in each rate district and the rate of return thereon are left practically to the unregulated discretion of the commission. The value of the railways in a rate district cannot mean their value in the usual and proper sense of the term (that is to say, their pecuniary or selling value) because this depends upon the income or return that can be obtained from their operation, and the income or return depends upon the rates that can be charged. As the value of the railways depends upon the rates that can be charged, it would be absurd to attempt to base rates upon the value of the railways. Evidently it was the intention of the framer of the bill that the value of the railways for rate-making purposes should be fixed by the commission under the act of Congress of 1913. Under that act the commission was directed to ascertain and report to Congress the "value" of all the physical property owned by each carrier, specifying in detail as to each piece of property, its original cost, its cost of reproduction new, its cost of reproduction less depreciation, and various other matters, including "other values and elements of value, if any," and an analysis of the methods of valuation employed. The act of Congress does not indicate whether this so-called "value" is to be the original cost, or cost of reproduction new, or cost of reproduction less depreciation, but, in effect, it gives the commission an unregulated discretionary power to value the railways as it sees fit.

(2) The bill provides no rule or standard whatever for determining the rate of return upon the value of the railways, as fixed by the commission, that is to be deemed fair.

(3) The income or return of the railway companies would fluctuate according to the valuation from time to time placed by the commission on their properties and the rate of return from time to time fixed by the commission. Yet it is obvious that the railway companies cannot from time to time reduce the interest rate on their obligations to meet a lower valuation of their properties or a lower return fixed by the commission. Who would furnish new capital to the railway companies under a statute making their income depend upon periodical valuations of the properties in the so-called rate groups and periodical decisions of the commission as to the rate of return on such valuations to be deemed fair?

The Cummins bill not only fails to prescribe any standard for fixing the rates and aggregate incomes of the railways in a rate group, but it provides that if in any year any railway company should receive "more than a fair return, to be determined by the commission, upon the value of its property" the excess shall be paid over to the Transportation Board, which is to invest one-half of such excess for the benefit of railway employes while the other half, apparently, is to belong to the Government, but is to be expended by the board in purchasing equipment to be leased to the carriers or is to be loaned to them if they are unable to secure capital elsewhere. If, however, in any year, the rates fixed by the commission should fail to yield to a railway company the fair return fixed by the commission, or any return whatever, the loss would fall upon the company's bondholders and stockholders. The unfairness of such an arrangement requires no comment. It seems obvious, also, that it would not serve to restore confidence in railway investments or to encourage initiative, enterprise, or economy in the management of those companies which are able to earn more than the so-called "fair return" allowed by the commission.

It is difficult to understand why Congress seems to be unwilling to treat investors in railway stocks and bonds in a fair and businesslike manner. The country certainly cannot be benefited by a relatively trifling saving of railway rates effected at the expense of millions of citizens who invested in railway securities on the faith of the incomes received by the railway companies during years of stringent rate regulation. One of the greatest needs of the day is the restoration of the credit of public service enterprises. To invite investors to furnish new capital so urgently needed by the country for railway purposes upon assurances no more definite and fair than those furnished by the Cummins bill would be useless. The required capital would not be forthcoming. In any event, no capital would be forthcoming except at interest rates high enough to cover the risk and uncertainty of arbitrary rate regulation.

Where a Bonus Would Help.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read Mr. Tuttle's letter against soldiers' grants with great interest. I believe Mr. Tuttle sincere in his attitude, but also believe he has not considered the facts in the case as they pertain to some of us other ex-service men.

My own case, for instance: I spent over two years in active service, and when released received my $60 bonus. I then came home to don my civilian clothes, and lo! nothing would fit me.

I had to buy two suits of clothes, shoes, shirts, hat, collars, &c. The only article of clothing that would still fit me was my necktie. I spent over $120 for clothes, went two months looking for a job, (a patriotic stay-at-home had my former one,) and am trying to keep up my insurance. I still owe $75, and with prices as they are may be able to pay it off in time for the next war.

Put yourself in my place for a moment and see how a bonus of $100 or $200 would help me.

In Memoriam

BROWNING.—At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK, held at the bank, in the City of New York, on the 9th day of September, 1919, the President announced the death of John Scott Browning, at his Summer residence, Sands Point, Long Island, on Sunday, Aug. 31, 1919, on the 56th anniversary of his birth.

Whereas, John Scott Browning became a member of this Board on Jan. 11, 1916, and has performed the duties of a Director with indefatigable diligence and careful attention. Unfailing courtesy and harmonious co-operation marked his intercourse with his fellow Directors and commanded their high regard and esteem; and

Whereas, the Directors realize most keenly the loss they have suffered, in common with those many others who had learned to love him and to rely upon his strength and counsel;

Therefore be it

Resolved, that in the death of Mr. Browning the members of the Board lose a valued associate whose advice was wise and prudent and a friend whose kindly manner and genial presence will be greatly missed.

GIANTS LOSE FIRST GAME AND WIN SECOND IN A DOUBLE TUSSLE WITH THE CUBS IN CHICAGO

GIANTS GET EVEN BREAK WITH CUBS

NEHF STRONG IN SECOND

Southpaw Holds Mitchell's Men Safe While New Yorkers Score Easy Victory Over Martin, 7 to 1.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—The Giants opened their final Western invasion of the season with a double-header here this afternoon, and got an even break on the twin bill with the Cubs. The faded champions took the measure of McGraw's men in the opener by the score of 4 to 1, but the Giants came back strong in the nightcap number, and, through the medium of timely hitting and skillful pitching, they got the verdict, 7 to 1. Each game was virtually settled before the first inning was completed.

A double accident at the plate marred the opening contest. In the fifth inning, with Flack on third base, Lee Magee bunted for a squeeze play. The ball went in front of the plate and Dubuc, after a quick pick-up, threw to Gonzales in time to retire the runner. In sliding into the plate, Flack sprained an ankle and had to be carried from the field. It is not likely that he will be able to play again this season. In making the play on Flack, Gonzales had the misfortune to get his right thumb in the way of the outfielder's spikes and was cut. The Cuban, after some first aid treatment, returned to his position and finished the game. Before suffering the injury Flack had made two sensational catches, robbing Fletcher and Kelly of hits for extra bases.

Jess Barnes, who has been McGraw's most consistent winner this season, was Jim Vaughn's opponent for a few minutes in the opening engagement. The tall right-hander drew a reception that was warmer than any he had heretofore experienced in a New York uniform and he was on his way to the showers before the first out had been made in the Cubs' half of the first inning. Jean Dubuc came on and gave a fine account of himself, though he was working in a lost cause. The veteran, who pitched practically an entire game since he came in with none out in the first frame, allowed two clean singles and four infield rollers during the remainder of the game.

Jim Vaughn was a puzzle to the Giants at all times. He scattered their seven hits through six different frames, the fifth being the only inning in which McGraw's men were able to bunch two safeties. That accounted for the one run which saved the Giants from a shutout. In three other innings New York runners reached third base, but the big southpaw tightened when danger threatened and prevented any more scoring.

Robertson's Hit Settles Game.

It was Davy Robertson, a one-time Giant, who buried his old team in defeat this afternoon, just as he did on a previous visit of the McGrawmen to the North Side Park. Davey did not clout a home run this time, but he delivered the smash that won the game. He found the bases crowded when he faced Barnes in the first inning, and he promptly relieved the congestion by slapping a double to left field, on which all three runners romped home. Barnes romped out of the game, too, as a result of the wallop.

The Cubs had the game packed away before the Giants made a murmur. Flack greeted Barnes in the home half of the first inning with a single to left, and Hollocher beat out a roller to Frisch. Herzog laid down a perfect bunt along the first base line and the bases were filled. Then came Robertson with the drive to left field for two bases, scoring Flack, Hollocher, and Herzog. Dubuc came on as Barnes's successor and retired the side in order.

The one run scored by the Cubs off Dubuc arrived in the second inning. Killefer singled to left, and Vaughn's sacrifice advanced him to second. He moved along to third while Frisch was throwing out Flack, and scored on Hollocher's single to left. Hollocher stole second, and reached third on Herzog's infield hit, but was thrown out at the plate on an attempted double steal. During the remaining innings the Cubs got three scratch hits off Dubuc, two slow rollers to Zimmerman and one to Kelly.

The Giants escaped a shutout in the fifth inning. With one out, Gonzales hit to centre field for two bases, reached third on Dubuc's infield out, and counted on Burns's single to centre. McGraw's men threatened in the sixth and eighth innings, having runners left on third base in each frame.

Second Easy for Nehf.

Art Nehf opposed Speed Martin in the second game and the New York southpaw simply breezed along to an easy victory. Martin started the Giants on their way to clusters of runs in three different innings with passes and Nehf was able to take things easy after the third inning. Nehf allowed four scattered hits up to the seventh inning and was so far ahead then that he did not exert himself in the closing chapters. The Cubs managed to get four more hits near the close of the game but could do no more scoring. The New York southpaw got errorless support and was never in any danger.

Catches by Burns and Frisch featured this contest. In the fifth inning Frisch made a wonderful catch of a line drive from Hollocher's bat that was the fielding gem of the double header. Burns had made a spectacular running catch of Herzog's drive in the third frame.

The Giants, held to one run by Vaughn in the first game, doubled this total in the first inning of the second engagement. Burns walked, Young flied to McCabe, and Fletcher's infield out sent Burns to third. Zimmerman planted a single in left field which sent Burns over the plate. Heinie raced to second on the throw-in, took an extra base on Barber's poor return, and scored on Frisch's double to right. Frisch tried to score when Kauff bounced a hit past Merkle, but Fred recovered the ball and got the Fordham Flash at the plate.

Chicago's only run came in the same inning. With one out Hollocher walked and raced to third on Herzog's single to centre. While Robertson was forcing Herzog at second base, Hollocher raced over the plate.

Three More for Giants.

McGraw's men added three more runs in the third. Burns drew his second pass, took third on Young's single to centre, and Young reached second on the throw-in. Fletcher's triple to left scored both runners, and Fletcher registered when Zim got his second hit, a single to left. An infield out put Zim on second, and he stole third, but was left.

The scoring ended in the fourth. Snyder walked, Nehf popped to Herzog, and Burns grounded to Hollocher, whose throw to second was too late to get Snyder. Young's smash to centre scored Snyder and put Burns on third, from where he scored while Martin was throwing Fletcher out at first base.

PIRATES WIN TWO GAMES.

Boston Braves Lose Double-Header to Pittsburgh by 6-3, 6-1.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 9.—Pittsburgh defeated Boston in both games of a double-header today, 6 to 3 and 6 to 1. In the first game Carlson out-pitched Scott, but received poor support. Scott weakened in the last part of the game and the Pirates hammered out a victory. Adams did splendid pitching in the second game, the one run made by the Braves being the result of Terry's error. Keating was hit hard throughout the contest. The scores:

YANKEES IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Carl Mays to Pitch One Game Against Cleveland Indians Today.

Rain cut in on the schedule of the Yankees yesterday and the game with the Cleveland Indians was postponed until today. The Yanks and Indians will hook up in a double header this afternoon, the first game starting at 1:30 o'clock. The Cleveland team will make its last appearance of the season at the Polo Grounds tomorrow, when a single game will be played.

The series that opens today means much to the Yankees in their fight for a higher position. The double setback at the hands of the Red Sox on Monday was quite a blow to the Huggins's forces, but they still are close enough to the Indians and Tigers to pass either club within a few days. This morning the Cleveland team, in second place, is only four games ahead of the Yankees, and the Tigers, in third place, lead Huggins's men by only three games.

Carl Mays, who lost a two-hit game to the Indians at Cleveland recently, is carded to pitch one game of the double-header this afternoon, and either Bob Shawkey or Jack Quinn will do the honors in the other engagement. Ray Caldwell will pitch one game for the Indians, and either Myers or Bagby will occupy the mound in the other.

CARDS GET ENOUGH IN FIRST TO WIN

Wallop Sherry Smith at Outset of Game, and Robins Just Fail to Overcome Lead.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9.—Sherrod Smith, Brooklyn's portsider, was subjected to assault in the first degree here this afternoon in his first inning against the St. Louis Cardinals. As a result the Robins dropped the first game in their final St. Louis clash of the season. St. Louis's margin of victory was measured by 4 to 3.

The lambasting Smith experienced in the first inning wasn't the only thing which accounted for the Cardinals' triumph. Big Ed Konetchy and little Pete Kilduff contributed a pair of errors which came betwixt and between a salvo of five safe blows, and the damage was done. In that terrible opening frame the Cardinals rolled up their four runs while the Brooklyn machine was in reverse gear.

Smith settled to his task in the succeeding innings, however, and held the Cardinals in check. He permitted but four hits for the remainder of the game and these were so well scattered as to be of no avail. The Robins, showing some of the fighting spirit which marked their early season campaign, tried with all the means at their command to retrieve the game, but Bill Doak's variety of hooks and slants prevented the Brooklynites from attaining their object up to the eighth. With visions of a last-minute stand by the Robins and the danger of Doak cracking under the anticipated ordeal, Manager Branch Rickey sent Bill Sherdel to the mound for the eighth and ninth innings. The strategy proved effective for the Robins were unable to do anything with the offerings of Doak's successor.

Schultz Opens the Assault.

Schultz opened the first-inning attack on Smith when he cracked out a single to Hy Myers's territory. Heathcote followed with a sacrifice bunt to Kilduff, and both runners were safe when Konetchy let Kilduff's throw slip through his fingers. A single to left by Stock chased Schultz over the rubber and placed Heathcote on second. Rogers Hornsby dropped a sacrifice bunt along the third-base line which excited Pete Kilduff beyond belief. Pete fielded the ball well enough, but, without stopping to survey the conditions about him, he heaved mightily to first base.

Unfortunately for the Robins, Konetchy was not then at his accustomed position, so the ball continued on an uninterrupted journey to foul territory, while Heathcote and Stock journeyed home and Hornsby sped over the base paths to third. Rogers didn't wait about the far corner long, however, for he scampered home with the fourth Cardinal run while Johnston was disposing of McHenry at first. Subsequently Clemons and Mollwitz nicked Smith for singles, but Lavan lined to Konetchy, who quickly doubled up Mollwitz at first, retiring the side.

The Robins got a brace of runs back in their second inning, Kilduff figuring prominently in the scoring with a resounding double to left. Hornsby tossed out Zach Wheat to start the frame, and then Hy Myers drew a pass. Konetchy's single to right moved the genial Hy along a base, and he scored later when Kilduff dumped a double in left, Konetchy moving along to third. Big Ed scored while Lavan was tossing out Krueger, Kilduff taking third, but there was no further scoring, for Hornsby threw out Smith.

Doak Going Like a Machine.

Only ten men faced Doak in the succeeding three innings, Olson reaching first in the third, when Stock threw badly to first on the Robin shortstop's roller. The misplay didn't affect Doak's pitching, however, for he retired the succeeding three batters in order and repeated this dose in the fourth and fifth stanzas. In the sixth Jimmy Johnston and Zach Wheat collaborated with a brace of wallops which accounted for another Robin run. Johnston started the inning by bouncing a double off Stock's shins, following which Griffith popped gently to Hornsby. Wheat cracked a single to centre, scoring Johnston, and Myer lifted a fly to Heathcote. On Konetchy's rap to Stock Wheat was forced at second, ending the inning.

The possibility of a Brooklyn uprising loomed for a short time in the eighth, after the team had been retired in one, two, three order in the seventh. The prospect, however, didn't flash for long. Ivan Olson greeted Sherdel with a sharp single to centre and promptly appropriated second base. Ivan stayed there, for Sherdel fanned Johnston and Baird, who batted for Griffith, and made Wheat lift a rocket to Schultz.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 9.—George Smith held Cincinnati to two singles today and Philadelphia won, 2 to 0. Ring pitched well but his support was ragged. The Phillies scored in the fourth on two hits and a wild throw to third by Duncan, and again in the eighth when La Bourvau, recently of the Peoria team, drew a pass, went to third on Blackburne's bunt and scored on an out at first. Meusel continued his steady batting, getting two singles and a double out of four times at bat.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—James had the better of Johnson in a pitchers' duel today and Chicago took the first game of the series from Washington, 2 to 0. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Philadelphia with six recruit players beat Detroit today, 4 to 3. Zinn was effective with men on the bases, while Philadelphia hit Leonard at opportune times. Leonard passed Wingo in the third and Welsh hit a home run into the bleachers. Cobb's hitting was responsible for all the Tigers' runs. BEARS DEFEAT ORIOLES.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 9.—With the pennant sewed up, the Orioles played slovenly today and were defeated by Patsy Donovan's Bears, 5 to 4. The new champions hit Ed Rommell for two homers, a triple, two doubles, and four singles, but didn't show enough pep. On the other hand, the Jerseymen combed Sullivan, a recruit, for nine safeties, which, with seven bases on balls, made it easy for them to score five markers.

For the eighth time this season Jack Bentley drove the ball over the right field fence of the home grounds. Ben Egan lifted one over the left field barrier for the circuit. The score:

YANKEE RECRUIT INJURED.

Murphy, Toledo Catcher, Is Suffering from Fracture of the Skull.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 9.—Dennis Murphy, catcher for the Toledo American Association baseball club, is in a hospital with a fractured skull, having been taken there yesterday following an accident which occurred in one of the Toledo-St. Paul games on Sunday, when Murphy was hit by a ball pitched by Dan Griner.

Physicians attending the ball player are unable to explain Murphy's injury. Murphy was knocked down, but arose shortly and walked off the field. He was attended by a physician in the clubhouse, and it was not discovered until late Monday that his skull was fractured.

Murphy was purchased recently by the New York Americans along with Pitchers Alexander Ferguson and Roy Sanders, who are to report there next Spring.

SKEETERS DOWNED TWICE BY MINERS

Special to The New York Times.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 9.—Bill Donovan's Skeeters celebrated the windup of the International League season in Jersey City yesterday by losing both ends of a double header to Reading, and thereby jumped back into the race as contenders for the lower berth position. The scores were 6 to 1 and 4 to 2.

Mike Brown elected to perform the iron man stunt for the Miners by pitching both games and pulled through successfully. Against his curves the Skeeters were helpless, and their portion in base hits consisted of six scattered bingles in the curtain raiser and two in the final setto. On the other hand, Reading found Rube Zellars' offerings soft picking in the first game and also stung Tecarrs' benders freely in the windup. In addition to their timely hitting, loose fielding by the locals aided the visitors in their runmaking.

Reading got off in front with a run in the first inning of the opening game on a hit by Cook, a wild pitch, and Weiser's single. A base on balls to Weiser in the fourth, Brower's sacrifice, and a timely drive by John Hummel sewed the game up by sending Weiser over with the deciding tally. Four hits were stuck together for an additional three runs in the sixth.

The Miners took the measure of Tecarrs' delivery in the third stanza of the second game, hammering him for four hits, one a double by Weiser, with the bags crowded. This hitting netted four runs and a cleanup on the day's work. The Skeeters open in Baltimore on Thursday and wind up the season there with the Birds on Sunday.

DR. SHARPE STARTS WORK.

New Yale Athletic Head First of Football Coaches to Report.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 9.—Dr. Albert Hayes Sharpe today assumed control of Yale athletics. He established an office in Durfee Hall and surveyed the athletic plant of the university in company with his assistant, John K. Mack, who has been here a month putting the fields in order.

Dr. Sharpe said that his motto would be "The physical welfare of Yale undergraduates." To this end he will immediately begin laying out an extensive series of athletic fields in connection with the tract of land in the vicinity of the Yale Bowl, which was purchased by the university several years ago for the development of recreational sport. Part of this land had been devoted to military purposes during the war.

Dr. Sharpe will be in direct charge of the coaching of Yale's football, baseball, basket ball, and gymnastic teams, although he will have plenty of assistance in developing the coaching system. He is the first of the football coaching staff to arrive. He said that Dr. Arthur Brides, Dr. Billy Bull, Jack Cates, and Herman Olcott, who composed the resident coaching staff, would be here by the end of the week, and that the first practice of the undergraduate squad would take place next Monday. Only about thirty men will report for the first drill. Captain Tim Callahan and Manager Frank Peavey Heffelfinger of the team are expected in two or three days. Chester La Roche, the former quarter back, arrived today.

HENDERSON HIGH GUN.

Kentucky State Champion Leads in Tournament at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 9.—W. Henderson, Kentucky State champion and a former Grand American Handicap winner, was high gun in the practice events today at the annual shooting tournament of the Westy Hogans. Henderson broke 119 out of 120 targets. Frank Troeh, Pacific Coast champion, was second, breaking 118.

J. R. Taylor, Newark, Ohio, was high professional with a score of 117 out of a possible 120. Nearly 200 shooters participated in the practice program.

To Hold Wrestling Bouts.

The outdoor wrestling season will come to a close at Ulmer Park next Saturday night. The Scandia Sporting Club has arranged an interesting program, the principal attraction being the first appearance of Mike Carlson, the Norwegian giant, who will meet Hans Lerner, the Bavarian. Bernhof Hansen will tackle Charles Karnolt of the United States Navy, and Amond Pederson will take on Victor Sjolholm. John J. Fleeson will referee.

GARLAND IS NET WINNER.

Yale Captain Scores Again in Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—There were no upsets in either the singles or doubles events today on the Merion Cricket Club courts at Haverford, where the thirty-sixth annual Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Tournament is being staged, with W. T. Tilden, 2d, as referee. Charles S. Garland, the Yale Captain, breezed through the third round of the singles, defeating G. W. Helm, the Harvard Captain, with the loss of only one game. Garland and K. N. Hawks won their first round match in the doubles by defeating Fisher and Hanlon of Cornell, 6—2, 6—1.

Garland, Reid, Hawks, and Dudley will play in the semi-final round of the singles tomorrow. In the doubles two Yale teams survive, one Harvard, and one Princeton. Pennsylvania has been eliminated from both singles and doubles. The Philadelphia district, however, is not quite wiped out, for J. W. Dudley of Swarthmore remains in the singles.

Dudley played two matches today and won both of them. In his first one he had a tough opponent in Larry Brown, of Penn, who fought him to a finish. This match went three sets, Dudley finally taking it at 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

J. B. Morse, Yale, and L. W. Fisher, Cornell, had a hard match in the second round, Morse ultimately winning 9-7, 5-7, 6-4. This match produced some fair tennis, although at times both were wild.

In the third round Dudley had a keen match with J. B. Morse, Yale. The Garnet player got the decision in two sets, 8—6, 6—4. Dudley formerly was interscholastic champion of Washington.

In the semi-final round of the singles tomorrow Garland will meet Reid, while Hawks will play J. W. Dudley of Swarthmore.

The summaries:

SINGLES.—Second Round—J. W. Dudley, Swarthmore, defeated L. A. Brown, Pennsylvania, 6—3, 3—6, 7—5; J. B. Morse, Yale, defeated L. W. Fisher, Cornell, 9—7, 5—7, 6—4.

Third Round—Kirk Reid, Cornell, won from J. B. Fenno, Harvard, by default; C. S. Garland, Yale, defeated G. W. Helm, Harvard, 6—0, 6—1; K. N. Hawks, Yale, defeated H. T. Kaltenbach, Princeton, 6—2, 6—4; J. W. Dudley, Swarthmore, defeated J. B. Morse, Yale, 8—6, 6—4.

DOUBLES.—First Round—Hawks and Garland, Yale, defeated Fisher and Hanlon, Cornell, 6—2, 6—1; Helm and Hanighen, Harvard, defeated Nassau and Pfingst, Pennsylvania, 6—2, 6—4; Morse and Simmons, Yale, defeated Reid and Holt, Cornell, 6—3, 6—3; Kaltenbach and Herndon, Princeton, won from Brown and Fisher, Pennsylvania, by default.

WORK FOR AMHERST SQUAD.

Gridiron Men of Promise Ready to Begin Practice.

AMHERST, Mass., Sept. 9.—Football prospects at Amherst this year are fairly bright. Of the 1917 team six members are still in college and eligible to play. These include Captain Phillips, Olsen, Reusswig, Bliss, Davison, and Kilby. In addition, Maynard, Brisk, Palmer, Zink, and Carney of the original 'Varsity last Fall will be available. Six other men remain from the team that was organized last October after the original 'Varsity had been sent to officers' training camps. These include Vail, Clark, Mathews, Davison, Wing, and Stisser. Card, who played a good game on the Freshman team in 1917, has also returned to college after a year in the navy. Whether Bodenhorn, who captained the 1917 team, will return is uncertain. From this and other material that may be developed, a team that will average about 170 pounds and be fairly fast will be built up.

The schedule, which opens on Sept. 27 and closes on Nov. 15, includes home games with Worcester Tech, Bowdoin, New York University, and Wesleyan, and out-of-town games with Trinity, Union, Columbia, and Williams. The strength of all these teams will probably be much greater than last year, Williams especially expecting to have a great team under the leadership of Boynton, her famous quarter back in 1917.

Practice at Amherst begins this week and will be in charge of Professor Raymond G. Gettell, who has coached the teams of the last two years. Theodore Widmayer, 1916, former All-New England centre, has been appointed Hitchcock Fellow at Amherst and will assist in coaching.

BUFFALO'S NEW HUNT CLUB.

Polo, Hunting, and Horse Shows to be Boomed on Lake Erie Shore.

For many years no city in the United States took a keener interest in out-door sports of all kinds than Buffalo and the present-day popularity of the horse has brought into being an organization which promises to revive the former glories of that region. The fact that polo and hunting are to be among the chief activities of the newly-formed Lake Shore Hunt Club will be pleasing to the devotees of these sports. Buffalo had a polo team in 1872 and it is claimed by some that this marked the introduction of the game into this country. At any rate the game had been played there more or less continuously until the war.

Hunting had an ardent following thereabouts also for many years, but recently there has been no opportunity to indulge in this exhilarating pastime nearer than the Genesee Valley, where the Wadsworth pack has been available. The Lake Shore Club has in mind to establish a pack hunt and an order has already been dispatched South for the hounds. A site for a suitable club house, stabling, kennels, polo field, show-ring, and golf grounds has been chosen on a beautiful plateau near Derby overlooking Lake Erie.

The Derby Horse Show which for several years has been a feature of the country life on the Lake Shore will be given in the future under the auspices of the Lake Shore Club. It is planned to make it rival the big out-door shows held in the region of Philadelphia. There are quite a number of half-bred horses in the vicinity of Derby suitable to become hunters. The Breeding Bureau of the Jockey Club sent the thoroughbred sires, Accountant and Fashion Plate, to stand at Derby some years ago and a number of smashing young horses will be coming to hand about the time the hunt is established.

The following committee is working on the details out of which it is expected a permanent organization will be effected: Goss L. Stryker, Chairman; Hans Schmidt, Treasurer; Duncan H. Pierce, Secretary; William H. Barr, Colman Curtiss, Howard Kellogg, George E. Lattimer, Stuart R. Mann, and Dexter P. Rumsey. The Derby Horse Show for the current year is scheduled for Sept. 13.

TENNIS TITLE FIELD NARROWS TO EIGHT

State Champion, Miss Wagner, Survives, as Do Miss Gilleaudeau and Mrs. Leroy.

The field of fifty women that started play this week for the New York State tennis championship was cut down to eight contenders by yesterday's play at the New York Tennis Club.

In the upper half Mrs. A. B. Duncan, Miss Marie Wagner, the present title holder; Miss Hazel Gardner, and Miss Helen Gilleaudeau are the survivors, while the lower brackets are occupied by Mrs. H. T. Eaton, Mrs. Percy Wilbourne, Mrs. Robert Leroy, and Mrs. S. E. Waring. In the doubles event Mrs. E. V. Lynch and Miss Edith Handy advanced to the semi-final round by winning two matches, after drawing a bye. The mixed doubles will begin this morning, with twenty-six teams in the draw.

In spite of constantly theratening and occasionally actual rain yesterday afternoon, the hardy feminine devotees of the racquet went right ahead with their schedule, finishing an entire round in each of the events. The champion was not hard pressed to win from Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, although the first set was fairly close at 6—3. Thereafter Miss Wagner's speed and experience asserted themselves more and more, and a 6—1 session finished the match. Miss Hazel Gardner showed unexpected strength in disposing of Mrs. E. C. Sohst at 8—6, 6—0, increasing the speed of her shots after winning the opening set with difficulty and tiring her opponent with long rallies and accurate placements.

Miss Gilleaudeau Is Victor.

Brilliant tennis was displayed by those two energetic court coverers, Miss Helen Gilleaudeau and Miss Margaret Grove, the former winning at 6—2, 6—3, but only through unfailing steadiness in a series of desperately fought driving duels from deep court. The winner had the better control of her strokes at the start, and enjoyed a lead of 4—0 before Miss Grove was able to get her own clever game under way. She then broke through Miss Gilleaudeau's service by hitting the ball hard from side to side, but lost the next, although this game contained one of the longest and best rallies of the match. Miss Grove upset her rival's service once more without the loss of a point, but dropped the set at 6—2 when Miss Gilleaudeau made some sensational recoveries, eventually driving the loser into errors. The second session was similar, with Miss Gilleaudeau drawing away toward the close by her unflagging speed of foot and accuracy of stroke. Miss Grove tried coming to the net occasionally, but was unable to volley decisively, and lost more points than she gained by this aggressiveness.

Mrs. H. T. Eaton, who, as Miss Ina Kissel, won the Middle States championship several years ago, gave a good exhibition of steady tennis against Mrs. G. B. Hirsch, winning at 6—4, 6—4. The loser put up a splendid fight and might have won if she had not been content with largely defensive playing. Mrs. Wilbourne's victory over Mrs. Ranney was well earned and due to a general superiority of strokes and court tactics.

The hardest match of the third round, however, was that which brought together those old rivals, Mrs. Robert Leroy and Miss Caroma Winn. The former began in impressive style, using not only her dependable back-court game, but going to the net as well, and taking the opening set quickly at 6—1. Miss Winn, however, took a turn at volleying herself in the second session, and by aggressive yet steady play squared the match at 6—2. The rubber was close, a single break in service giving Mrs. Leroy a lead which she never relinquished. Miss Winn tired toward the last, and her opponent, continuing to cover court with remarkable endurance, claimed the ultimate victory at 6—3.

Pairs in Great Match.

Only one match had to be played in the first round of the doubles, all the other teams drawing byes. But this one encounter was a thriller, bringing together the former national champion, Miss Bessie Moore, in partnership with Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, and that strong combination, Miss Winn and Miss Gertrude Della Torre. They divided the first two sets at 6—3 and 6—4, and then battled on almost until darkness before Miss Winn and her partner landed the rubber at 6—3. All four contestants played well, Miss Moore showing much of her old ability at volleying and being well supported by the drives of Mrs. Pritchard, while Miss Winn at the net and Miss Della Torre in deep court left few openings in their territory. The winners play Mrs. F. I. Mallory, (formerly Miss Molla Bjurstedt,) and Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver today.

Mrs. Lynch and Miss Hardy also went through a hard three-set match in winning from Mrs. Wilbourne and Mrs. Ingo Hartmann. They dropped the opening set, 6—4, but caught up at 6—2 and then forged ahead with gathering speed for a 6—0 decision.

Miss Wagner and Miss Gilleaudeau, an impressive combination, had to play their best to dispose of Mrs. Waring and Mrs. McWilliams at 7—5, 6—4.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 9.—The women's doubles tennis tournament got under way today when two matches were played for the cups to be donated by the Casino.

In the morning Miss Edna Barger and Miss Anna Sands defeated Miss Dorothy Kane and Mrs. George D. Widener, 6—3, 4—6, 6—2. Spectators found the afternoon match the more interesting when Mrs. W. G. Low and Mrs. Barger Wallach carried the second set of their series with Mrs. Lewis G. Morris and Mrs. Lorrillard Spencer to fifteen games before losing it. Mrs. Loew and Mrs. Wallach came through victors in the match, however, winning by 6—4, 15—17, 6—4.

The winners of the women's doubles will meet Mrs. George Weightman and Miss Zinder on Saturday.

LUCULLITE VICTOR OVER NATURALIST

TIES THE BELMONT RECORD

J. E. Widener's Naturalist and S. C. Hildreth's Lucullite, two of the greatest handicap horses in the country, met yesterday for the first time in the Manhattan Handicap at Belmont Park, and the victory went to the fine colt from the Hildreth stable. Naturalist, accustomed as he was to taking up heavy imposts, found that he could not give away seven pounds to so good a rival. He carried 137 pounds to Lucullite's 130, and the impost told on Naturalist to such an extent that he failed even to take second place, being overtaken in the final furlong by A. K. Macomber's Star Master. The distance, a mile, was covered in 1:36 3-5, equaling the track record set by Stromboli in 1914.

There was probably more interest in the meeting of these two racers than in any race since the day Purchase met Sir Barton. Naturalist and Lucullite had developed a keen rivalry by their successive victories over the best horses in training and under various handicaps and conditions. They had come to the top of the handicap division, and for some time it had been a question which was the better. Both had defeated high-class horses, but Naturalist had carried heavier imposts than had Lucullite. The latter, however, had proved that he was equal to almost any task put before him.

So far as the question of superiority goes, it was not definitely settled by the race yesterday. Lucullite won quite handily, but it would be unfair to Naturalist to say that the Hildreth colt was the better until they met at equal weights. There were many who thought after the race that Naturalist could have won had he not conceded weight to his sprightly rival. On the other hand, there were just as many who thought Lucullite could go out and repeat his victory without asking any advantage in weight. Lucullite certainly administered a defeat yesterday which seemed to more than offset his pull in the weights.

There were only four starters in the Manhattan, but it was an excellent contest. Purchase, which had been named as one of the starters, was withdrawn, as was Vexatious, Corn Tassel and Over There. This left the race a sort of a duel between Naturalist and Lucullite, with both Star Master and Enfilade dangerous contenders.

Lucullite Takes Lead Early.

Star Master broke in front at the start of the mile journey, but held the lead for only a few strides, when Lucullite came up and took first position. Naturalist was running close to them. Lucullite set such a terrific pace that the first half-mile was covered in 46 3-5. This proved entirely too fast for Enfilade and she dropped back out of the running and ceased to be a contender before the first turn was reached.

Fairbrother brought Naturalist up close to Lucullite before turning out of the back stretch and the two set in for a real race. But Lucullite, with his lighter weight, kept up the fast pace and Fairbrother drew up with Naturalist, evidently wishing to save his mount for a final dash through the stretch. The short breathing spell seemed to give Naturalist a new flash of speed, for just before reaching the last turn he bounded ahead again and drew close to the flying Lucullite.

It seemed for a second after both had straightened out that the Widener horse was going to catch his rival, but as he battled through the first part of the stretch it could be seen that the weight was telling in favor of Lucullite. The latter raced easily and seemed to have plenty in reserve while Naturalist was tiring. Star Master, which had not followed the pace closely, came with a rush, caught Naturalist tiring, and beat him to the wire in the last furlong. Lucullite finished with an advantage of one and a half lengths, while Star Master beat Naturalist by three lengths.

Peter Piper Wins the Peconic.

The dull day and the threatening weather held the attendance down considerably, so that it was only a small crowd which witnessed some of the best racing of the meeting. Second only to the Manhattan was the Peconic Highweight Handicap, for all ages, at six furlongs on the straight course. This event brought out some fine sprinters and was won by the Greentree Stable's Peter Piper, which beat Masda and War Drive.

Lord Brighton was made the favorite for this race largely because of his fine showing the last time he went to the post at Saratoga. He finished second that day, and came with such a rush at the finish that he seemed to have rounded into the form which made him one of the best of the two-year-olds. But Lord Brighton ran a disappointing race yesterday. He was off well enough, but he seemed never able to get up with the leaders and was beaten all the way, finishing fourth.

Peter Piper, which has a rare gift of speed, but which frequently stops when apparently winning, decided to run it out yesterday, and was quite an easy victor. Peter Piper broke nicely and went into the lead on the first jump. His early speed easily carried him some distance to the front of his nearest rival, which was the fleet Masda. W. T. Wilkinson's War Drive, which had not been seriously considered, was a contender all the way.

Through the final furlong Fator made a desperate effort on Lord Brighton, but the colt could not improve his position. Masda was gaining on Peter Piper toward the finish, but the son of Peter Pan had enough speed left to last to the wire. Masda only had an advantage of a nose over War Drive, which finished strongly. The Beach Stable's Flags, which finished next to last, carried 140 pounds, this being the top weight. His owner had protested at such a handicap and had announced the day before that Flags would start, would do his best to win, but that he was a wind-broken horse and it was asking too much of him to carry such weight and concede so much to fleet racers. The race Flags ran proved that he was badly outclassed with such an impost to handle.

Whitney's Arethusa a Winner.

H. P. Whitney's Arethusa, which made a good impression upon her first appearance last week when she finished second, graduated from the maiden class in the last race, a five and a half furlong dash for two-year-olds. Arethusa won quite handily from Swirl and Ricochet, and was in the lead all the way. Arethusa is mentioned as one of the many candidates which the Whitney stable has for the Futurity.

C. A. Applegate's Flying Orb captured the first race for two-year-olds, defeating Bright Gold and Orleans Girl. Flying Orb was a well supported favorite and ran a good race, coming up through her field in the final furlong to win by a length and a half.

J. F. Flanagan's Whist 2d was the winner in the steeplechase event, which had four starters. Houdini and War Strength were second and third, respectively. Stradivarius, which was the favorite, stumbled at the last jump and lost his rider. But he was a well beaten horse at the time, though he had remained within hailing distance of Whist throughout. Stradivarius had shown signs of tiring at two of the jumps, which he took badly, and it was no surprise when he failed at the last one.

J. E. Widener's day was not spoiled altogether by the defeat of Naturalist, for his Pilgrim captured the fifth race from a field of smart two-year-olds. Masked Dancer set a fast pace in this event, but tired at the finish and Pilgrim came along to win badily. Thelma E. also passed the tiring Masked Dancer to take the place.

RECORD TITLE MEET ENTRY.

Over 600 Athletes to Compete in National A. A. U. Games.

More than 600 entries have been received for the national A. A. U. junior and senior track and field championships which will be conducted Friday and Saturday at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. This is a record number for this annual fixture, surpassing by more than 100 the greatest entry of former years, according to an announcement yesterday by Frederick W. Rubien, Chairman of the Championship Committee.

The entry is a representative one, including athletes from all parts of the country. The heaviest nomination has been received for the junior title tests which will open the meet Friday. In this branch of the two-day fixture no less than 220 individuals have entered, which, with a number of the athletes entering for several events, amounts to about 350 entries. The names sent in for competition in the senior games include the country's greatest performers on track and field. The National Championship Committee will meet at the Adelphia Hotel, Philadelphia, tomorrow night to pass on the entries and arrange final details for the games.

The New York A. C. has nominated a strong team for both the junior and senior tests, and prominent athletic officials are predicting victory for the wearers of the Winged Foot in both team championship battles. The club will probably encounter its hardest competition in the junior events, for the Meadowbrook Club of Philadelphia is preparing a strong team for the games. In the senior branch of the meet, in addition to the Meadowbrook Club the Mercury Footers will match strides and tests of strength with the sturdy athletes of the Chicago A. A., Illinois A. C., and Multnomah Club of Portland, Ore.

GUILFORD WINS TITLE.

Amateur Leads Professionals in Bay State Open Golf Tournament.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 9.—Jesse Guilford, the Woodland Golf Club amateur, won the Massachusetts open golf championship today from a fast field of professional golfers when he completed the 72 holes at the Worcester Country Club in 303 strokes. Guilford is the first amateur to win the State open. He won the amateur title in 1916.

JONES CREEPS UP IN SECOND ROUND

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 9.—Jim Barnes, Western open champion, continued his drive toward winning the Southern open golf championship here today by turning in a card of 75 for the second 18 holes, giving him a score of 146 for the 36 holes. Bob Jones, Atlanta amateur and runner-up in the national series at Oakmont, turned in a card of 74, gaining one stroke on Barnes, and is now one stroke behind the leader. J. Douglas Edgar, Atlanta pro, picked up three strokes on Barnes by turning in a fine 72.

Barnes's card follows:

Out ....5 4 4 6 5 3 4 3 5—39
In ....5 3 4 3 4 5 5 4 3—36—75—146

By taking a 6 on the sixteenth, a par 4, little Bob Jones missed a chance to lead the field. The Atlantan was setting the pace through the fifteenth hole of his second round and, had he played the last nine holes in par figures, he would have had a 72, which would have put him one stroke in front of Barnes.

Jones's explosion came on the sixteenth hole. He sliced his drive into the rough at the right of the fairway and played his second shot so strongly that it went over the green and out of bounds, costing him a stroke. Playing his third shot from the same place, he went over the green again. He then chipped back close to the cup, but missed his put for a 5.

In ....534 545 643—39—74

Harry Hampton, the Richmond professional, turned in the low score of the day, equaling the course record with a wonderful 69. He went out in 35 and came back in 34, making the lowest score shot on the second round so far. This remarkable feat brought Hampton down into the money, and he is now regarded as the "dark horse" of the tourney. He led off with an ordinary 81 for the first round on Monday.

Leo Diegel, Detroit, one of the favorites in the first round, slipped back three places in the standing by taking a 78 in the second round. He was putting badly. The following is Hampton's card:

Out ....5 3 3 5 4 3 4 3 5—35
In ....4 2 3 4 4 5 5 4 3—34—69

Hampton had ten holes in par, two holes over par, and six holes under par.

Jim Barnes, 71, 75—146; Bob Jones, 73, 74—147; J. Douglas Edgar, 75, 72—147; Harry Hampton, 81, 69—150; Leo Diegel, 74, 78—152; Willie Ogg, 78, 75—153; Emmett French, 79, 78—157; Jock McKenzie, 78, 81—159; Charles Rowe, 82, 78—160; Jack Okem, 84, 76—160; W. J. Damon, 82, 78—160; Charles Hall, 79, 82—161; E. F. Loeffler, 82, 79—161; Freddie McLeod, 80, 82—162; Victor Smith, 80, 84—164; Perry Adair, 164; Richard Hickey, 164; Jack Burgess, 165; Harry Cowie, 165; Clarence Knowles, 167; F. T. Sprogell, 169; L. WOMEN'S GOLF AT SHAWNEE National Championships Will Be Held from Sept. 29 to Oct. 4.

The program of the women's national amateur golf championships to be held at the Shawnee Country Club, Shawnee-on-Delaware, from Sept. 29 to Oct. 4, was announced last night from the offices of the United States Golf Association by Howard F. Whitney, Secretary. Monday, Sept. 29, will be devoted to the qualifying round, for which a medal donated by the U. S. G. A. goes to the winner. The first match round will get under way on Tuesday, Sept. 30, and match play will continue until Saturday, Oct. 4, when the championship final round will be staged.

All matches will be played during the morning, starting at 10 o'clock. Every afternoon the Shawnee Country Club will offer special prizes for exhibition matches. The schedule for these extra events follows: Sept. 30, consolation matches for nonqualifiers; Oct. 1, women's handicap vs. bogey; Oct. 2, driving, approaching, and putting contests; Oct. 3, best ball foursome, scratch; Oct. 4, mixed foursome, medal play handicap.

Competition for the women's national title is open to all women amateur golfers belonging to clubs which are members of the U. S. G. A., and this year the big championship series is thrown open to those foreigners visiting this country who may be invited to participate by the Executive Committee of the association. With the championship goes the Robert Cox Cup, which will be held by the winner's home club for a period of one year. Individual medals of gold, silver, and bronze will go respectively to the champion, runner-up, and the other semi-finalists.

Players making entry for the title tourney must forward their nominations through the Secretaries of their respective clubs, and the entry and fee of $5 must be received by the Secretary of the association not later than 5 P. M. on Monday, Sept. 22. The Executive Committee reserves the right to approve or reject any entry, and all disputes arising from any cause during the tournament are subject to the Executive Committee's decision for finality.

The privileges of the Shawnee course and clubhouse will be extended to all competitors for one week previous to the tournament, and the majority of entrants are expected to arrive at Shawnee at least three or four days before the start of the tournament so as to benefit by several practice rounds.

No women's national golf championships have been conducted since the Fall of 1916, on account of the war. In the last title play Miss Alexa Stirling of Atlanta came through the series a 2 to 1 victory, over Miss Mildred Caverly of Philadelphia.

Representative golfers from among the leading players in the New York district will not be lacking at the national series. Although the list of entries is by no means complete, among those who will represent the metropolitan clubs are Miss Marion Hollins of South Shore, Mrs. William A. Gavin of the same club, Miss Beatrice Lounsbery of Bedford, and Miss Kate Bomann of Plainfield. Miss Hollins now holds the metropolitan women's title and was runner-up in 1913 in the national tournament at Wilmington, Del. Mrs. Gavin, a former metropolitan title holder, was the 1915 runner-up in the national championships at the Onwentsia Club, Lake Forest, Ill. Miss Lounsbery is one of the foremost handicap players in this district and is running a favorite this week in the tourney at Sleepy Hollow. Yesterday she eliminated Miss Bomann in the first round of match play.

LOW GROSS PRIZE WON BY TRUESDELL

Over 150 Seniors answered the call of the starter in the first half of the annual Seniors' Tournament at Apawamis yesterday, and under a cold, gray sky the "Oldsters" finished the first half of their thirty-six-hole stint. Due to the heavy entry list the Seniors' Tournament is always played in two sections, each division playing thirty-six holes on two successive days. Although most of the prizes are decided on the two days' play, there is a low gross and low net eighteen-hole prize each day, regardless of the class of the winner. Yesterday's winners in this point were the Rev. J. Gray Bolton of Philadelphia, in the "Seventy Years and Over" Class, who took the low net with a card of 99—25—74, and W. E. Truesdell of Garden City, Senior champion of the last tournament, who captured the low gross with an 84.

The feat of the Rev. J. Gray Bolton was no mean one, considering the age handicap he carried through the heavy going. His golf seems to be of the kind that improves with age, and his ambition now is to bring down his score to the point where it will be equaled by his advancing age. Truesdell, the present Senior champion, played a fine, steady game with but three off holes on his round. He had two 6's and one 7 on his card, and strange to say, he found the short holes so troublesome that he failed to get a single 3. His prize-winning card was as follows:

Out ....5 4 4 6 4 5 4 4 7—43
In ....4 5 4 4 6 4 4 5 5—41—84

The Very Rev. Mgr. M. M. Sheedy, who makes this his yearly outing, was another clergyman to finish well to the front. Up to the last moment he was low net man in Class C, until Clark Wilcox of Weatogue slipped in about dusk with 96—20, 76. It was a bad day for the bench, however. Supreme Court Justice Mahlon Pitney upon cross-examination admitted that the fairway was heavy, the greens fast, and the rough "impossible." He also admitted he knew more about the rough than the fairway. Judge Henry Stoddard of New Haven was another jurist to slip back into the ruck, but even at that he beat out Rear Admiral A. G. Berry, U. S. N., by a single stroke, with a net of 90, against a 91 for the Admiral. The medical fraternity did fairly well, but the bankers and brokers received a worse setback than the recent tumble on the "Street." The major prizes for the division, however, are dependent upon the thirty-six-hole play, and the dark horses expect to flash to the fore today in the second round.

Yesterday's scores in the various classes were:

MISS LOUNSBERY WINNER.

Defeats Miss Bomann in Sleepy Hollow Tournament by 2 and 1.

Showing vast improvement over her game in the qualifying round, Miss Beatrice Lounsbery, of the Bedford Golf and Tennis Club, yesterday defeated Miss Kate Bomann, of Plainfield, 2 and 1, in the first round of match play in the Sleepy Hollow tournament for women of the Metropolitan district. Miss Bomann tied on Monday with Mrs. S. A. Herzog, of Oak Ridge, with a card of 97, for the qualifying medal, and was expected to follow through the upper brackets a winner, but her drives and second shots yesterday gave her trouble over the long hills at Scarborough and she was eliminated.

Mrs. Herzog had a comparatively easy round in defeating Mrs. C. W. Breck, of Siwanoy, and she won, 7 up and 5 to play. Mrs. F. E. DuBois, of Raritan Valley, another of the low handicapped players in the Metropolitan area, took an early lead over Miss Julia Bredt, of Essex County, and finished 9 and 8. Mrs. DuBois, Mrs. Herzog and Miss Lounsbery are still several brackets apart and, assuming they come through with victories today in the second round, they will not oppose each other until the semi-finals tomorrow.

Miss Lounsbery yesterday turned in the lowest card yet made in the Sleepy Hollow series. She went out and back in 89, and Miss Bomann's 92 was also five strokes lower than her qualifying card. They started out in the morning and halved the first four holes. Then Miss Lounsbery took the lead on the short fifth with a par 3, while Miss Bomann holed out in a 4. The Bedford player also won the sixth, but they halved the last three on the outward journey, each taking the ninth with a par 3.

Coming toward the clubhouse they halved the difficult tenth, but Miss Bomann cut down her opponent's lead on the eleventh, which she took in a par 4 to Miss Lounsbery's 5. She again won on the twelfth, setting the match all even. Miss Lounsbery drove long and straight on the thirteenth and holed out in a par 3, putting her 1 up again.

Excellent golf was being played over the return journey and on the succeeding green Miss Bomann took a 5 to her opponent's 6, and again the match stood even. Miss Lounsbery began to get in especially far-carrying drives and second shots and she took the 323-yard fifteenth hole with a par 4 to Miss Bomann's 5, and the sixteenth went to her also. Miss Lounsbery halved the seventeenth with a 4 and won the match.

Mrs. J. S. Irving of Englewood, who tied for third in the qualifying round, was unable to meet her opponent yesterday, and the match went to Mrs. F. E. Donohoe of Montclair by default. In the second sixteen there were three defaulted matches.

It is expected that Mrs. Herzog and Miss Bomann will play off their tie for the medal this afternoon, following the second-round matches:

KELLY IN VAN OF HARRIERS.

Leads Field of Fourteen Home in Harbrook Heights Chase.

J. Kelly led home a field of fourteen rival clubmates last night in the Harbrook Heights A. C. members' handicap road race, conducted over a course of about four and three-quarter miles. Kelly, starting with a handicap allowance of four minutes, raced past the judges at the finish with a comfortable margin of victory over H. Brown, to whom was allotted a start of one minute. Kelly's time was 29:30, while Brown was clocked in 27:15. F. Wilson, the scratch starter, finished in fourth position, covering the course in 26:30. This is the fastest time recorded for the race. The fifteen harriers who started in the chase all finished the full course.

COX HORSE VICTOR IN STRAIGHT HEATS

SYRACUSE, Sept. 9.—Walter Cox achieved the ambition of his career at the Syracuse Grand Circuit meeting today, when he piloted McGregor the Great, fleet son of Peter the Great and Ruth McGregor, to a straight-heat victory in the classic Empire State $10,000 stake for 2:12 class trotters. Cox not only won the event but established a new record in the first heat, which McGregor stepped in 2:03¼. It was the fastest time a trotter ever made in the big event.

Mariondale, the speedy daughter of Ariondale and Marion T., driven by Tommy Murpny of Poughkeepsie, took second honors after one of the most spectacular races ever contested at the New York State Fair. In the first two heats Murphy challenged the McGregor speeder repeatedly, but could not withstand the charging drive the victor made in the stretch. More than 20,000 people witnessed the race.

Hollyrood Billy sprung a big surprise in the first race, the 2:13 pace, which he won in straight heats, his fastest time being 2:07½. Horsemen had figured Homefast as the probable winner, and the victory of the Leonard entry came as a distinct shock to the talent. Homefast was the challenger in each heat, but failed to keep astride with the victor in the stretch brushes which marked the finish of each heat.

Nedda took the 2:18 trot, the Onondaga Stake, after finishing fifth in the first heat. Jenny Dean flashed into the lead in the first heat and was never headed, but in the next two Nedda clearly demonstrated her superiority, her best time being 2:06¼. Natalie the Great found the two-year-old trot very much to her liking and won the event in straight heats. Mr. Dudley was the only real contender.

20 PASSERS-BY HURT IN GAS EXPLOSION

INSPECTOR IS BURNED

Workmen Gave Warning of Escaping Gas, but Too Late to Cut Off the Main.

Glass fell in showers over an area of several blocks and manhole covers were tossed fifteen feet in the air yesterday morning in the neighborhood of Forty-second Street and Third Avenue in an explosion of gas that had accumulated under the pavement surface. More than a score of persons were cut by the flying glass, but none was seriously injured. The police estimate the damage at $2,500.

Two workmen in a sewer excavation noticed escaping gas shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning. They left their work and reported the conditions to William H. Englebrecht, an Inspector of the Department of Public Works, who was near by. While they were talking to the Inspector the explosion occurred.

Buildings in the streets from Forty-second Street to Forty-sixth Street between Lexington Avenue and Second Avenue rocked from the blast, and every manhole cover in the vicinity jumped into the air. Cement blocks in the pavement at several points were heaved up and flames burst out of the holes.

There were hundreds of persons in the streets at the time and the glass knocked out of the building fell on them and all about them. Reserves from the East Thirty-fifth and the East Fifty-first Street stations were called out and several ambulances were summoned. Teachers in Public School 37, near by, assembled the children to be prepared to march them to safety if the explosion recurred.

Englebrecht was the mose severely injured. His face was burned severely and his hands and face were cut by flying glass.

Others who were treated by the ambulance surgeons were Joseph Early, waiter, of 773 Second Avenue; Henry Springeman, waiter, of 214 West Forty-sixth Street; Mrs. Hilma Montera, 346 East Forty-fourth Street; Joseph Armico, laborer, 773 Third Avenue, Frances Wiley, 212 East Fortieth Street; Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Keefe of Boston; Nick Catchoni, laborer, 107th Street and First Avenue; Francisco Mustretonio, laborer, 424 West 163d Street; Albert Reilly, 334 West Fifty-third Street; Frank Schnitzer, 155 East Forty-seventh Street, and Kate Murphy, 465 First Avenue. Many others had their wounds treated at drug stores.

A similar explosion occurred at the same place several weeks ago. It was said to have been caused by sewer gas. Yesterday's explosion was attributed to a gas pocket formed from a leaky main carrying illuminating gas.

Returns $1,000,000 Hospital.

The $1,000,000 buildings at Eastview, which have been used by the United States Government Base Hospital 36, will be turned back to Westchester County today, it has been announced. For the first time in a year prisoners will be confined in the Westchester County Penitentiary, which was used for a barracks by the Government. Thousands of convalescent soldiers were treated at Eastview.

EXHUME BINKOWITZ BODY AT MILFORD

Detectives and Boy's Relatives Leave for Connecticut to Confirm Identification.

UNCOVER A NEW CLUE

Broken Knife Blade Is Found—Police Here Seek Two Companions of Messenger.

Detectives here and in Connecticut yesterday spread a net for the murderers of Benjamin Binkowitz, the Wall Street messenger who disappeared on Aug. 12 simultaneously with $178,000 worth of bonds, and for the recovery of the missing securities that are now thought to have been the motive for the killing of the boy at Milford, Conn. The police believe that sooner or later some of the stolen bonds will be offered for sale, and when this is done a broad trail will be opened up to the men who murdered the messenger.

To make the identification positive the body was exhumed yesterday at Milford and the Milford Coroner ordered State Policeman Verrell to bring the victim's mother to Connecticut to identify the body. Three New York detectives assigned to the case, Mrs. Binkowitz, and an aunt of the slain messenger left for Milford yesterday. The police are said to be looking for two young men who were with Binkowitz about the time he disappeared.

Friends of the murdered messenger hold to the theory that he did not steal the bonds, but was lured into an automobile by men who knew he had the bonds and was taken by them into Connecticut, where he was murdered. The police, it was said, do not hold to the kidnapping theory. They point out that the youth was no stranger in the section where his body was found, he having been a munition worker in Bridgeport. The police believe, however, that the killing was done by professional criminals.

One new clue has been uncovered since the boy's body was found in the bushes alongside of the Milford Turnpike. The police here learned that a piece of a knife blade, broken at the handle, was found in one of the wounds in the boy's neck. A search of the records of the Police Department by Inspector Joseph Faurot shows that in last July Binkowitz while working in the financial district, obtained knowledge of the theft of some bonds and informed the police. Acting on this information the police obtained evidence that resulted in sending a youth employed as a messenger to the Elmira Reformatory. Recalling this incident yesterday the police here said it might have some bearing on the murder.

This is only one phase of the case that is furnishing a complicated problem for the detectives. Another that is causing police speculation, is whether Binkowitz was lured to his death in the Connecticut woods or whether he was murdered elsewhere and his body carried in an automobile to the place where he was found.

According to information received here Medical Examiner Fisher, who performed the autopsy, said that the boy was killed before the body was placed in the bushes. Death was caused by a stab through the heart. Information received by the police here was that one hand of the messenger was grasping a strand of wire fencing, and this, if true, it was argued would tend to show that Binkowitz received his death blow where his body was found. The theory of the police who have been assigned to the case is that the murderers planned to cut off the youth's head and carry it away to prevent any possibility of identification.

Following out Commissioner Enright's policy of silence, nothing official was given out at Police Headquarters regarding the case. From Milford, however, came a report that a trolley car conductor was under arrest in this city on the charge of having one of the stolen bonds in his possession. A report from Milford to the police here said for three days after the body was found a trolley man in uniform, who was a stranger, was seen frequently at the Town Hall. He did not appear to be employed, and attention was directed to him when he asked permission to take a bath in the tramps' quarters in the Town Hall basement. Permission was given him, and later on the stranger went away.

STYLES ITSELF "CLARITY"

By PHILIP GIBBS.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—I was present in Paris last night at the first meeting of a new society of "Intellectuals," which has for its primary and most modest objects the conversion of Europe to a new gospel of social life and complete reconstruction of the world.

Until I went to that meeting it seemed to me I could not hope to find any organized intellectual movement arising out of the experience of the war in Paris at this time, for Paris is hot and sunbaked, and tired like the leaves that are drooping and brown on the trees in the Tuileries, and the spirit of the Parisians is languid, even exhausted, after the tremendous emotions of victory, peace conferences, and pageants, and now in this last phase of Summer says, "Pouf! It is too hot to think!"

On the surface of French life, as a result of the emotion with which they have been surcharged for five years, the people have sunk back into a kind of stupor. Below the surface the tragedy of war is still at work nagging in people's minds, and great wounds are hurting. Below the surface also there is a grasping of stricken souls toward some new way of life which will prevent another such tagedy in the fields of France, where there is still one long, broad belt of desert land as a memorial of enormous horror.

Name Suggested by a Book.

The name of this new society, which is in alliance with the French League of Youth, was suggested by the latest book of Henri Barbusse. He was not there last night to see the inauguration of the scheme which is to promulgate his ideas. From what I have heard of him I fancy he would smile in a cynical way at that queer crowd of enthusiasts and intellectuals perspiring hotly in an upper room while they listened to a program of universal brotherhood.

It was a young man named Victor Cyril, sitting on a dais between two supporters, who in a cold, businesslike way read out the statutes of the new league and explained their scope. They are to form a network—a spider's web as he called it—of district societies all over Europe, centralized in a supreme executive committee. Already they have 1,200 supporters, including in France Anatole France, Georges Duhamel Steinlen, the great artist, and Magdeleine Marx, a descendant of Karl Marx, and in England and other countries Thomas Hardy, George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, Norman Angell, George Brandis, Ibanez, who wrote "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse"; Upton Sinclair, and the Indian poet Rabindranath Tagore.

It was a young officer in a fourragère who explained to me the meaning and purpose of the Clarté movement. He spoke of the horror of war, and shrugged his shoulders and said: "You know all about that, let us not waste words on it. Men who went through that business have come out changed with new ideas. In the trenches they said, 'This must not happen again.' Then they went further than that and said, 'To prevent this happening again we must alter the relations of people with each other, and kill all the old ideas which led to this massacre. Society must start afresh on new lines not marked out by frontiers of hatred. The working people of all classes must get together and recognize that they have common interests to get on with their work in peace without being flung against each other by the people on top who make wealth out of them, or by their own passions.'"

Intellectuals and Their Axioms.

It was below the surface that I saw last night when I went to the first meeting of a new society called "Clarté" (clarity, or truth, as we should say) in a side street off the Rue du Temple. It was a gathering of intellectuals of a queer kind. There were about 200 people in the room when I arrived, and 100 more on the staircase trying to get in. I studied their faces and saw that they were of many types, and, I should say, of many races. There were Russians and Poles among them with typical Slav face, and many Jews, and a few Italians, and only two or three Englishmen. The rest were Frenchmen, students and artists, and poverty-stricken men of letters by the look of them. At the door was the handsome young officer wearing the "fourragère" for gallantry in the field, and there were a few young poilus in uniform, and many men in civil clothes who had been soldiers of the great war, and some women of the well-to-do class.

While the young officer talked to me I thought of something that had happened a long time ago very close to the room in which we sat—a feast to the Goddess of Reason whose archpriest was Robespierre. After a reign of terror were these same old ideas clothed in new phrases. I heard other "axioms" read in that crowded room to that strange little crowd of French intellectuals. "Power ought to be common to all. As an ideal only work, manual or intellectual, ought to be paid for. Speculation is a crime against the crowd. Heritage is a theft. Those who prepare for war prepare wars. It is thought which has created progress; men of thought must lend their life to progress. Those who do nothing are the militants of the status quo."

It is interesting all the same, this Clarté movement. I fancy it represents the clash of ideas that will happen in France when the lists are set for a new phase of the social struggle which goes on age by age. It may gather up and direct a lot of passionate emotion that is seething among crowds of men and women who look back to the war with horror, and forward with hope in some new phase of civilization when such massacres need not happen.

But it is antagonistic, I imagine, to the main body of opinion among the people in France at the present time who are disappointed with the peace, not because it is too severe but too mild, and because it does not pay them back for the ruin it caused. They do not want the benefit of brotherhood but hard cash, and the security of overwhelming force in a military alliance with England and America.

And anyhow the youth of France in escape from war are not brooding en masse over the tragedy of the past and troubles of the future, but for the moment are getting the most out of their present life, while the sun shines and money lasts and pretty girls are kind.

Bell-Baldwin Hydroplane Speeds 71 Miles Per Hour

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 9.—A speed of 71 miles an hour, believed to be a record for hydroplane, was made at Baddeck, Cape Breton, today by a new hydroplane, designed and built by F. W. Baldwin of Baddeck, and Alexander Graham Bell, the American scientist, according to a dispatch received here tonight.

The boat was equipped with Liberty motors, lent to the experimenters by the United States Navy.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Occupation of Petropavlovsk, on the Ishim River, about 175 miles west of Omsk, by Bolshevist forces, is claimed in a Russian Soviet official statement received today.

There is considerable conflict in the statements currently received from the Russian Soviet Government on the one hand and the All-Russian forces of Admiral Kolchak on the other as to the locality of recent fighting in the campaign west of Omsk. A counteroffensive by the Kolchak forces, beginning Sept. 1, was reported in Omsk, according to advices received Sept. 8, the Bolsheviki being declared to be in retreat, and heavy fighting taking place along the Tobol River, about 300 miles west of Omsk.

The recent Bolshevist communiques have carried no dates of the reported engagements and it is uncertain whether they antedate the Omsk advices or relate to subsequent happenings.

GENEVA, Sept. 9, (French Wireless Service.)—The city of Kiev, which recently was captured from the Bolsheviki, has not only been entirely cleared of Bolshevist forces but the Ukrainians have advanced more than thirty miles northward, the Ukrainian Press Bureau here announces.

Paris Now Hears of Overtures by the Russian Bolsheviki.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The Russian Bolsheviki have proposed peace to the Lithuanians, according to reports from Polish sources.

HAS NOT ASKED JAPAN'S AID.

Counsellor Debuchi Denies Assertion of the Moscow Soviet.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Counsellor Debuchi, Chargé of the Japanese Embassy, today authorized categorical denial of a statement attributed to Bolshevist sources in Moscow that Admiral Kolchak had applied to Japan for help, offering in return the northern portion of the Island of Saghalien and the Ussuri Valley on the mainland of Siberia.

Mr. Debuchi points out that Admiral Kolchak could not make a binding pledge relating to Russian territory and that Japan has been all along giving all aid possible. There is no intention of ceasing the extension of aid, said Counsellor Debuchi, who reiterated that Japan had no thought of territorial compensation.

IRISH MOB WRECKS 50 SHOPS IN FERMOY

London Morning Post Declares Such Deeds Are the Interest on American Dollars.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Fermoy, a town in Ireland nineteen miles northeast of Cork city, was terrorized by a mob for an hour last evening, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. Fifty shops were damaged, one jewelry store being completely demolished. The loss is estimated at several thousand pounds sterling.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Morning Post, commenting upon the Sinn Fein outrage at Fermoy, says:

"Such are the deeds the American people are being asked to finance and which stand for the interest on their borrowed dollars. Something must be done, we are continually told, if only to conciliate public opinion in the United States. What could be better done, what would be more likely to be effective than to make America realize that Sinn Fein works by the methods of the 'black hand'? The propaganda of de Valera and his fellows is assiduous and unscrupulous and it naturally produces an effect on people who do not know the facts and who are already forgetting that Sinn Fein was an active accomplice and ally of Germany in the war and that it tried to serve the allied cause as its agents serve lonely policemen and soldeirs—that is to say, with bullet or knife in the back.

"It is very lamentable that it should be possible in the twentieth century to lead a highly educated public astray with such complete facility. Sir Edward Carson counsels counter-propaganda, and it is the only remedy available. It should not be difficult to impress America with the British side of the Irish question. 'Why doesn't England give self determination to Ireland?' is, we are told, what Americans ask. No answer could be moer simple: For the same reason that justified Abraham Lincoln in denying self determination to the South."

MAY NOT PLACE CAILLAUX ON TRIAL

Charge of High Treason Against Ex-Premier Said to be Judged Untenable.

MAY GO TO SANITARIUM

He Is in Ill-Health and Has Been Year and a Half in Prison.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Although the report of the "Instruction" Committee on the Caillaux case is not to be published until Sept. 16, it is said that it concluded for the ex-Premier's trial before the High Court.

In this affair the committee performs the function of a "juge d'instruction"—a magistrate who decides after preliminary examination whether there are grounds for trial or not—and its reported decision in the affirmative is a blow to those friends of Caillaux who persist in declaring that the case against him is based on a tissue of lies, absurdities, and gossip.

On the other hand, it is whispered that the instructing committee finds that the charges of intelligence with the enemy and high treason, if not entirely baseless, are at least legally untenable, and that only a charge of political action of an unpatriotic character can be maintained.

If this be true it is possible that the Government may use Caillaux's ill-health—which is genuine enough, whether or not it is due, as his friends assert, to the year and a half confinement he has undergone—as a pretext for letting the case drop altogether.

Advocates of this supposition point out that since the victorious termination of the war Caillaux is no longer dangerous and that, moreover, he is politically dead already, even without the additional stain on his reputation which would result from his condemnation by the High Court. His friends—who are more numerous and much more devoted than may be realized in America—say that some such conclusion as this would be fully in accord with Clemenceau's action in keeping his most dangerous opponent a year and a half in prison without trial because he knew that the prosecution would utterly break down if put to a real test. They add that unless Caillaux's ill-health prevents him he will never rest untill he has triumphantly vindicated his reputation, even should an opportunity of doing so at a High Court trial not be given him.

After due allowance for partisan feeling, the fact that the Caillauxists take this tone shows that the case against him is undoubtedly less strong than the Government might have wished. Caillaux's worst enemy would never deny his ability, and however certain may be the moral presumption that he was the head and centre of the defeatist organization which so nearly brought the country to disaster in 1917, he acted with such circumspection that it is very much of a question whether sufficient legal proof of his culpability exists.

On the other hand the High Court of the Senate, in which Clemenceau's supporters are in the majority, might nevertheless condemn the ex-Premier on some such general charge of forfeiture as was pronounced against Malvy. But in that event the very violence of the accusations against Caillaux that have been freely printed during the past eighteen months might cause a reaction in his favor.

Again and again the word has gone forth that some new "affair" contained the definite proof of Caillaux's guilt which the prosecution had been seeking. Should a trial convince the public of the baselessness of all these assertions there might well be developed a sentiment which his friends always have tried to create, that he is a martyr to political machinations, and that his worst crime consisted in being frankly pacifist, both before and after the declaration of war, instead of stealthily defeatist.

As Clemenceau himself has shown the politically "dead" in France have a habit of resurrection and any High Court verdict short of condemnation on a charge less vague than forfeiture, might help rather than hinder Caillaux's ultimate ambition.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Joseph Caillaux, the former Premier, who has been in prison for more than a year, charged with having treasonable dealings with Germany, will be permitted on Wednesday or Thursday to enter a sanitarium, the Temps says. Counsel for M. Caillaux requested recently that he be removed from prison on the ground that his health had been so weakened as to cause anxiety.

DIES AFTER RUNNING AMUCK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 9.—The dangerous Bolshevist who succeeded in killing or wounding many policemen and soldiers on his wild chase through streets and houses in Rotterdam Saturday has since died in a hospital of his wounds. He has been identified as Sofrony Paraschenko, a Russian who fled from Germany while the war was in progress, and who had been kept at a Russian refugee camp in Holland, where he received the help of the Russian Commission for Refugees.

An attaché of the Dutch Alien Office had been searching for Paraschenko for three weeks and recognized him yesterday at the hospital. Paraschenko, besides being guilty of various crimes, was a revolutionary plotter and was in possession of a letter from the President of the Amsterdam Soviet Committee, D. Wynkoop. The letter asked Paraschenko to represent the Soldiers and Workers' Council when he went to Germany.

Paraschenko emptied a Browning gun twice during his flight. The discovery of this man's identity will doubtless be a useful clue to the Dutch police, who are diligent in the search for dangerous elements in Holland and up to the present have made an extraordinary record in shutting the frontiers on the Bolshevist element.

Hamburg-American Line Closes Offices in Holland.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 9.—Directors Heinilken and Heltoi of the Hamburg-American Line are at present in The Hague closing up their steamship offices in Holland, as with the few ships to dispose of the offices are no longer necessary.

The first ship to sail under the German flag has sailed from Hamburg for America. The ship had on her lading bill 2,000 tons of ballast, but will return to Hamburg with machinery and oil.

Allies Will Occupy Silesia Soon, General Dupont Tells the Insurgents

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Upper Silesia, where serious conflicts are in progress between the Polish and German elements in anticipation of the proposed plebiscite over the transfer of the territory in Poland, will be occupied in the near future by allied troops, according to a statement made by General Dupont to refugees and insurgents in the region, it was learned today on semi-official authority.

General Dupont, representing France, General Malcolm Great Britain, General Rencivenga Italy and Colonel Goodyear the United States, after visiting the camps in the region, are declared to have telegraphed to Paris urging the necessity of this action.

General Dupont is quoted as saying that the technical difficulties would prevent the carrying out of the occupation before Sept. 20, and as advising the insurgents to await patiently the arrival of the Allies.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The German peace delegation sent a note to the General Secretariat of the Peace Conference this morning on the Silesian question. The note complained of disturbances in Upper Silesia alleged to have been incited by the Poles.

'HARSH TREATY,' SAY BRITISH LABOR MEN

SEEKS GERMAN GOOD-WILL

"Direct Action" Wing in Control—Government, Particularly Churchill, Assailed.

GLASGOW, Sept. 9.—Co-operation with international laborites in their campaign to procure Germany's admission to the League of Nations and for an immediate revision of the "harsh treaty provisions, which are inconsistent with the statements made on behalf of the Allies at the time of the armistice," was overwhelmingly pledged today by the trades union congress in session here.

The resolution was moved by Delegate Williams of the transport workers, who is a direct actionist and who urged as the first step for the reconciliation of the peoples the inauguration of a new era of international co-operation and good-will.

The champions of direct action today won a clean-cut victory when the congress voted to refer back a portion of the Parliamentary Committee's report owing to failure to explain the committee's reason for refusing a few months ago to call a special conference for the purpose of discussing the advisability of employing direct action to secure the abolition of conscription and on other questions.

The vote to refer back was 2,586,000 to 1,670,000 against. Before the vote was taken G. W. Stuart Bunning, the presiding officer, warned the delegates that a reference back of the report would be considered a censure of the Parliamentary Committee.

The result of the vote is attributed to speeches by Robert Smillie, Robert Williams and Frank Hodges, the "Big Three" of the Direct-Actionists. Mr. Smillie accused the Parliamentary committee of denying to organized labor the opportunity of expressing its attitude on the question. He declared that the Government was holding power under false pretenses, as it was elected on policies it had since repudiated, and the committee had lost the confidence of the Trade Unionists.

"The trade unionists in Russia today," he added, "are fighting battles in behalf of Socialism for the whole world."

Chairman Bunning characterized this invective as cheap sarcasm.

John Clynes, former Food Controller, and labor member of Parliament, defending the Committee, declared that British trade unionists were more divided today than at any time during the war. He counseled the continuance of efforts to achieve reforms through the ballot, not through a strike.

Chairman Brownlie of the Executive Council of the Amalgamated Engineers addressed the congress on the question of increasing the industrial output. He declared it was imperative to maintain production. Mr. Smillie objected to a "lecture" being delivered by the speaker, while Delegate Mills of the engineers said that Mr. Brownlie had traduced the workers. The congress took no action on the subject.

PRINCE WANTS TO LIVE CLOSE TO AMERONGEN

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WIERINGEN, Sept. 8.—Former Crown Princess Cecilie of Germany expects to stay five or six days on this island, probably leaving Friday or Saturday with her sons for Amerongen. She does not yet know the date of her departure, as the arrangements for her visit to Holland are in the hands of the ex-Kaiser's Court Marshal at Amerongen, who determines the length of her stay and must consult the Dutch Government.

The former Crown Prince has requested permission to leave Wieringen owing to the bad climate, including the cold Winters, and wishes to live at Baarn, which is not far from Amerongen. Arrangements for this change are said to be under consideration.

Today the former Crown Princess appeared in an elegant outing costume with a coquettish little hat. Her hair was beautifully dressed, but her pale, tired face was in strange contrast to that of the Cecilie of pre-war days and to the former Crown Prince, who appears to be bursting with health and spirits after his long period of country life.

The little Princes also look pale and thin. They opened their eyes wide at rich food and creamy milk, which they had not seen in a long time at Potsdam, where, they said, the milk was mostly water.

There are many signs which confirm rumors recently in circulation that the Princess has had difficulty in obtaining sufficient nourishing food for her children. It is said that at one time the Spartacides obliged her to live on rations, placing a guard in her kitchen, which may partly account for the lines of care on the mother's face.

SEE CUT IN CLOTHES PRICES.

Retail Dealers, in Session at Chicago, Blame Costly Labor.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Delegates to the convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers here today predicted a reduction in the price of clothing in the near future.

"Lower prices are on the way," said Fred Levy of Louisville, "and we fellows will sing the loudest when the change comes. Men can't be induced to part with $75 or $80 for a business suit. The principal reason for the present high prices is the cost of labor. There really is not much profiteering in clothes, and what little there is we intend to stop."

The opening session today was attended by 500 merchants from every State in the Union. The organization tendered its assistance to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and the Senate Investigating Committee in their fight against the high cost of living.

WINNIPEG GREETS PRINCE OF WALES

WINNIPEG, Sept. 9.—The Prince of Wales arrived in Winnipeg at 11 o'clock today to receive a Western welcome. His route was lined with an immense crowd which on the whole kept its ranks along Main Street for at least 200 yards and then the mass of people swarmed about the Prince. The Prince's open carriage slowed up by a dais among the trees in the garden before City Hall and the people feeling that this was their chance took it. In a minute where there had been a fine broad open space lined with neat policemen there was a swamping mass of humanity of all genders and all ages. The Prince was hemmed in by this human barrage and only a free fight got him out of the carriage on to the dias.

The marines who follow the Prince about and others of his suite and the local police all joined in to keep the crowd back, but they could accomplish nothing until the mounted police came to their aid and gave the Mayor a chance to say what the crowd had been explaining for the last ten minutes, how glad Winnipeg was to see him.

It was the usual formal function, varied a little by the fact that the Prince opened a greater Winnipeg water supply. He did this in the modern manner. He pressed a button on the platform, which swung the gates of Shoal Lake, outside the city, and immediately a fountain in the gardens before him began to play.

Again big crowds on the sidewalks and in cars and even in the big windows and perched like midgets on the roofs marked his ride to the Parliament buildings, where there were great crowds to meet him. It was a vivid and shining scene before the huge Renaissance structure, as yet half finished. In a big open space before the building was a mass of children bearing flags, and up the great flight of steps which lead to a porch supported by mighty Corinthian pillars was a bank of people jewelled with flags and vivid with gay dresses. The ceremony in the immense entrance hall was also quick with color and life. In the massive square hall stairs spring upward upon which the Prince stood. On each floor there were galleries cut into the solid white stone of the severe campanile, and crowded into these galleries were men and women. Up these stairs came the deputations from the many groups of Canadians to offer the Prince welcoming addresses. These groups moving up the white stairs to the Prince amid the bright uniforms gave the function the dignity of an Eastern pageant.

But it was a pageant with a touch of humor. As he turned to go the Prince noticed a handsome chair of blue leather behind him. It was a queer, lonely chair and he bent to look at it. The crowd, knowing all about that chair and understanding his puzzlement, began to laugh. It laughed outright and with a sympathetic humor, when, handing his guard's cap to a bystander, he solemnly sat down in it for a second before going on his way. That chair was the chair his father and grandfather had sat in when they came to Winnipeg.

The Prince had not time to adopt a fully considered sitting, but he was not going to leave that building until he, too, had registered his claim to the chair.

From the Parliament buildings the route led through crowds to the big campus in front of the University of Manitoba. Ranked in a hollow square were the veterans in khaki and in civies, who had fought in the war. There were Canadian Highlanders and riflemen in that square as well as veterans dating back to the time of the Northwest rebellion in 1885, and there was also a regimental goat of the 5th West Canadians, a big, husky fellow, who endeavored to take control of the ceremony as befitted a veteran who sported four service chevrons and a wound stripe. Again the crowd was almost placid in the beginning. It thickly lined the wooden rail on three sides of the campus and filled the decorous seats in and about the big glowingly draped pavilion. But only for a short time did this condition of things hold. The crowd behind the pavilion began to press forward as the Prince inspected the ranks of the veterans. Soldiers linked arms to keep it back and soldiers with bayonets were drawn from the veterans in the campus to give additional weight. Wise men mounted on the pavilion endeavored to still the forward pressure with words, but neither the soldiers nor the words of wisdom could stop the crowd. It flowed forward into the campus, and by the time the Prince had finished the inspection he had to walk through a lane of people to the grand stand, where he gave medals to the soldiers and the relatives of soldiers killed in action.

MAN 131 RIDES IN AIRPLANE.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 9.—"It sure makes a fellow feel like he is drunk, but it's all right at that." That was the expression which fell from the lips of "Uncle John" Schell, said to be 131 years old and the oldest man in the world, as he stepped upon the State Fair Grounds again, following a fifteen-minute airplane flight at the State Fair this afternoon. "Uncle John" traveled about six miles, at a height of about 400 feet. He expressed himself as deeply grateful that he had lived long enough to enjoy the experience.

His only regret recently has been that his five-year-old son, whom he left in the mountains, has not been with him. The boy is the old man's idol. He was born five years ago in the hills where "Uncle John" has lived all of his alleged 131 years.

BURLESON DENIES GALLOWAY CHARGES

Says He Never Tried to Control Action of Civil Service Commission.

LATTER RENEWS ATTACK

Accuses Postmaster General of Avoiding the Issue—Senate Committee to Investigate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The charges made last Sunday by Charles M. Galloway, the retiring Civil Service Commissioner, that Postmaster General Burleson was trying to "debauch" the commission to further his political fortunes, met with a denial tonight from Mr. Burleson. After stating that Mr. Galloway was "discharged because of an 'apparently uncontrollable infirmity,'" Mr. Burleson said he had never written or spoken to the commission with intent to control that body's action.

Mr. Galloway replied to this statement tonight by calling the Postmaster General a "guttersnipe politician."

Mr. Burleson's statement follows:

"Of course, the Postmaster General will not engage in controversy with the discharged Civil Service Commissioner who, as is well known, unfortunately became disqualified to discharge the responsible duties of his office because of an apparently uncontrollable infirmity.

"At no time has the Postmaster General addressed a communication to the Civil Service Commission with a view of improperly controlling a post office appointment, and the Postmaster General has at no time spoken to the members of the commission with a purpose to control their action in filling any post office vacancy.

"In the matter of the Lockhart, Texas, case the temporary appointment of the relative of the Postmaster General as acting Postmaster was not made by him, but by the surety company against his wishes, which company had the right under the law to temporarily fill the vacancy. After the examination had been held and an eligible list certified to the department, the Postmaster General, notwithstanding the fact that the papers had been returned to the Civil Service Commission for review, directed the First Assistant Postmaster General to appoint the first eligible, which was done, and he now holds the office. This action was taken long before the papers were reviewed by the commission.

"In the matter of the Salinas, Cal., case the Postmaster had proved an efficient officer. His reputation in his community was without blemish. After the campaign of 1916 he was charged with a violation of the civil service law in the matter of soliciting campaign funds. He was indicted and fined by the court. It was thought that the humiliation of the indictment and the penalty visited upon him by the court was a sufficient punishment for the offense he had committed. The Postmaster General refused to add to this punishment by the removal of the Postmaster from office. For this action he has no apology to make and has followed the policy laid down by his predecessors under former Administrations in such cases, as the records of the department show.

"The charge that an attempt has been made to debauch the civil service in the appointment of Postmaster, which is under the direction of the First Assistant Postmaster General, who has been in the postal service for a quarter of a century and is recognized by all who know him as the very embodiment of honesty, uprightness, and efficiency, is completely met by the following statement made by the former Chairman of the Civil Service Commission who served under the Administrations of Messrs. Roosevelt and Taft, which statement was made in writing when these scurrilous charges were first anonymously given to the press.

"Mr. McIlhenny, speaking of these very charges, then said, after characterizing them as 'unfair and untruthful:'

"'There has been no effort on the part of the Post Office Department or of yourself (the Postmaster General) to set aside or evade the Civil Service law in its principle or its rules. The truth is, there is more complaint from Democratic sources as to the action taken under the executive order than by Republicans, and it is admitted by those familiar with the cases handled that the department has adhered strictly to the executive order as issued.'"

The statement by Mr. Galloway follows:

"Mr. Burleson does what every guttersnipe politician does who has no truthful defense to charges made against him. He avoids the issue and resorts to mudslinging.

"I am perfectly willing to let those who know the private character of Mr. Burleson and myself decide which of us is superior to the other in decent, honest, worthy manhood.

"I reaffirm every statement I made in the press of Sept. 7 concerning Mr. Burleson.

"Moreover, Mr. Burleson attempts to hide behind his first assistant, Mr. Koons, and place the blame upon him. And with a refreshing sense of humor he produces as proof of the purity of his official acts a letter from former Commissioner McIlhenny."

Friends of Mr. Galloway said tonight that it was no surprise that Mr. Burleson used Mr. McIlhenny as one of his supports. Mr. Galloway and Herman W. Craven, the former Republican member of the Civil Service Commission, were always very much opposed to the methods of Mr. McIlhenny. On the other hand, it was generally agreed that Mr. McIlhenny and Mr. Burleson had largely the same views upon the examination of Postmasters.

Confirmation was given tonight by Senator Townsend of Michigan to the belief expressed in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Sunday last, that there would be an investigation. The Senator, who is Chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, said that when Mr. Galloway appeared next Saturday upon an entirely different matter that questions would be asked of him concerning his difficulties with Mr. Burleson. Indeed, there may be a double-barrelled investigation, for Representative Steenerson of Minnesota, Chairman of the House Post Office Committee, has already introduced a resolution to prevent the Civil Service from being made a football of politics. Reference is made in the resolution to the resignation of Mr. Galloway and to Mr. Burleson.

TURKS THREATEN UPRISING.

Trouble Predicted in Constantinople if Thrace Is Given to the Greeks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 7, (Associated Press.) — Notwithstanding the widespread state of lawlessness, with bands of robbers roving in every country bordering on the Black Sea, the belief is expressed by British officers here that another winter will see an end of the unrest.

The sittings of the Allied Commission are being closely watched by the Turks, and the conviction has been expressed in some quarters that if the Greeks are permitted to retain Thrace there will be a Turkish uprising throughout the country. It is stated that the Greeks desire to exchange their holdings in Smyrna for Thrace.

Hungary May Make Offer of Union with Rumania

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Dr. Stephan Friedrich, Premier of Hungary, is reported in a Vienna dispatch, printed in newspapers here today, to have sent a Hungarian delegation to Bucharest. The report states that, besides being empowered to negotiate a separate peace with Rumania, the delegation may discuss the eventual union of Hungary and Rumania.

Advices reaching the Peace Conference from Budapest indicate that the Government headed by Dr. Friedrich will probably remain in office indefinitely. It is said that Franz Heinrich's effort to establish a coalition Cabinet has been abandoned, and there is apparently a general support of the Friedrich Government.

EXPORT BANK BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Edge's Measure for Financing Foreign Trade Is Approved.

DOUBLE LIABILITY CLAUSE

Amendment Gives Further Assurance to the Public—House Expected to Act Quickly.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—By a viva voce vote the Senate today passed the bill offered by Senator Edge of New Jersey to permit the organization of corporations under Government control to engage in rebuilding the export trade between the United States and foreign countries. The fundamental object of the measure is to provide a means of promoting trade which, owing to unsettled conditions abroad, cannot be undertaken without an expansion of financial facilities.

The bill was passed without a dissenting vote. It now goes to the House, where, it is believed, it will quickly be put through. President Wilson is understood to favor it.

Under the bill a corporation to engage in the promotion of export trade may be organized by five or more individuals, with a capital stock of not less than $2,000,000. The controlling interest in the corporations must be in the hands of citizens of the United States.

The corporations are to be under supervision of the Federal Trade Commission. They will be permitted to engage in a general banking business relative to export trade, embracing the extension of credits abroad, the loan of moneys on real and personal property, and other financial enterprises.

Foreign securities may be accepted by the corporations in return for issues of debentures which will be sold to investors in the corporations here and abroad. Money raised through the sale of these debentures will be used in paying for goods purchased. The bill provides that foreign traders may give mortgages on their plants to provide security for advances.

It is provided that a corporation organized under the measure may invest in other corporations created to promote international trade, but the extent of this investment is limited to 10 per cent. of the capital and surplus of the investing concern, except as to banking corporations, which may use 15 per cent. of their capital and surplus. This double libality clause was accepted by the Senate after a vigorous debate, in which it was contended that the corporations ought to be put under similar restrictions as national banks.

"To purchase, sell, discount, and negotiate notes, drafts, checks, bills of exchange, acceptances, including bankers' acceptances, cable transfers, and other evidences of indebtedness; to purchase and sell securities, including the obligations of the United States or of any State thereof; to accept bills or drafts drawn upon it subject to such limitations and restrictions as the Federal Reserve Board may impose; to issue letters of credit; to purchase and sell exchange, coin, and bullion; to borrow and to lend money on real or personal security; to receive deposits, and generally to exercise such powers as are incidental to the powers conferred by this act or as may be usual in connection with the transaction of the business of the banking or other financial operations in the countries, colonies, dependencies, or possessions in which it shall transact business.

"To establish and maintain for the transaction of its business branches or agencies in foreign countries, their dependencies or colonies, and in the dependencies or insular possessions of the United States at such places as may be approved by the Federal Reserve Board and under such rules and regulations as it may prescribe, and to establish and maintain such additional branches or agencies as the Federal Reserve Board may from time to time authorize even in countries or dependencies not specified in the original organization certificate.

"With the consent of the Federal Reserve Board to purchase and hold stock or other certificates of ownership in any other corporation organized under the provisions of this section or under the laws of any foreign country or a colony or dependency thereof or under the laws of any State, dependency, or insular possession of the United States not transacting business in the United States, except such as in the judgment of the Federal Reserve Board may be incidental to its international or foreign business; provided, however, that without the consent of the Federal Reserve Board no corporation organized hereunder shall invest in any one corporation an amount in excess of 10 per centum of its own capital and surplus. The provisions of Section 7 of the act approved Oct. 15, 1914, entitled 'An act to supplement existing laws against unlawful restraints and monopolies and for other purposes,' shall not apply to corporations or to officers, directors, or employes of corporations organized under this section."

In a statement after the passage of the bill Senator Lodge said:

"The main object I wished to accomplish was the acceptance of the principle that the national banking system should be expanded to recognize the necessity of co-operating in the question of export financing. This will be fully accomplished by the enactment of the bill, which now has been passed by the Senate. I would have preferred to have secured the waiver of the double liability clause, as I do not feel these corporations are in that respect in the same position as national banks; at the same time this amendment has the value of assuring the public that investments made therein are secured to that additional extent and, if the bill finally passes the House of Representatives and becomes law, I am positive many banks will be incorporated under its provisions, and its enactment will result in greatly helping the serious situation it is designed to alleviate."

RUMANIANS BALK AT SIGNING TREATY

Announce That They Will Not Accept Austrian Agreement Without Reservations.

SEE SOVEREIGNTY IMPAIRED

Object to Giving Guarantees to Racial Minorities in Annexed Territory.

COURSE OF SERBIA IN DOUBT

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The Rumanian delegation to the Peace Conference announced today that it would not sign the Austrian Peace Treaty, the signing of which by Austria and various other powers in interest is set to take place at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

In answer to the Rumanian note saying that the Rumanians would sign the treaty only with reservations, A. J. Balfour of the British delegation is preparing a letter for the Council declaring that Rumania's signature will not be accepted unless given unreservedly.

In reply to this letter Nicholas Mishu, head of the Rumanian delegation, will hand to the Council a letter saying that Rumania is unable to sign the treaty and giving her reasons.

The two principal reasons were: First, that Article LX. of the treaty held their hands commercially and economically at a time when they required absolute freedom of action in order to accomplish reconstruction; and, second, that guarantees to minorities imposed by an outside power would take away Rumania's sovereignty over newly annexed territories.

Before the Rumanian announcement was made it had been indicated by members of the Supreme Council that Rumania was expected to take the course she has announced in refusing to sign the treaty because of the Council's flat refusal to grant her the privilege of making reservations in connection with the clauses guaranteeing the rights of minorities in territories detached from the former Austrian Empire.

It is also considered as improbable that the Jugoslav delegation will sign the treaty. It will have several days, however, in which to communicate with its home Government. The Jugoslav objections are similar to those of Rumania.

Positive declarations as to their action could not be obtained tonight from either the Greek or Serbian delegations. At Serbian headquarters it was said that the attitude of the delegation was unchanged. The delegates were opposed to signing, but the matter had been referred to the Government at Belgrade for instructions, which had not so far been received. Unless orders from Belgrade are received directing them to sign the document, the delegates will abstain from doing so.

At Greek headquarters it was said that the delegates had not yet had time to consider the terms of the treaty carefully, but if the conditions were found to be what they had been told they were, it was probable that Premier Venizelos would sign.

Dr. Karl Renner, the Austrian Chancellor and head of the Austrian peace delegation, who is to sign the Peace Treaty tomorrow for his nation, arrived in Paris from Vienna this morning.

HUNGARY MAY PROPOSE UNION WITH RUMANIA

Friedrich Said to Have Sent Mission to Bucharest to Negotiate Separate Peace.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Dr. Stephan Friedrich, Premier of Hungary, is reported in a Vienna dispatch, printed in newspapers here today, to have sent a Hungarian delegation to Bucharest. The report states that, besides being empowered to negotiate a separate peace with Rumania, the delegation may discuss the eventual union of Hungary and Rumania.

Advices reaching the Peace Conference from Budapest indicate that the Government headed by Dr. Friedrich will probably remain in office indefinitely. It is said that Franz Heinrich's effort to establish a coalition Cabinet has been abandoned, and there is apparently a general support of the Friedrich Government.

GRAND DUKE MICHAEL SAFE.

Has Escaped from Reds, According to Statement by His Aid.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 9.—Former Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of the former Emperor Nicholas, who was appointed Regent of Russia when the Romanoff dynasty was overthrown, but later was exiled by the Bolsheviki, has escaped from the Bolsheviki, with his secretary and a sailor, according to an announcement made by M. Sossionkia, Michael's aid, in the Svenska Dagbladet.

Michael is said to have made his escape in a motor boat, cruising along the River Haini to Irkutsk, from which place he subsequently went aboard and since has remained incognito.

In July of last year former Grand Duke Michael was reported to have escaped from Perm and to have placed himself at the head of the new Siberian Government. Another dispatch said he had been proclaimed Emperor of Russia and was marching against Moscow with a force of Czechoslovaks. Later it was said he was hiding in Archangel.

AUTOIST KIDNAPS GIRL.

Nearby Policeman Too Astonished to Prevent Abduction.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 9.—Within fifty feet of Policeman Charles Farley of the Lawrenceville Station a big touring car drew alongside the curb at North Broad and Allen Streets early today just as a young woman was passing. The driver jumped from his seat, threw a bag over the girl's head, lifted her bodily into the car, and started away.

For an instant the policeman was so astonished that he remained motionless. Then he commandeered a passing auto, picked up another policeman, and gave chase. The pursuit continued into Lawrenceville with the pursuing car steadily losing ground. Realizing that they were being outdistanced the policemen telephoned to Princeton and other towns through which the abductor would pass. The other car continued and soon was out of sight. Up to a late hour no young woman had been reported missing from her home.

Bye-Election Soon in Manchester.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—William Pringle, formerly Liberal Member of Parliament for Northwest Lanark, has been made Liberal candidate for the Rusholme Division of Manchester, left vacated by R. B. Stoker. Mr. Pringle is to run as a straight-out Liberal, having been an uncompromising opponent of the Coalition Government. His chances are considered good by his supporters if the Labor Party refrains from running a candidate. The Conservative candidate has not yet been announced.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

"Nightie Night" Is Amusing.

Disguised under the somewhat indecorous and quite misleading title of "Nightie Night," an old-time farce arrived in town last evening, where it was greeted at the Princess with several hours of continuous and unforced laughter. It begins boldly with a quite brazenly impossible situation, keeps going at a furious rate by dint of many doors and lies, and stops at 11 o'clock because it is time for the audience to go home. It is made of materials that have been used so often in the last twenty-five years that they are worn through in spots. And yet it is funny. It would be difficult (and quite unnecessary) to tell why it is funny. It just is.

A trifle more space than was employed to print the Peace Treaty in this newspaper would be needed to give a coherent and detailed account of the plot of "Nightie Night," which deals roughly, very roughly, with an innocent young husband's embarrassed efforts to seem innocent when his jealous wife discovers his former inamorata wandering about their apartment in negligée. Of course, she had sublet the place without knowing it was his, and of course she had sent out her dress to the cleaner's, and of course the cleaner's was immediately closed because it was Yom Kippur. So she hid in the stationary washtub—a pleasing variant of the screen motif—and everybody came to the kitchen to spend the morning, and so on and so on.

The important thing is that all this nonsense is played with fine fervor by a good cast, headed by that expert farceur, Francis Byrne, who is variously abetted. The ablest support is given by Marie Chambers, Ruby Craven and Grant Mills, whose name sounds as if he were a village in Oneida County. The rest are not amiss, particularly Dorothy Mortimer, who gives the best reproduction of the Madge Kennedy manner that has been seen on the American stage since the actors' strike.

The new farce was produced by Adolph Klauber, who brought it gayly to town on Aug. 7, just in time for the strike. There are one or two puzzling things about it. In the first place, how did Mr. Klauber know it was going to be funny? He could not have learned merely by going to several thousand farces just like it as an emissary of THE TIMES, and the laughability of such stuff can hardly be determined from the manuscripts. He must have just shut his eyes tight, put the thing on, and prayed it would turn out to be funny. Well, it did. It is not known why.

Then, there is the title. There is no particular reason why it should have been called "Nightie Night," unless to mislead the public into thinking one of those bedroom farces was with us again. Of course, Martha M. Stanley and Adelaide Matthews, who wrote the piece in collaboration, may have devised the title themselves. But one cannot help suspecting that Mr. Klauber pasted it onto the farce like a revenue stamp. One cannot help suspecting that, once upon a time, he thought that "Nightie Night" would make a good title for one of those plays—you know the kind—and made a mental note to clap it on to the first piece not too like "Hamlet" which should come his way.

Mr. Klauber finally responded last evening to the plaudits of the audience, making precisely the same startled fawn appearance which from his comfortable seat on the other side of the footlights he must have seen made by a thousand and one authors and producers on a thousand and one firstnightie nights.

"A REGULAR FELLER" COMES

There are in "A Regular Feller," acted here for the first time last night at the Cort Theatre, a number of scenes—or fragments of scenes—which are both legitimately humorous and delightfully human. Mark Swan, whose accustomed hand has turned out this newest "new comedy," has builded well insofar as his incidentals were concerned, but has been woefully lacking in the fashioning of his main plot.

The story, set against a background of the automobile tire business, proceeds through the four acts wheezily, and not infrequently it stops altogether, panting for breath. Unortunately, exhaustion is not due to the fact that Mr. Swan has driven his plat too rapidly, but that he has given it so little exercise as to produce an unhealthy condition. On these occasions the hand of the playwright can plainly be seen, feeding it oxygen.

The result of this treatment, of course, is a jerky, patchwork, artificial play—a work which is at its best when it dispenses with plot together, and goes in for the by-products. By far the best scenes of the play are those in which James Bradbury, as a rural commissioner of roads, adventures with a broken-down automobile. There was in the dilapidated car a deadly analogy to the entertainment of the evening. At times it ran under its own power, but finally it became necessary to affix a horse to it.

Mr. Swan's play revolves about the invention of a punctureproof tire and retells the conventional story of the rich man's son who demonstrates his brains by outwitting his father in a business deal. In a desire to avoid a plethora of business detail the play gives an astonishing revelation of the manner in which big business men conduct their affairs. The President of the tire company carries his 51 per cent. of the stock constantly around with him and airily instructs his Secretary to "take this power of attorney to New York and re-elect me President of the company."

James Bradbury gives an unctuous performance as the road commissioner, although occasionally he overaccents it. The remainder of the cast, including even Ernest Glendinning, was more or less engulfed by the artificiality of their material.

GOOD FAIRIES IN 'LUSMORE.'

Grace Heyer Acts the Hero of Simple Irish Legendary Play.

John McCormack was of the audience entering the Henry Miller Theatre last night from a cheering street of people as General Pershing drove away from the neighboring Elks' door. The martial note echoed at moments in the newest Irish legendary play, one of those stories told to children now, in which Erin remembers the days of old. Mrs. Chauncey Olcott had confidence enough in the slender dramatic possibilities of the piece to give her name a place on the program, as its independent producer and part author, while Grace Heyer was listed as co-author, acting hero, joint stage director, and composer of Irish songs, of which she as hero sang one. Irish fairies also hummed Celtic harmonies in the wings, and not only provided convenient spotlights up trees or down wells for Miss Heyer in the woods of Conmaicne, but also removed the humpbacked hero's hump and sent soft-voiced Lusmore in a knight's armor to Hugh de Lacy's camp to fight for his Irish king of long ago.

Eva LeGallienne as a blind girl, "named after Eithne, that King Cormack wed," according to a line of the play, won applause as the curtain rose on the first "picture" of a too persistently picture-book recital. She was very charming to see, and deft in her portrayal of sightlessness, and it was no fault of her, surely, that poor Eithne overtaxed belief by moving mountains, passing over hill and forest to Shannon Valley, where the fairies restored her to sight and to her lover's arms at last. Regina Wallace as the radiant Princess Oirein, whose hand was pledged to that gallant knight, tearfully abdicated all royal rights to the hero in the face of loyalty like that.

The Ireland of the "Playboy" or of "Squinting Windows" was never glimpsed in the moonlit castle and Melisande cot of Livington Platt's pictorial scenes, nor was the pale humor of fairy talk or tempered harshness of superstitious village folk casting out a humpbacked boy at any moment convincing. It was legend—let it pass for that.

An honest effort toward poetic manner and matter of speech was conveyed by the actors in a way to please sympathetic hearers, while the less reverent might scoff at a suspiciously modern realism of Irish brogue. A score or more of minor parts were kept "in the picture" by competent players, and the impression of a green isle spiritually haunted by "the little good people" was sustained throughout by other voices behind the scenes.

Short Covering on Better Feeling Over Labor Prospect Strengthens Stocks.

The advance hich occurred yesterday among the industrial stocks seemed to have a more direct connection with technical conditions within the market than with economic developments. The sharp rise of Crucible Steel and Baldwin Locomotive practically paralleled their extraordinary bulge last week, and was explained in the Street as the product in the main part of another retreat of earlier short sellers. The extended reaction which followed last week's surging upturn in these stocks and a few others was of a character to attract short sales by speculators whose eagerness for profits exceeded their caution in handling issues whose floating supply is believed to be restricted. Steel stocks, oil shares, and various miscellaneous issues advanced from 2 to 5 points. The fact that the purchasing movement was accelerated after rumors spread about the conference of steel union representatives at Washington showed once more that the labor situation is a continuing factor of much influence upon the market. The rumors dealt with the possibility of a decision by union leaders to defer action on their demands for recognition by the Steel Corporation until after the capital and labor conference is held next month. As far as actual news went, Washington dispatches told merely of a lengthy discussion among the labor men from which it was hardly possible to make a correct deduction of what their final action would be in respect to a strike.

The condition of the Steel Corporation's order books, which presumably reflects the position of other companies, shows that the workmen are in the midst of a period of active employment, which lays greater stress than at any other time since the armistice was signed on the probability of a serious shortage of hands to met the business offered. The corporation reported yesterday that bookings increased 530,000 tons during August. A total of 6,100,000 tons of orders on Aug. 31 was 1,326,700 tons more than on May 31, when they were at their lowest point of the period of decline. Within the last day or two, it is understood, the Railroad Administration began to allocate among producers contracts for 200,000 tons of rails, and the feeling prevails in steel manufacturing circles that a substantial tonnage of railroad material will be coming along shortly. Steel finishing mills are increasing their operations, foreign buying of equipment and semi-finished products is being extended in a way which is encouraging to producers, although it is felt that the adverse exchange rates are militating against receipts of many large orders.

Along the line of foreign purchases of railroad equipment considerable importance is attached to negotiations now on between the Belgian Government and the American Locomotive Company for the purchase of $20,000,000 of locomotives. Under the tentative terms now being discussed, the locomotive company will accept three to five year Belgian Treasury certificates. The transaction, if completed on this basis, will present one of the few important sales on credt that has thus far come to light in which an American corporation has accepted in payment a foreign Government's promise to pay without having the credit details handled by banking intermediaries.

German exchange receded to a new low level of 4.15 cents per mark for check transfers, and Austrian exchange also lost ground. The other exchanges were fairly firm. Call money lent at 6 per cent., easing to 5½ per cent. in the afternoon.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Briton's Foreign Trade.

The August display of foreign trade for England, as issued by the British Board of Trade yesterday, shows that for the month the country's imports decreased $20,455,000, while exports increased $45,960,000. In other words, the unfavorable visible balance of trade of England was some $66,500,000 lower in August than it was in July, but, with the exception of the months of December, January, and July, the unfavorable balance is the largest since the month of the armistice, November last. However, some observers on this side think the real significance in the display lies in the fact that British exports have steadily been expanding in the last nine months. The November, 1918, total was £43,218,879, and this was reduced to £38,282,035 in December, the first full month of virtual peace. Then in March the exports went above £50,000,000, and in May, June, and July they were well above £60,000,000 each month. In August they reached the high total of £74,773,237.

Foreign Credits.

While bankers favor Government cooperation in any arrangement of foreign credits, some of the larger export companies take the opposite view. It is their belief that the matter can be better adjusted by the companies and the bankers than by bringing in the Government. It is not that Government support in itself would be unacceptable, but there is a disposition on the part of some at least to consider that whether the Government part was large or small, there would be the danger of Government control of export business, which is not at all to the liking of most business men. The bankers, on the other hand, assert that the task is of too great proportions for them to handle without assistance. While these two viewpoints are being expressed the Federal Reserve Board suggests that it would be better for the Government not to participate in credit arrangements.

A Question of Property Rights.

Since the Cummins bill was presented there has been evidence in railroad circles of a growing opposition to those proposals it contains which would fix the rate of return on railroad property and would distribute excess earnings to the lines which failed to earn the fixed amount. In some quarters it has been suggested more than once that such provisions are unconstitutional, and it is expected by some corporate managers that unless other measures bring about the elimination of that feature from the final remedial legislation its constitutionality will be challenged.

Buying Loose-Wiles Stock.

It has been reported in the financial district recently that quiet and steady accumulation of Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company stock had been going on for some time, with the result that the present floating supply is not large. This is borne out to some extent by the fact that the issue has enjoyed a daily turnover which, while not large, has through its recurrence allowed for a substantial absorption. Yesterday a turnover of only a few hundred shares of the stock resulted in a swing from a low of 71⅛ to a high of 72½, showing that the issue is sensitive to pressure from either side.

Western Pacific's Compensation.

The report that the Western Pacific Railroad had refused annual compensation offered by the Railroad Administration amounting to $2,322,000 and that it intends to present its claim for $4,607,296 to the Court of Claims has attracted considerable attention in the financial district. The company announced early in the Spring that it would take its application to the body created to settle disputes between the roads and the Railroad Administration, and there was approval of the maintenance of the road's stand in many quarters yesterday.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol Rumors.

It was rumored in some commission houses yesterday that shorts who sold Industrial Alcohol on the belief that the stock would seek much lower levels because of financing which it must do were nipped sharply, and were responsible in part for the issue's advance of more than 2 points when they bought stock. Other reports have been circulated that insiders have been buying the stock quietly. It was also rumored that "alcogas," the new automobile fuel which the company will produce in quantity, may prove a surprise when it is placed upon the market.

Continental Can Dividend Increased.

Recent reports that favorable dividend action would be taken by Continental Can Directors have been justified, the company declaring yesterday a quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the common stock, placing it on a 7 per cent. basis, compared with the 6 per cent. rate paid since early in 1918. It was officially stated after the meeting that earnings were running at the rate of approximately 20 per cent. on the stock.

A Matter of Exchange.

With the exchange heavily against every country with which the United States is doing business in Europe there is naturally keen interest on the part of exporters in the developments of the future. There is no doubt but that a continuance of the situation will tell heavily in the export figures, but there are certain necessities which Europe must have and which must be imported from this country. The exporters, however, are not gambling in exchange. Where long-term credits are being arranged, the provision is usually made that payment is to be made from three to five years hence in gold dollars in New York.

Shorts Run to Cover.

A rumor that the steel strike had been indefinitely postponed following a conference of labor leaders in Washington was in circulation yesterday and the short interest did some hurried covering which moved prices up sharply. The report was later denied but the market did not react as might have been expected. On the contrary there was a pronounced display of strength even in the face of realizing sales in the last hour. In the opinion of many the market continues to show signs of being oversold. Any bit of favorable news serves to cause a display on the upward side, the price movement many times being quite out of proportion to the news itself.

Whelan Stocks in Demand.

Both United Retail Stores and Tobacco Products, two of the foremost of the Whelan group of stocks, moved to higher levels in yesterday's trading. The upward trend was started by the covering of shorts. When George J. Whelan left for Europe some four weeks ago there was a bear raid on the so-called Whelan stocks and during the entire time of his absence they were under pressure. Now that he has returned with plans for extending the scope of his companies the shorts are beginning to fear a punishment such as that which they suffered some time ago in United Cigar Stores.

Chandler Dividend Increased.

On a turnover of only 1,900 shares Chandler Motors moved up 9½ points in yesterday's market. This was superinduced by the announcement during the course of the day that the Directors had declared a $6 dividend on the common, thereby placing the stock on a 24 per cent. annual basis, as has been rumored for some days.

German Exchange.

German marks in the New York foreign exchange market sold down to a new low record of 4.15 cents to the mark yesterday. This represents the greatest discount on marks that has ever been reported, about 82½ per cent. It is not a record discount, however, as Russian ruble currency, quoted in the neighborhood of 4.80 cents, against a nominal par of 51.4 cents to the ruble, shows a discount of more than 90 per cent. from par. This probably is the greatest discount to be recorded in modern times.

OIL
Decline in Storage of Crude

On July 1, 1919, the stocks of crude oil in the United States were 135,646,000 barrels as compared with 144,365,000 barrels on July 1, 1918, or a decline of 8,719,000 barrels.

The demand for oil is still in excess of production. The rapid increase in the number of automobiles, tractors, and even airplanes, and, not least, the growing export demands, are taxing the industry to its utmost. The imports of Mexican oil into the United States are in part helping the situation. It would be a calamity, however, if new wells should cease to be drilled and new production secured. The advance of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania Crude indicates the current trend of the oil situation.

BIG BELGIAN LOAN SOON TO BE CLOSED

American Banks to Lend $50,000,000 on Bonds to Run 25 Years.

WILL BE OFFERED TO PUBLIC

Transaction Not to Affect Davison or Edge Plan for Rehabilitating Europe.

Negotiations for granting a $50,000,000 loan to the Belgian Government by a group of American banks are again in progress and, it was learned yesterday, are nearing completion. The credit, it was said, will probably take the form of twenty-five year bonds, which will be underwritten by the American banks and will be offered on public subscription.

This loan, it was explained, will not affect the so-called Davison Plan, or the Edge Plan, or any other comprehensive scheme for the financial rehabilitation of Europe and the furthering of American export business. On the contrary, according to bankers interested in the Belgian situation, a loan to that country at this time should be regarded merely as an expedient for temporary relief, as the amount will hardly be enough to suffice for any considerable time. It is expected that other European credits will be arranged and that these operations will be co-ordinated under some general plan.

The outcome of this Belgian financing is awaited with unusual interest in the financial district. Several months ago an acceptance credit for $50,000,000 was arranged for the benefit of Belgian industrial and financial interests by a syndicate of local institutions comprised of the Guaranty Trust Company, J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank, and the National City Bank. At that time it was expected that additional credits would shortly be arranged, to be in the form of Belgian Government bonds. However, some time passed without any developments.

In July last it was learned that John H. Blodgett of the Stock Exchange firm of Paine, Webber & Co. had an option to float in this market a $100,000,000 Belgian Government bond issue. Paine, Webber & Co., acting with New York bankers, succeeded in forming a powerful banking syndicate, which included the Equitable Trust Company, the Central Union Trust Company, the Chase Securities Company and William Salomon & Co. of New York, the First National Bank and the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, the Mellon National Bank and the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, and the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago. This syndicate, with the exception of the Chase Securities Company and possibly one or two others, is still said to be in being as a potential lender to Belgium, notwithstanding the the Blodgett option expired on July 20 and has not been renewed. Recently it has been reported that this group was again making overtures to the Belgian Finance Minister.

The proposition which some members of the above group favor is to extend a $50,000,000 short-term loan. This loan, if it were arranged, would be for ten years, it was said yesterday, with the Belgian Government having the option of redeeming it at the end of five years upon the payment of a premium above the original sales price. The bankers who were advocating this loan contend that it had many advantages, as it would be for a sufficiently long period to allow Belgium to recover somewhat from the effects of the war, and would, at the same time, make it possible for her to pay off the obligation sooner if conditions improved rapidly enough to warrant such action.

The Belgian Finance Minister, however, is said to favor a longer maturity, twenty to twenty-five years. For this reason many yesterday expressed the opinion that the ten-year offer would not be considered and that the so-called Belgian group of bankers here would make an offer for a long-term loan of the same size as the ten-year proposal contemplated, which is $50,000,000.

Bankers who are in close touch with the investment market seriously doubt if a Belgian loan for more than $50,000,000 could be floated here at the present time. They say it would be utterly out of the question to attempt a $100,000,000 operation, as was proposed under the Paine, Webber & Co. plan. Also, it is doubted if the bonds could be sold at as low rate of interest as some other recent European offerings have been put out.

SYNDICATE TAKES CITY'S BOND OFFER

Twenty-six Bids Submitted for $22,000,000 Worth of Short Term Securities.

HIGHEST OFFER IS 4.39

Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, Chase National Bank, and National Bank of Commerce Successful Bidders.

The city's offer of short-term revenue bills and corporate stock notes to the amount of $22,000,000 was taken yesterday by Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, in a joint bid with the Chase National Bank and the National Bank of Commerce. The joint bid was 4.39 and was the highest of the twenty-six bids submitted, which were opened in the Controller's office at noon.

The offer comprised $8,000,000 in revenue bills maturing Nov. 24, 1919; $3,000,000 revenue bills maturing Nov. 25, 1919; $8,000,000 corporate stock notes, maturing Dec. 10, 1919, and $3,000,000 corporate stock notes, maturing Dec. 12, 1919. The successful bidders offered to take all or any part, or none. The sale was seven times overbid and Deputy Controller Arthur J. Philbin, who had charge of it, said he considered the accepted bid a very successful one.

Other tenders were a joint bid of 4.4865 per cent. for the entire offering by the Guaranty Trust Company and Kidder, Peabody & Co., and one by J. P. Morgan & Co. for the revenue bills only, in subdivided amounts, ranging from 4.478 per cent. to 4.518 per cent. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. bid 4.50 per cent. for up to $5,000,000 worth of the revenue bills. The Mechanics and Metals National Bank bid 4.40 per cent. on $1,000,000 worth of the revenue bills. The successful syndicate later issued a statement in which they said they were offering the bonds to investors to yield 4.30 per cent. a year. The statement continued:

"In view of their being free from all Federal income taxes, as well as personal tax in the City of New York and the New York State income tax, the yield on these bonds is equivalent to a taxable investment paying from 4.65 per cent. to 14 per cent. per annum, dependent upon the income of the investor."

BELGIUM MAY BUY LOCOMOTIVES HERE

DEAL INVOLVES $20,000,000

Payment Will Probably Be in Five-Year Treasury Notes, Payable Here in Gold.

The American Locomotive Company is negotiating with the Belgian Government on an order for 400 locomotives, the cost of which will be approximately $20,000,000. A representative of the company, has been in Belgium for some time, but it was not until about ten days ago that Belgium announced definitely its requirements in the way of locomotives for a quick rehabilitation of the transportation lines of the country which suffered heavily during the war. The deal involves locomotives of the heavy freight type.

It is understood that a cable announcing the positive placing of the order may be received at any time. If this materializes it will be the second large equipment order that has been placed recently by a European country with an American concern. Not long ago the Baldwin Locomotive Works received an order from the new Government of Poland for locomotives totaling in value about $7,000,000.

The sale of such a large order to Poland entailed the establishment of long-term credits, the payment being made in ten-year Treasury bonds. It is understood that the American Locomotive Company stands ready to supply a long-term credit to Belgium, but the details are somewhat different from those with reference to the Poland purchase from the Baldwin Locomotive Company. If the order falls to the American Locomotive Company, as is now indicated, the payment will probably be in five-year treasury notes of the Belgium Government, payable in New York in gold dollars.

This arrangement eliminates from consideration the matter of exchange. Just at present exchange is heavily against Belgium, the depreciation in the Belgian franc being between 60 and 65 per cent. On a parity of exchange the $20,000,000 equipment order would involve about 104,000,000 francs, but with the exchange rate at about 8.50, as it was yesterday, the payment in francs to obtain a $20,000,000 credit here would have to be about 170,000,000 francs. The Belgium treasury notes will probably be discounted with bankers here, but thus far no negotiations have been undertaken, and probably will not be until the deal has been positively closed.

The credit considerations involved have no relation whatever to the formation of any Foreign Equipment Finance Corporation, such as was suggested some days ago by Andrew Fletcher, President of the American Locomotive Company. He advocated at that time the association of a number of the equipment companies with the bankers in a corporation which would extend long term credits to those countries which were in urgent need of equipment. This plan has not as yet borne fruit, although it has been discussed by the heads of various equipment companies and by them with several prominent bankers. It was the contention of Mr. Fletcher that the expansion of export business needed support, else it could not be maintained.

The American Locomotive Company has received an order for seventeen locomotives for the Brazilian railroads. The order includes four mallet type freight locomotives for the Mojyana Railway, and six large Pacific type passenger, and seven consolidation type freight locomotives for the Central Railway of Brazil. This, it is understood, is a cash transaction.

RISE IN UNFILLED ORDERS.

Steel Corporation Reports August Gain as 530,442 Tons.

Another increase in the unfilled tonnage figures of the United States Steel Corporation was reported yesterday, the gain for the month of August amounting to 530,442 tons. The gain is slightly less than that which was reported for July, as compared with the June figures, but the difference, it is believed, is due to the fact that the Steel Corporation during August was operating at a much higher capacity than in the preceding month and the greater deliveries consequently cut into unfilled orders more heavily. The total of unfilled tonnage now amount to 6,100,103 tons, or more than that reported in any month since January.

It is probable, however, that the unfilled orders are actually greater now than even in January or December of last year. When the armistice was signed there was a heavy cancellation of Government orders and it is believed that the Steel Corporation spread the total of cancellations over a number of months, rather than cut off the entire cancellation at once.

The decline in unfilled tonnage during the six months from November to the end of May was 3,842,353 tons. In the three months following the gain in unfilled orders made up approximately half of the six months' loss. The present volume of orders is sufficient to keep the plants of the corporation engaged at capacity for nearly five months.

The peak in unfilled tonnage was touched in April of 1917 when the figures were 12,183,083 tons. Following that month the trend was steadily downward until June of this year, when there was a 600,000-ton increase recorded.

BIG ORDER FOR STEEL RAILS.

Railroad Administration Divides Contracts Among Steel Companies.

The United States Railroad Administration has placed an order for 200,000 tons of steel rails. This has been allocated between various plants of the United States Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and the Lackawanna Steel Company. The proportions apportioned to each have not been announced.

Several of the railroads which are looking forward to a return to private ownership before another year are said to be sending out inquiries as to rolling space for rails for 1920. In the case of one company it is said that space for a considerable tonnage has been reserved.

NEW CHANDLER STOCK ISSUE

Motor Car Directors Vote to Increase Capital.

Directors of the Chandler Motor Car Company yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $6 on the 70,000 shares of capital stock outstanding, payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 19. At the same time the board passed unanimously a resolution calling a special meeting of stockholders on Oct. 6 to approve an increase in the capital to 300,000 shares.

The directors recommended that 210,000 shares of the new stock should be issued to stockholders in exchange for their holdings of 70,000 shares (par value $100) now outstanding, which would be on the basis of three shares of new stock for one of the old. It was proposed that 90,000 shares of the new issue be exchanged for 30,000 shares of the stock now held in the company's treasury.

A further recommendation was made that dividends be paid on the new stock at the rate of $8 a year, payable quarterly.

September—Get-together Month

BUSINESS men of many lines will hold conventions this month in various parts of the country. In this period of transition from a war to a peace basis problems are presented which can be solved only by getting together. World-wide banking problems, for instance, will come before the convention of the nation's bankers at St. Louis, and at this time the solution is all important.

The get-together spirit is the actuating impulse of the service of the Atlantic National Bank. We can render valuable service by bringing to bear the collective thought of our officers on a client's particular banking problem. If you have such a problem perhaps we can be of assistance to you.

INTERNAL REVENUE GAINS $145,000,000

TOTAL LESS THAN ESTIMATE

Decrease Caused by Change in Law Allowing Income Tax Payments for 1919 in 1920.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Of $3,837,950,612.05 collected from all sources of internal revenue in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1910, the State of New York paid $806,544,770.28. The figures of internal revenue collections were made public today in a preliminary statement on the annual report of Daniel C. Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Total receipts from income and profits taxes for the fiscal year 1919 were $2,596,008,702.70, a falling off of $243,019,235.87 from the previous year. New York's contribution to income and profit taxes was $712,425,702.94, an increase of $26,776,327.78 over the previous year.

Figures of the income and profit taxes receipts from each of the five New York collection districts are not contained in the statement. Special tabulations, now being made, will show in the report separately the amounts assessed against corporations, partnerships, and individuals. The original estimate of receipts for the year from these sources was $4,707,000,000, but the Revenue bill of 1918 provided for the payment of these taxes, if the taxpayer so elected, in four equal installments beginning with March 15, or the date of filing the return, and in three subsequent installments due on or before June 15, Sept. 15, and Dec. 15. The last two payments fall due in the fiscal year 1920, which explains the decrease in the collections made during 1919. It is estimated that the two remaining payments will amount to approximately $2,000,000,000, which, added to the receipts for 1919, will bring the amount close to the original estimate.

Second New York, (Manhattan financial district and downtown,) $521,594,977.55, an increase of $67,033,752.78.

Third New York, (rest of Manhattan and New York City,) $194,383,165.50, an increase of $24,400,795.72.

Twenty-eighth New York, (Buffalo district,) $63,199,724.32, a decrease of $7,814,380.88.

The internal revenue receipts from the entire country for the fiscal year 1919 exceeded those for 1918 by $145,330,773.33

The revenue derived in 1919 from distilled spirits was $365,211,252.26, as compared with $317,553,687.33 in 1918, an increase of $47,657,564.93. Taxes in 1919 on fermented liquors amounted to $117,839,602.21, as compared with $126,285,857.65 in 1918, a decrease of $8,446,255.44. Taxes on tobacco in 1919 amounted to $206,003,091.84, as compared with $155,188,659.90 in 1918, an increase of $49,814,431.94.

Collections in 1919 from miscellaneous taxes, which include all sources of internal revenue except income and excess profits, amounted to $1,243,941,909.35, as compared with $855,591,700.15 for 1918, an increase of $388,350,209.20.

The report contains a statement of internal revenue receipts for the period March 1 to June 30, 1919, grouped as nearly as possible to correspond with the designation of the taxes levied under the Revenue act of 1918, approved Feb. 24, 1919. The figures shown in this statement, however, other than income and excess profits taxes, cannot be taken to represent the average of such receipts for a full four months' period, as many of the miscellaneous taxes were not effective until April 1 and May 1. Furthermore, the collection of taxes effective May 1, for the most part, were deferred until after June 30, owing to the granting of an extension of time to July 20 for filing returns. Figures for the fiscal year 1919 are subject to revision on receipt of final reports of accounting officers.

TO BUY UNION OIL STOCK.

Million Shares Will Be Sold, Half of It to the Public.

Arrangements have been made by a syndicate headed by Montgomery & Co. Dominick & Dominick, and Hayden, Stone & Co., for the purchase of 1,008,000 shares of stock of the Union Oil Company of Delaware out of a total authorized issue of 5,000,000 shares of no par value. Of the shares purchased by the syndicate 500,000 will be taken up at the purchase price by some of the buyers and the remaining 508,000 shares will be offered for public subscription at $40 a share. Subscription books will be opened on Thursday in the offices of Montgomery & Co. The syndicate will expire Dec. 30 or sooner.

The Union Oil Company, which was formed under the laws of Delaware last month, has no funded or floating debt and no preferred stock. It was formed to absorb a large interest recently acquired in the Union Oil Company of California, the Columbia Oil Producing Company of California, and interests in similar concerns, and to provide adequate banking facilities for its subsidiaries and affiliated companies in the extension of their domestic and foreign business.

In addition to the stock interests already mentioned, it was stated yesterday that the company will begin business with a cash capital of about $11,750,000. Its charter provides that it may act as an operating and holding company and may engage in any branch of the petroleum business in this country or abroad, and may invest in both foreign and domestic corporations.

Directors of the Union Oil Company will include Frederick W. Allen of Lee, Higginson & Co.; E. W. Clark, Vice President and General Manager of the Union Oil Company of California; Bayard Dominick and John S. Drum of San Francisco, W. E. S. Griswold, Charles Hayden, Henry Lockhart, Jr., Vice President of the Goodrich-Lockhart Company; Gates W. McGarrah, President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank; James H. Perkins, E. W. WIRE CO. INCREASES CAPITAL

Holders of the $1,500,000 voting preferred stock of the Clinton-Wright Wire Company of Worcester, Mass., have agreed to exchange their holdings for a new issue of $5,000,000 non-voting second preferred 8 per cent. stock, thus increasing the capital of the company from $12,500,000 to $16,000,000. The issue of non-voting preferred stock will be made so that the Spencer Wire Company may be acquired.

The taking over of the Spencer Wire Company will make the General Wire Company, which will succeed the Clinton-Wright Company, the second largest producer of wire products in the United States. The first is the American Steel and Wire Company, which is owned by the United States Steel Corporation. It is expected that the new concern will be in full operation by Nov. 1.

A special meeting of Clinton-Wright stockholders has been called for Sept. 17 to ratify the issue of new preferred stock and the exchange of the voting for the non-voting shares.

RADIO TALK WITH NORWAY.

Bergen Reports Hearing a Voice from an American Station.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Reports received by the Radio Agency from Christiania announce that the Government wireless station at Bergen, Norway, has been called up twice recently by a voice from a wireless station on the American coast. The Bergen station, which is not fitted with a wireless telephone transmitter, sent wireless telegraphic messages in reply. The voice heard is said to have been perfectly clear.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The wireless telephone messages from the United States heard by the radio station at Christiania, Norway, were probably sent in the course of experiments made some time ago by the Navy Department, officials said today No high-power experiments of that character have been conducted recently.

At that time telephone messages were sent from the New Brunswick, N. J., station to the transport George Washington in French waters, and under some conditions the messages, it was said, might have been overheard by any radio station within range.

More than two years ago messages from Washington were overheard in Honolulu.

HYLAN'S STAND DISPUTED.

Major Gen. Black Refutes Mayor's Arguments on Jamaica Bay.

There is no reason, according to statements from the highest authority, why the work on the Jamaica Bay improvement should not be continued by the city at once. Although Mayor Hylan has declared to the contrary, no special act of Congress is needed to assure the city of reimbursement by the Federal Government. The work to be done consists in dredging out the main channel along the lines laid out by the Mitchel Administration.

In a letter received by Borough President Maurice Connolly from Major Gen. W. M. Black, Chief Engineer of the United States Army, General Black completely refutes the arguments on which Mayor Hylan bases his opposition to resuming the work, namely, that the Federal Government would refuse to repay the city for the work accomplished.

Owners of property along the shore of the bay, counting on the permanency of the new channels, have made many improvements which will be valueless should the work be discontinued.

FINDS PROFITEERS RESELL ARMY FOOD

PROFITS OF 50% CHARGED

Federal Administrator Orders Refund of $1,800 in One Sugar Transaction.

Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, in charge of the distribution of army food from school buildings, announced last night that he had discovered that some wholesale dealers in New York were buying at the schools and reselling at profits running in some cases as high as 50 per cent. The commissioner gave out his statement which contained the names of several of the firms, after he had visited the wholesalers mentioned and examined their wares and books.

In each instance, Dr. Day said he had ordered the dealers to return the food to the places from which it had been obtained, otherwise he would lay the whole matter before the Federal District Attorney.

"I was astounded at the things I found," Congressman Day said. "Why, wholesalers have taken advantage of our sale of Government food to such an extent that they stood to make thousands of dollars out of the needs of citizens had the facts not been discovered."

Almost immediately upon the opening of the sale of army food the Commissioner's office began to receive letters complaining that dealers were buying supplies, and newspapers have received many communications which were turned over to the Commissioner for consideration. On Monday an anonymous letter came which designated a particular firm as having bought army food, and Dr. Day decided to discover whether or not the allegations were true. Here is the story of his investigation, as told by the Commissioner:

"I inspected six firms in all, went through their storerooms, checking up the foods they had there, and also examined their books closely. I am convinced that a number of dealers in New York have bought considerable stocks of army food and are reselling it at a handsome profit."

Commissioner Day said he had found 700 cases of army prunes in four stores. "All of these merchants," he said, "at first denied that they had any army food in their places, but I insisted on searching the premises and they finally admitted that they had the goods. My investigation of their books showed that they were buying the prunes at 18 cents a pound and reselling them at from 26 cents to 29 cents, a profit in many cases of more than fifty per cent. I have instructed the dealers to return the food to the schools from which it was bought."

Dr. Day said some dealers used children to buy goods and that men would buy as though purchasing for their families. He promised that hereafter every purchaser, man, woman or child, would be carefully scrutinized.

The Commissioner said the letter that reported the operations of wholesalers had also stated that officials in charge of the sales were accepting bribes from wholesalers. This could not be verified, he said, although one man in charge at an east side school, admitted that he had been selling to dealers without knowing there was any impropriety in it.

The tour of investigation made by Dr. Day yesterday covered only the east side south of Fourteenth street. He said he was going to visit every part of the city before he finished.

The schools will not be open for food sales today, the Commissioner said last night, but will be open as usual tomorrow. If the weather permits, Dr. Day said 100,000 pounds of smoked ham would be delivered this afternoon from the Bush Terminal to school buildings in every borough.

Arthur Williams, Federal Food Administrator, yesterday gave out details of a transaction in sugar where the Government has demanded a refund of between $1,800 and $1,900 from dealers. The particular transaction involves 55,000 pounds of sugar, and according to the Food Administrator it passed through six hands between the refinery and the consumer. Under Federal regulations there ran be only three parties to a transaction, the refiner, wholesaler and retailer.

Mr. Williams said the complainant was A. H. Bullard, a crushed fruit manufacturer at 217 Fulton Street, who said he had bought the sugar at 13 cents a pound. The price that Mr. Bullard should have paid, Mr. Williams pointed out, was 9¼ cents. S. Shapiro, 11 and 13 Emerson Place, Brooklyn, from whom Bullard bought it, said he got it from J. C. Brown, a broker of 15 Park Row, paying 12¼ cents a pound. Brown had purchased the sugar from Eisman & Son, at 246 Delaware Avenue, Philadelphia, paying 12 cents a pound.

"It is this kind of transactions, involving a number of dealers, that shoot prices up," said Mr. Williams. "I called Mr. Eisman on the telephone and he admitted selling the sugar at 12 cents, but denied that he had ever heard of a Federal regulation against it. He said he sold the sugar to Mr. Brown thinking it was for export."

Mr. Williams said he was investigating eight complaints against dealers for prices higher than the fair list. Two other investigations ended yesterday because the dealers, by the time the agents of the Food Administrator got to them, were complying with the rules laid down by the committee.

Mr. Williams will address a meeting of the Community Council's Fair Price Committee at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at City Hall. The meeting has been called by Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, Chairman of the sub-committee on Field Activities of the Fair Price Board. In addition to members of the committee representatives of approximately 400 civic bodies have been invited.

The suppression of quack patent medicine advertising throughout the country was advocated by Dr. E. F. Ladd, Food Commissioner of North Dakota, in an address yesterday before the American Association of Dairy, Food and Drug Officials, who are holding their twenty-third annual convention at the Hotel Commodore.

"It is our duty," said the speaker, "to eliminate the greatest evil confronting society—the sale of patent medicines and nostrums. We should suppress advertising in the press of all quacks who put their insidious wares before the public."

Roy D. Potts, marketing specialist, United States Department of Agriculture, discussing means to reduce the cost of living, said the distribution of milk and other products through retail stores might bring results.

Dr. Mary E. Pennington, Chief of United States Food Research Laboratory, Philadelphia, urged that legislation be enacted to punish those who put bad eggs on the market. She asserted that eggs had become the recognized breakfast food, and that the public should be protected. She said that warehouses were entirely too full of eggs, resulting in the present high price.

WILL REPORT ON PALESTINE.

Justice Brandeis and Others to Tell Zionists of Conditions.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis, of the United States Supreme Court, who arrived in this country on Monday after a trip to Palestine and Syria, will report on conditions at the twenty-second annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America to be held in Chicago on Sunday, Sept. 12. This announcement was made yesterday by the Zionist Organization.

Others who will report are Dr. Harry Friedenwald of Baltimore and Robert Szold, Secretary of the Zionist Administrative Committee. Bernard A. Rosenblatt, President of the Zion Commonwealth, a semi-private corporation of prospective agricultural settlers in Palestine, will discuss the land situation. Definite plans for the development of Palestine will be presented at the convention.

NAME TRADE ENVOYS.

Experts of Europe Coming for International Conference.

At a meeting yesterday of the special committee appointed by the United States Chamber of Commerce to arrange the program for the International Trade Conference, which will be held at Atlantic City beginning Sept. 30, it was decided that the topics which the representatives of the four foreign countries and those of the United States would discuss would be food, fuel, textiles, chemicals, metals, industrial plants, finance, including foreign exchange and a permanent organization for furthering the work between the countries. The heads of the foreign commissions are: Great Britain, Sir Arthur Shirley Benn; Italy, Filvia Crespi; France, M. Clementel, and Belgium, Jean Belori.

After yesterday's meeting the following statement was issued by A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the International Trade Conference:

"No better evidence could be offered of the importance attached to the International Trade Conference at Atlantic City, Sept. 30, than is found in the personnel of the delegations that are coming from Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium. This response to the invitations of the United States Chamber of Commerce, extended with the approval of our Government, together with the hearty co-operation manifested by our own business men and bankers, assures a gathering of minds and men whose deliberations will aid greatly in the understanding of the international trade problems now urgently requiring solution.

"As announced, France will be represented at the conference by a body of officials and business men who can speak authoritatively for the most important divisions of French industry. The Honorary President of the Commission is M. Clementel, Minister of Commerce; his adjutant is M. Tirman, Councilor of State, who represented France at the San Francisco exposition."

The delegation, with the industries represented, is as follows: Head of mission, M. Schneider of the Creusot Works; textiles, M. Waddington, of the firm of Waddington Sons & Co., Paris; chemicals, M. Roche; banker, Baron de Neuflize, of the banking firm of de Neuflize & Co., Paris; food, M. Prevett President of the Union of Wholesale Food Syndicates; Secretary General, M. Mazot, General Secretary of the French High Commission in the United States.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—A fifteen-year-old servant girl has been perpetrating a joke which for some days has occupied the serious attention of English geologists, scientists and experts, and leading London newspapers have devoted columns to describing and attempting to elucidate the "mystery" for which this girl now has proved responsible. Many people have paid a visit to the rectory of Swanton Royers, in Norfolk, to see oil from an unknown source dripping from its ceilings. One reporter who described his visit to the rectory wrote:

"It is bare of furniture and smells like a motor works. Every room in the house except the bathroom has yielded its gallon or more of pure and adulterated oil. Ceilings are stained and dripping with oil and the soil beneath the scullery floor, which has been dug up for experimental purposes, is saturated with it."

The liquid which oozed from the ceilings included gasoline, paraffine, methylated spirits, sandalwood oil, water and a mixture of all. All sorts of theories were advanced to account for the drippings. One was that the house was over a sunken oil well; another that the oil was finding its way from a Government storage reservoir three miles away, and it was even suggested that there was something psychical about it all. Oil experts, analysts, geologists and spiritualists were alike all baffled, and finally a well-known illusionist took up the investigation.

At his suggestion the water supply of the house was cut off and all liquids removed except several pails of salt water. Sure enough, salt water began to drip from the ceiling. Watch was kept on the servant girl and finally she was caught in the act of splashing water on the ceiling. There are now many learned men going about feeling rather small, and London newspaper editors are not feeling any too good.

FARMERS INDICT LABOR.

Grange Lays High Prices to Unearned Wages and Strikes.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Officials of the New York State Grange, representing 125,000 farmers, in a statement issued here today placing responsibility for the high cost of living upon labor, declared that "an economic adjustment must be made if the world is to be fed and agriculture preserved." The indictment of all workers except those engaged in agricultural pursuits is made by Sherman J. Powell, and W. N. Giles, Master and Secretary, respectively, of the Grange, who allege that strikes have been an important factor in raising the price of food, clothing and shelter.

"No class of Americans with red blood in their veins," says the statement, "will stand being told they must labor long hours at inadequate pay in order that another class may have shorter hours and higher wages. Even the faithful farmer, who has always produced sufficient food for all, feels he has about reached the limit, and that no laboring man of the city should find fault if he applies the same rule that his city brother has taught him.

"Why is it that over half our farms have mortgages on them, and that two-thirds are worked by renters? When a class of men demand a higher wage, although their labor does not earn it, some one else must pay, and they become dishonest profiteers."

U. S. Rubber Issues More Stock.

J., Sept. 9.—The United States Rubber Company, with its principal offices in New Brunswick, and with offices also in Botson and Chicago, today filed a certificate with the Secretary of State here increasing the capital stock of the company from $120,000,000 to $300,000,000. The new capitalization is composed of 1,000,000 shares preferred stock and 2,000,000 shares common stock at $100 par value.

COTTON UNSETTLED BY STORM REPORTS

FEAR OF CROP DAMAGE

Last Hour Is Marked by Evening-Up Process in Anticipation of Today's Closing.

The predominating influence in yesterday's cotton market was the tropical storm reported over the West Indies, coupled with the fact that both the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges will be closed today in honor of General Pershing. There had been considerable buying on Monday, when it was feared that the big storm would get over into the cotton belt by yesterday and do a lot of damage. Yesterday morning, when it was found that this had not happened, many of the buyers of the day before sold their cotton, and in the process gave the market a good deal of irregularity, sending it down altogether 50 to 70 points.

After the early selling, and when additional information was received regarding the storm, showing that it was moving in a westerly direction, there was rebuying which brought about a recovery to above Monday's closing figures, and this movement, in turn, was followed by selling, mainly for the account of the South, which again changed the complexion of the market. This up and down movement continued throughout practically the entire session, and while it made the market delightful for the ring traders, who could follow its quick changes, it was not to the liking of the commission house traders, who found it somewhat beyond them.

In the last hour, and even before that time, there was a good deal of evening up in anticipation of today's closing here and at New Orleans. It was appreciated that a lot may happen before the markets reopen tomorrow. If the storm does get into the belt and do serious damage, tomorrow's market ought to open well up, unless, of course, big interests balance accounts at Liverpool, in which event the advance here would naturally be held down. On the other hand, if the storm passes off in some other direction the market should show an opposite trend, unless some other factor develops, which is not unlikely. All in all, the cotton market situation was entirely too precarious for many people to care to hold a position over today's closing, so that yesterday afternoon there was a general evening up all around.

Other influences had little or no effect yesterday. The foreign exchange market was steady and cotton traders found little or no inspiration in it either way. The stock market, too, failed to exert its usual control and the export situation was mainly disregarded.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Producers from Ten Southern States Join—Row Over, President

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9.—Cotton producers from ten Southern States at a meeting of the American Cotton Association here today, decided to organize a buying corporation in every county and parish in the belt with the object of buying every bale offered, then holding the staple until the minimum price, fixed by the committee, was offered.

Without a dissenting vote the association accepted the Price Fixing Committee report recommending a scale of prices which will be demanded for cotton, ranging from 36 cents for September cotton and increasing a half cent a month until 40 cents is reached in May.

The minimum prices recommended are as follows: September cotton, 36 cents; October, 36½ cents; November, 37 cents; December, 37½ cents; January, 38 cents; February, 38½ cents; March, 39 cents; April, 30½ cents; May, 40 cents.

No recommendations were made for minimum prices after May.

The association ended in a general uproar when efforts were blocked to obtain an endorsement of President Wilson's tour and to urge upon the Senate the immediate ratification of the Peace Treaty at the closing session of the conference this afternoon.

For nearly half an hour there was pandemonium in the convention room with sometimes a dozen men trying to speak or clamoring for recognition, and only for brief intervals was the presiding officer, Governor Dorsey of Georgia, able to restore order. After adjournment, effort was made to hold a mass meeting and endorse the President, but it failed in the noise and confusion which started when L. D. Jennings of South Carolina called up his resolution endorsing the President's tour.

ASKS CHICAGO TO BUY LINES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Municipal ownership and operation of street railways, with the management in the hands of a popularly elected commission of five men, is Mayor Thompson's plan to make Chicago's traction system "a model for the world."

In a forty-page message filled with harsh names for the traction companies he proposed that a new local government be established, to be known as the Transportation District of Chicago, operated by a commission of five men to be elected by the voters, which would build up a traction system of surface, elevated, and subway lines adequate to meet the public's needs.

He declared that enabling legislation to permit the proposed change could be obtained easily, and asked the Council for an ordinance empowering him to appoint a commission to study the traction problem with a view to city ownership and report to him in nine months.

Mayor Thompson did not make the expected demand for revocation by the Council of the franchises of the traction companies. Regarding that question he said:

"I hope and have reasonable grounds to believe the city may soon rescind and cancel the rights of the surface lines company under the contracts and ordinances for the reasons and upon the grounds that the companies have refused to be bound by said ordinances and contracts and have renounced their contracts with the people."

Few Aldermen were willing to discuss the Mayor's message. "The people voted down municipal ownership under Mayor Dunne. Why should we spend $250,000 to put it up to them again?" said one.

BIG FUR SALE OPENS TODAY.

12,000,000 Skins Will Be Auctioned Off in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 9.—More than 12,000,000 pelts, valued at $15,000,000, will be auctioned at the annual Fall sale of the International Fur Exchange here, beginning tomorrow. More than 500 buyers, from all parts of the world, are expected to attend.

Nine thousand Alaskan seal and 667 blue fox will be sold for the account of the United States, and are expected to bring approximately $1,000,000. A unique feature will be the sale of 30,000 Russian pony pelts. This is the first time in the exchange's history that these skins have been on sale.

The largest lot catalogued is one containing 1,500,000 Russian squirrel. Among the expensive pelts are 8,000 sable, 7,000 Russian sable, and 700 silver fox. The Russian sable alone, it is believed, will bring $2,000,000, Philip B. Fouke, the auctioneer, said.

Large lots to be sold include: 565,000 muskrat, 230,000 marmot, 310,000 white hare, 150,000 civet cat, 200,000 Australian opossum, 280,000 American opossum, 190,000 ermine, 110,000 Japanese fox, and 600,000 pounds of rabbit skins.

The sale will continue through Sept. 20.

Rubber Demand Goes Down.

Demand has again let down in the local market for crude rubber this week, after a period of pretty fair buying on the part of manufacturers and dealers. Yesterday there was practically nothing of interest to report in the way of trading. Brazilian rubber spot prices were being quoted on the basis of 55 to 55½ cents for up-river fine, the higher figure also representing the quotation for shipment during the remainder of this month and through next. Up-river coarse was held at 32½ cents, with upper ball quoted at 32¼, both quotations being for spots. In the plantation rubbers first latex was quoted at 49¼ cents, spot, and at 50½ cents for October-December shipment. The respective prices for smoked sheets here yesterday were 48½ cents and 49 to 49½ cents.

Where Currency Is Depreciated.

In common with other trade bodies, the Millinery Chamber of Commerce is advising its members of the steps being taken to avoid the litigation, delay, and uncertainty in making imports which have resulted from the depreciation of the currency of foreign countries. Duties are exacted on the basis of the value of the currency and the depreciation is certified to by the American consular officer. The latter, however, cannot do this in the cases where the currency is redeemable at par in gold, no matter what the restrictions or regulations may be governing such redemption. The State Department is conferring with the Treasury Department to discover a way out.

Second Showing of Fall Styles.

Many of the prominent suit and dress houses have just made their second showing of Fall styles. The new designs are built up on the latest fashion advices from Paris brought by returning buyers. The latter quite generally describe the prevailing French mode as much too extreme for American wear, the criticism being leveled at the scantiness of the costumes which the Parisian designers are creating. The new styles put out by the manufacturers show something of a change from the simple lines that were originally put out for the Fall season, in that they feature various kinds of draping and panel effects.

Suits Quiet, Coats Active.

Manufacturers in the local coat and suit trade are inclined to dispute the statements made by retailers and their representatives that cancellations are being made at the present time. Some few revisions have been received, it is understood, but they are placed at the door of a changed sentiment on the part of buyers rather than to any diminution of the retail demand or any prospect of such taking place. Suits at the present time are rather quiet, but coats are making up for the inactivity in the other line. Manufacturers state that, if the demand for coats continues at the present rate deliveries will fall far short of being prompt and some retailers may not get their full quotas.

Diamonds Instead of Jade.

Among the Chinese the possession of jade was the mark of wealth, but now, it seems, the Orientals want diamonds instead. This is only one of the several markets that have been newly opened up for the precious stones and added to the demand and, of course, to the prices. The peculiar part about the waning affection of the Chinese for jade is that this semi-precious stone has almost overnight become exceedingly popular among the Occidental peoples.

Flame-Colored Trimming Popular.

Flame-colored trimmings are supplying the gap where millinery and garment manufacturers have rather dark-colored fabrics to use up, and where they wish at the same time to keep abreast of the demand for brilliant color effects. For millinery a strip of flame-colored velvet usually answers the purpose, and in garments a touch of color may be added here and there and liven up an otherwise severe looking style. Accompanying the popularity of such trimmings is the increasing demand for silver thread materials.

More About Spring Ginghams.

A price of 27 cents was put on "Appleweb" dress ginghams yesterday by Catlin & Co. of this city for the Spring season of 1920. As with other ginghams, both dress and staple, that have been priced for the new season, the goods in question had all been sold on a tentative price basis before the actual quotation was made. At the offices of Bliss, Fabyan & Co. yesterday it was said that Bates seersuckers would not be priced until later in the week. The same was true of the lines handled by Smith, Hogg & Co. and the T. Holt Haywood department of Victor & Achelis.

Gray Goods Prices Soften.

Prices continue to soften in the local gray goods market and, while second hands let out several constructions at the new figures for deliveries in the next two months or so, the volume of merchandise disposed of yesterday was not large. First hands simply sat back and waited, but among the business reported from second hands were 40-inch 38-80, 8.50-yard combed lawns at 27 cents, for October-November shipment; 5.50-yard sheetings for September and October at 12 cents; 5-yard sheetings for September at 13 cents, and four-yard, 56-60 sheetings for this month at 17½ cents. Of the 39-inch printcloths second hands sold, for delivery during this month and next, 80 squares at 23 cents, 72-76s at 19¼ cents, and 68-72s at 18 cents. They also let out, for the same shipment, 38½-inch 64-60s at 14½ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 13 cents.

Labels for Waist Shippers.

A uniform label to be used on all packages sent from the factories of waist manufacturers to retailers throughout the country is to be adopted soon by the United Waist League of America. The new label grew out of conferences held under the auspices of the league and at the instance of Executive Director M. Mosessohn, who believes that the uniform label will be the means of decreasing the number of packages lost in transit, as well as eliminating many of the thefts from shipments made by the wholesale and retail trades. It has been approved by the express company officials. Information that has usually been put on labels regarding the contents of packages will be eliminated in the future, and there will appear on the labels only the name of the concern and the address. One clause on the label addressed to the consignee will read: "If not in proper condition insist upon contents being checked in the presence of a representative of the express company."

The Tax on Fur Hats.

The Millinery Chamber of Commerce of the United States has sent letters to its members interpreting the so-called luxury tax on furs as applied to women's hats made of or containing that material. It says: "Ladies' hats composed entirely or in chief value of fur fall within the language of two sections of the revenue act of 1918, each imposing a tax. However, it is not intended that an article shall be doubly taxed. Therefore, in the case of ladies' hats composed wholly or in chief value of fur, the tax of 10 per cent. on the full selling price must be paid by the manufacturer in accordance with Section 900; but such hats are not subject to the consumers' tax of 10 per cent. on the amount in excess of $15 each. Ladies' hats, if fur is the component material of chief value, therefore bear the manufacturers' fur tax, but not the consumer's tax on millinery."

COLVER ATTACKS 1920 MODEL TRUST

Strangling Competition, Says Chairman of Federal Trade Commission.

MEAT PACKERS THE WORST

Latest "Octopus" of Business Controls Even Competing Products—Beyond Present Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Measures recommended by President Wilson to curb combinations controlling food and necessaries are now before the House Judiciary Committee, which today heard further testimony from members of the Federal Trade Commission. Amendments of the Clayton anti-trust law and the act creating the Federal Trade Commission as well as a drastic Federal "blue sky" law were urged by William B. Colver, Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and S. H. Thompson, Jr., another member of the commission.

Mr. Colver elaborated upon what he termed the new octopus in business, the formidable so-called food trust of the country. He said that big business had grown faster than the laws to control it, until today there had arisen in this country a combination of the meat packers which was most powerful through the control not only of meat and other articles of food, but through the control by the same interests of commodities which competed with the products handled by the meat packers. For instance, he said, the meat packers controlled not only oleomargarine but butter.

This new form of trust, not reached by the present laws, Mr. Colver characterized as the "1920 model trust," which he insisted was strangling all actual competition by controlling the competing commodities. This, he said, was one of the reasons why high living costs were maintained. The consuming public was unable to buy a substitute article any cheaper than the original article.

The present laws, Mr. Colver said, did not prevent such a combination being formed and he insisted that unless legislation to prevent a concern controlling the organizations which compete with it indirectly is enacted, the "new 1920 octopus" will continue to control the food market of the United States and affect prices throughout the world.

"There has grown up in this country, and is growing stronger daily," testified Mr. Colver, "an entirely new form of trust and an entirely new method of eliminating competition. It is the 1920 model trust, and is entirely outside of any law Congress has passed and is beyond the reach of the courts. Congress has not yet fully perceived the new form and therefore no cognizance has been taken of it.

"Originally trusts were formed on the theory of eliminating competition in the main branch of the industry whether producer, manufacturer, or seller. The Clayton act, the Sherman anti-trust law, and the Federal Trade Commission act afford no remedy for checking its growth. If it is met now, it will be met in the formative period and its ultimate development checked. Later it will be more difficult to control.

"The Standard Oil Trust is a two-cylinder, out-of-date trust, compared with the new principle," added Mr. Colver. "The Standard Oil undertook to crush its competitors dealing in the same products, but the new movement is to gain control of competing commodities and substitute products.

"In other words, it is the uniting of competing products in one ownership by which the new trust is formed. The Standard Oil Company took petroleum as its basis and concentrated on control of the crude output. If that company were to put into operation the new principle of development it would go at it in this way. It would first observe that petroleum divides in its refining stages into gasoline, kerosene, and fuel oil.

"Wood alcohol competes with gasoline, as both are used in internal combustion engines, so it would control wood alcohol. Then it would control the by-products of wood alcohol. Kerosene is an illuminant, and both gas and electricity compete with kerosene, so it would control gas and electricity and their related and by-products, such as coke and electrical machinery.

"From that it is but one step to the control of coal and electrical power, these also involving competition with fuel oil.

"By this process of development the real 1920 model trust is produced. Furthermore, I tell you that it is coming just as sure as tomorrow is Wednesday and the sooner it is met the less crystallized it will be, and the less difficult its control."

"How many of this form of trusts are in process of formation now?" asked Representative Igoe of Missouri, "and what are they, if you can tell us?"

He proceeded to describe the various ramifications of the meat packing industry which, he said, controlled the butter and egg business of the country, oleomargarine, the manufacture of fertilizer, production of cottonseed oil, perfumes, and leather novelties.

"It requires only a limited stretch of the imagination to see how far the ramifications of this principle will reach," explained Mr. Colver.

These combinations are becoming formidable, Mr. Colver said, through control by a powerful organization of lesser organizations by making use of the "bearer's warrants." This, he said, was a new form of issuing stock in order to cover the identity of the stockholder, and made it possible for the "warrant stockholder" to avoid paying an income tax. He recommended legislation which would make it illegal for this form of company to exist.

Mr. Colver exhibited a certificate of stock of the Chicago stockyards, which showed it was incorporated under the laws of Maine and had written over it the words "bearer's warrant." There was no name on the warrant, but attached to it were forty dividend coupons which also did not mention the amount of the dividend, but called for a stock dividend each six months. These coupons were numbered and the day they would be paid given. The dividends are collectible the same way a Government coupon is collected by the banks.

Under this system the Government cannot get the names of the stockholders. F. R. Pegram of Portland, Maine, Treasurer of the Union Stockyards Company, testified that he did not know a single stockholder.

S. H. Thompson, another member of the Federal Trade Commission, requested the committee to act favorably on the "blue sky" bill, prepared by the Capital Issues Committee of the Treasury Department, and recommended by President Wilson in his recent message to Congress. He suggested, however, that it should be amended so as to require the promoters to state on the prospectus the amount of their commissions and the net amount the company would receive from the sale of bonds or stocks. The Federal "blue sky" law recommended by the Capital Issues Committee is modeled after the Kansas act. A bill to carry the idea into effect has been introduced by Representative Taylor of Colorado.

GENERAL FACTORY MANAGER,
NO. 20 CHURCHILL STREET,
BUFFALO, N. Y.
CUTLER DESK COMPANY.

HELP WANTED—Male.

SALESMEN.
We have just made arrangements for handling the financing of a newly formed corporation.

The officers and Directors of the company are men with not only a national reputation, but an international reputation in a persoal as well as a business way, and they are all devoting their personal time under contracts with the company to the direction of its affairs.

The financing of the company is to be handled through the sale of its stock, which is all common stock, and the control of the company is not withheld from the stockholders by any voting trust, pooling agreement, or through the incorporators holding a majority of the stock.

The officers and Directors have all agreed not to charge or draw salaries until the company is sufficiently financed to warrant it, and then only modest ones, so that the company will have every opportunity to accumulate surplus and grow.

This company will offer you a continuing opportunity to sell its stock, as the men behind it are determined to increase its capitalization as it becomes necessary, so as to permit it in time to take its place among the leading concerns of this country.

The commissions and arrangements which will be made with men who join our sales force now will be permanent and at a higher rate than would be thought of or considered later on.

Call at our temporary offices—we are the brokers in charge—and see Mr. Montgomery, our General Sales Manager, on Thursday, after 12 noon. L. Wormser & Co., Suites 518-519A Bryant Park Building, 47 West 42d St., New York City.

AMERICAN EXPRESS
Travel Department
Announces Its First European Tour
since the beginning of the war, to FRANCE—BELGIUM—ITALY and the Battlefields of Europe
Sailing from New York via the palatial Cunard Steamer
MAURETANIA, OCTOBER 2nd

The Ban on European Travel for Pleasure Is Off. The Government announces the issuing of passports to France, Belgium and Italy after September 15th. Applications may be made now. Americans have eagerly awaited this definite official assurance. Looking forward to this time, our Travel Department, including its experienced travel managers in our offices throughout Europe, has been preparing to serve tourists in our way—"The American Way"—the way with the personal service and attention to details which Americans expect when they travel.

The Mauretania Party will be limited in number. Lieutenant Geo. Whiting Seaton of the Visitors Bureau of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, and who personally conducted official Congressional parties to the battlefields during the war, is a member of our staff and will be in charge of the parties while visiting the battlefields.

The Itinerary Includes Cherbourg, Paris, the Marne, Rheims, Chateau-Thierry, Belleau Woods, Verdun, St. Mihiel, the Argonne, Brussels, Antwerp, Louvain, Ypres, the Hindenburg Line, Bruges, Ghent, Zeebrugge, Ostend, Montreux, Geneva, Marseilles, Nice, Monte Carlo, Corniche Drive, Genoa, Rome, Naples, Florence, Venice, Milan, and return to Paris.

Hotel Service—Conditions are now reasonably satisfactory throughout the route covered and the best hotel service afforded is assured.

Railway Service—Invariably this will be first class.

Automobile Service—Seven-passenger touring cars will be used extensively on all side trips.

Airplane Service—In keeping with the spirit of the times, and of the American Express Travel Department, excursions by airplane over the battlefields will be included. Alternative arrangements will be available for those who prefer them.

"The American Way" offers tourists the results of world-wide travel experience. "The American Way" is backed by one of the oldest, largest and most responsible organizations in the world, The American Express Company. Its record of service to Americans in Europe at the outbreak of the war is gratefully remembered by thousands. Its war assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the various organizations engaged in war activities is well known. It was the official carrier of money and parcels to British prisoners of war in Germany. Its Travellers Cheques are currency the world over.

The Battle Trails of our glorious American boys are fresh today. Trenches, dugouts, machine-gun nests, battered cities, scarred fields, clusters of white crosses—all the implements and results of war are just as they left them victorious. Tomorrow the visible evidences of the great conflict will have disappeared.

Write at once for booklet of details, information, prices, etc. If you expect to visit the battlefields of Belgium and France either this winter or next spring, plan now. We shall provide for you in the order of application.

Next European Tour Sails—October 29th.

American Express Travel Bookings are already numerous for personally conducted tours this winter to the West Indies, South America, China and Japan.

SAYS DEATH FOUND A. Z. RATNER POOR

OPPOSES WIFE'S CLAIMS

Seeks to Have Her Appointment as Administratrix of Husband's Estate Set Aside.

Allegations that Abraham Z. Ratner, for many years head of large enterprises in Mexico, and recently in business in New York, who died Aug. 14 last at Hastings, did not leave an estate of many millions, as his wife believes, but died $500,000 in debt, are made in an application filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday by his brother, José B. Ratner, to set aside the appointment of Mrs. Ratner as administratrix, of the estate of her husband.

Soon after Mr. Ratner's death his wife, Mrs. Florence Ratner, offered for probate a will made in Mexico in 1914 which left $25,000 to his brother and the remainder of the estate to his wife and six children. The brother was named as executor, but Mrs. Ratner objected to his appointment. The brother later filed another will recently made by the decedent, cutting off his wife and children.

The brother, José B. Ratner, in his petition for the removal of Mrs. Ratner as administratrix, states that he is at the Spring Hill Sanitarium for a nervous breakdown. He denies a statement by Mrs. Ratner that his brother owned The Tampico News, worth several million dollars, but said he was one of a number of stockholders, and that the concern went into liquidation in 1914, when he and his brother came here. He says he and his brother had $500,000 between them when they came. His brother lost part of his share in business reverses in Spain the year following, and the remainder was also lost in stock transactions.

Concerning allegations by Mrs. Ratner that the decedent was rich through his ownership of stock in the Overseas Export and Import Company, the Transcontinental Exploration Company, and the Ratner Realty Corporation, with $6,000,000 capital, of which he was President, José Ratner says these corporations never issued stock and that his brother lost money exploiting them. He denies that he had anything to do with the reported estrangement between his brother and the latter's wife.

ANDERSON DENIES DRY DRIVE

Says Anti-Saloon League Is Not Prosecuting Isolated Case.

Despite the statement of two private detectives who appeared in the Federal Building, in Brooklyn, yesterday, against two bartenders of Elmhurst charged with selling whisky, that they were employed by the Anti-Saloon League to get evidence against the men, Superintendent William H. Anderson of the league later said positively that they were not in the employ of his organization. The story of the detectives causeda report to spread about that the league had launched a campaign against violators of the War Time Prohibition act. This was denied by Mr. Anderson, who said the league had not departed from its policy of non-interference in isolated violations and its pursuit only of public officials found lax in their duties.

Robert G. Davey, counsel to the league, said: "The arrests were made under directions from my office because a friend of the league complained that he was shocked by conditions that he saw in Elmhurst. The hiring of the detectives was not an affair in which the Anti-Saloon League had any part."

The men arrested were James Walsh, 109 Judge Street, Elmhurst, bartender in James O'Connor's café, and Charles Hoelderline of 27 Wool Street, Elmhurst, employed by Emil Weiler. They were arraigned before Commissioner Louis R. Bick, pleaded not guilty and were held in $500 bail for examination on Friday.

THEY learned in war that the value of a thing is in the service it gives; that in the long run the best costs less because it does more

The poorly-made shell, or gun, or plane couldn't be trusted; it was economy to pay the price of the best

Men just coming back, and those already here, ought to take this lesson of the war into civil life; that good quality saves But we ought not to have to go to war to learn it

Welcome Home
General Pershing

The greatest city in the world, General, greets you—and is going to show you how genuinely welcome back to his own—is the biggest man of the day.

Throngs of people—outnumbering two to one the armies you so victoriously led—will bank the line of march and cheer themselves hoarse in feeble expression of how heartfelt is their feeling toward you.

And the crowds will be mighty orderly and dressed for parade—over 200,000 of the men and young men who will be on the side lines will wear Monroe Clothes—quite an army in itself.

Monroe Clothes for Fall are ready. Every man who gives thought to how much value he can get for as little money as is necessary to spend should visit our Upstairs Shops, where Monroe Clothes are sold at a saving—

A Million Dollar Bonfire

THAT'S what Uncle Sam lit when his statisticians proved to him that it would cost more to bring his airplanes back to America than they were worth.

Many a department of a big organization eats up more "overhead" than the difference between cost and selling price, but the lack of efficient accounting systems permits this expense to be absorbed in the profits of other departments.

Perhaps a department of your business is entitled to a "bonfire"—perhaps a well-organized accounting department will bring a condition such as this to the fore before the conflagration spreads.
